

The Lewd Art

BDSM References Hit different once you realize that the Venn Diagram of people interested in kink, and people who ply TTRPGs is effectively a Just a circle
~Anonomous

Since as far back as Advanced D&D, tabletop roleplayers have been finding ways to incorporate sex and other adult topic into their games. Starting with the AD&D Guide to sex, and exemplified perhaps in the 3.5 Book of Erotic Fantasy, lewd roleplaying supplements have existed nearly as long as tabletop RPGs themselves. Even the poorly received 4th edition has at least one well developed rulebook for those looking to turn their ad-venture into a sex-venture.

While the Venn diagram may not be a complete circle, the kink and tabletop gaming communities have always had a strong amount of overlap - And why not? Tabletop gaming has always been something that appeals to outcasts and misfits - people with a desire to live out or explore fantasies on a level more personal than other formats might allow. Both the kink and tabletop communities share a vast array of similarities in their appeal, and the escapism of fantasy gaming in many ways mirrors the escape that so many find in kink and eroticism.

Beyond that, the very makeup and history of tabletop gaming lend themselves to adult themes and sexualized adventures. Heavily inspired not just by early science-fiction and fantasy comics such as Connan the barbarian and john carter of mars, so much that we now recognize as the core of Dungeons and Dragons is built directly on works of sexploitation and fantasy. And one has only to do an unfiltered google search of any Critical Role character to see that such interests are still alive and well within the community. People like fantasy. People Like sex. Why not bring the two together?

Running a Lewd Game

Wheather you are planning an entire campaign centered around an eldritch sex dungeon, or just interested in a kinky one-shot, there are a few rules to keep in mind when playing an erotic adventure. Many of these things are already a part of maintaining any healthy roleplaying group, but take on new meaning and importance in the world of erotic fantasies. Others are completely new challenges that only appear within the intimacy of a sexually charged setting.

Playing an erotic adventure means revealing a part of yourself to others that can be very personal and vulnerable - and everyone else at the table is allowing themselves to be similarly vulnerable. Erotic roleplay is an intimate experience, and it should be done with respect and care for everyone involved.

While the purpose of this rulebook is primarily to address the mechanical components of a lewd roleplaying experience; but before we can properly discuss rules and game mechanics, it's important to address some of the basic elements of maintaining a safe, sane, and consensual atmosphere at your table.

Consent is Key

Whatever the rules are at your table for playing consensual or non-consensual scenes, the number one rule to remember in any sexually charged environment is that consent is key. This means not just the consent of the players to experience a sexual adventure, but the consent of the DM to create those adventures. And this consent can be revoked at any point. If scene gets too spicy, or something goes in a direction someone is uncomfortable with, the Roleplay stops, and real people come first.

Remember as you play that everyone at the table in effectively a part of every scene. Even if their character is not in the room, the player is. When you perform a scene in front of other people, be they friends, partners, or strangers, the audience is as much a part of that scene as anyone else, and their consent should be respected.

Set the Rules in Advance

We all know that in D&D, no plan ever survives first contact with execution. It's impossible to know for certain what will happen in any given encounter, be it combat, sex, or somewhere in-between. But that doesn't mean it isn't important to discuss things in advance.

If you are going to be playing a lewd game, take the time to learn each other's kinks and limits. Know what is ok to bring up or have happen , and what isn't. Make a list if you need to, and attach it to your character sheet. No preparation is foolproof, but if you discuss these things in advance, it will severely lessen the chances of problems occurring after the session starts.

Communication is Paramount

Dont let the communication end just because the dice have been put away. Communication is the cornerstone of any intimate relationship, and make no mistakes, an erotic roleplaying group is very much an Intimate relationship. It's important to keep the lines of communication open so that this relationship stays healthy.

Kinks change, new limits are discovered, and sometimes players will encounter things about themselves they had never even considered. Communication not only prevents a group from becoming toxic, but allows it to adapt to the changes in and discoveries that can occur over time.

Even after the game is over, roleplaying erotic events can leave both players and DMs feeling vulnerable. Sub Drop, Dom Drop, feelings of unnecessary guilt, or unfulfilled desire: these are all very real things that have a meaningful impact on the people at your table. Be aware of each other, and don't forget the importance of aftercare when the scene is over.

At the end of the day, we are all real people with real feelings and emotions. Just because something is fantasy doesn't mean it doesn't leave an impact

What Happens in Character Stays in Character

Any veteran player of any tabletop rpg can list at least one story of drama at the table or players and parties that broke up because someone couldn't separate themselves from their character. But when an adventure turns the corner from facing down powerful foes seeking your character's death, to coming toe-to-tentacle with an eldritch abomination that wants nothing more than to turn your character into a living seedbed, the separation between real life and fantasy becomes even more important.

Lets face it, sexual fantasies can often be fucked up. There is a reason kink and fetish are considered adult topics. And when roleplaying in any erotic setting, it's paramount to understand that the actions and views of Characters, Monsters, and NPCs are not the views and actions of the Players and DM behind them. Kink is not the same thing as worldveiw. Fetish does not equal political or ethical beliefs. And if it does, then you have a serious problem.

Kink and fantasy are things that should always stay within the scene, whether that scene is part of a game or, part of actual intimacy. When the scene is over, everyone is an equal and deserves to be treated with respect and kindness.

The Basic Rules

Sex can be a complicated matter. The rules below are guidelines meant to help give mechanical weight to acts of eroticism, but they can hardly cover every possibility.

Arousal and Stimulation

In a Sexual adventure, there are two types of numbers that are important to keep track of: Arousal, and Stimulation

Arousal

Think of Arousal sort of like hit-points, but in reverse. A creature's arousal starts at 0, and increases each time it gains stimulation. A creature that starts it's turn at maximum arousal, gains the edging condition begins making saving throws to avoid climaxing.

Recovery Dice

Your arousal score is an indication of how close your character is at any moment to ripping off their clothes and fucking the first attractive thing they see. Your arousal maximum is calculated in a similar way to your hit points, using your Recovery Dice in place of your hit dice, as defined in the Sexual Histories section of this handbook.

Recovery Dice: 1 per level, as determined by your Sexual History.
Arousal Maximum at 1st Level: The maximum value of your Recovery Dice + your Constitution modifier
Arousal Maximum at higher Levels: Your Recovery Dice (or it's average, rounded up) + your Constitution modifier per level after 1st.

Each time you climax or complete a short rest, you may expend a number of Recovery Dice up to your proficiency bonus. For each Recovery Die spent in this way, you roll the die and add your Constitution modifier to it, reducing your arousal by an amount equal to the total. At the end of a long rest, you regain all spent Recovery Dice.

Stimulation

Stimulation is the sexual equivalent of damage. It follows the same basic rules as damage, except that rather than decreasing HP, stimulation increases Arousal. Stimulation comes in types the same way that damage does, and for the most part, these are the same elemental types as used for damage, just applied in a more arousing fashion

Soothing

Some spells and abilities can be used to reduce your current arousal in the form of Soothing. Soothing is the sexual equivalent of healing, and works in much the same way. Any spell or ability that can restore hit points through healing can also be used to reduce arousal through soothing.

Soothing cannot reduce your arousal below 0. If a spell or effect would reduce your arousal below zero, the remaining points of soothing are lost.

Numbing Points

Some spells and special abilities confer temporary hit points to a creature. Numbing Points are the sexual equivalent of temporary hit points; they are a buffer against stimulation, a pool of reduced sensation that reduce the stimulation you take.

When you have numbing points and receive stimulation, the numbing points are subtracted from the stimulation gained, and any leftover stimulation carries over to your arousal. For example, if you have 5 numbing points and gain 7 stimulation, you lose the numbing points and then gain 2 arousal

Numbing points can't be added together. If you have numbing points and receive more of them, you decide whether to keep the ones you have or to gain the new ones. For example, if a spell grants you 12 numbing points when you already have 10, you can have 12 or 10, not 22.

If your arousal is at it's maximum, receiving numbing points doesn't remove the edging condition, or prevent you from climaxing. They can still absorb stimulation directed at you while you're in that state, but only Soothing or Climax can reduce your arousal.

Unless a feature that grants you numbing points has a duration, they last until they're depleted or you finish a long rest.

Sexual Partners

For the purposes of this rulebook, a sexual partner is considered any creature you have targeted or been targeted by as part of a sexual advance within the last minute. An creature does not need to consent to be considered a sexual partner, however non-consenting partners add their Inhibition to AC and saving throws against unwanted Sexual Advances, and are likely to respond violently to these advances.

Inhibition and Consent

Inhibition represent's your character's mental fortitude against lewd acts and advances. Your Inhibition is equal to your choice of your base Intelligence, Wisdom, or Charisma modifier. You choose which ability to use during character creation and once this choice is made, it cannot be changed.

There are a number of features, effects and conditions that can alter your inhibition, but not the ability modifier it is based on. Features, effects, or conditions that affect your chosen ability modifier, on the other hand, do affect your inhibition. Some effects (or collection of effects) and cause your inhibition to become negative.

Your Inhibition is added to Your AC against any Sexual Advances your character does not consent to, and to saving throws made against unwanted Sexual Advances and Effects. Think of it as your proficiency at resisting unwanted sexual attention. A negative Inhibition reduces these amounts If an effect or condition causes you to be treated as a consenting partner, you do not gain any positive bonus from your Inhibition, but penalties from a negative Inhibition value still apply

Sexual Advances

While some Martial Advances can certainly be violent, it generally would not be right to call them "attacks". Instead, Sexual Advances refer to any action that increase a creature's arousal. Rather than dealing damage, Sexual Advances apply Stimulation.

Sexual Advances can take many forms, and is not limited to purely physical interactions. Spells and other magical effects are also common, as are persuasive words and displays of skill.

Martial Advance:

Similar to Attacks, Martial Advances involve making physical contact with your target in an arousal inducing way, and thus target AC + Inhibition.

When making a Martial Advance against a Target, you make an Martial Advance roll against your target's Inhibition, rolling a d20 and adding your relevant ability modifier, and proficiency bonus if applicable. If your Advance Strikes true, you roll the appropriate Stimulation dice for your method of Advance, increasing your target's arousal by the result + your strength score (or your dexterity score if the implement has the finesse).

Indirect Advance:

Indirect Advances include a much wider variety of actions, such as spells, aphrodisiacs, and even psionic abilities. Indirect Advances force your target to make a saving throw against a DC usually set by your class, or by the potency of the item you are using. The target's inhibition is added to these saving throws.

If your Advance Strikes true, you roll the appropriate Stimulation dice for your method of Advance, increasing your target's arousal by the result.

Skilled Advance:

At your DM's discretion, you may be able to use relevant skills such as persuasion, slight of hand, or performance to make an indirect advance without need of a spell or other ability.

Skilled Advances are a kind of indirect advance, and work much like any other skill check. They are either made against a set DC determined by your DM, or contested by your partner's own skill check. On a success the target gains an amount of stimulation as determined by the DM.

Sex and Concentration

Anyone who has ever had sex will tell you that it can be difficult to concentrate on anything else while pleasure and arousal are coursing through your body - and by all rights, this should mean that sexual advances would break concentration.

However, concentration as a mechanic is intended for combat, not sex, and it can ruin a lot of the fun of sex to have that kinky spell you were using on your partner end as soon as she begins eating you out. For this reason concentration works a little different where sex in involved.

- Gaining Stimulation does not trigger a concentration saving throw if the effect being concentrated on is a sexual advance.
- A creature must make a Concentration check each time it climaxes. The DC for this check is equal to 15 + the number of times the creature has climaxed in the past minute.
- A creature incapacitate due to climax can still maintain concentration on spells and effects

Sudden stimulation can still trigger a concentration saving throw in combat situations, and it is up to the play and the DM to decide if damage triggers a Concentration saving throw during sex.

Standard Conversions

It wouldn't make sense to limit sexual prowess to only those characters built using the character options provided in this handbook, so the guidelines outlined below can be used to convert combat mechanics from other sources into their sexual equivalent.

Rules of Thumb

Not all features and abilities can or should convert cleanly from combat to sexual encounters, but with a little creativity, most will convert just fine.

- Melee attacks become Direct Sexual Advances
- Spells and other effects become Indirect Sexual Advances.
- Damage becomes Stimulation , as shown on the Damage to Stimulation table below.
- The poisoned condition can be converted to either the intoxicated condition, or the hyperaroused condition, as Decided by your DM
- Whether a magic item deals damage or stimulation is defined when it is created, and cannot be changed.

It is important to note that these are only rules of thumb. Use your common sense, and discuss with your DM when questions arise.

Kinks and Limits

Vulnerabilities, Resistances, and Immunities can be converted either directly (such as an ice elemental being immune to cold stimulation) or inversely (such as a red dragon having a kink for fire stimulation), as determined by your DM. However, Kinks, Limits and Hard Limits can include more than just damage types. Work with your DM to determine what types of sexual advances your character might gain additional, limited, or even no stimulation from. Don't be that asshole who declares that your character is resistant or immune to every sexual advance.

Stimulation By Type

Type	Common Examples
Bludgeoning	Blunt physical stimulation such as the hard swat of a paddle or tthe sharp sting of a dominatrix's lash
Slashing	Sharp physical stimulation such as the claws of a bestial lover, or a hard blade traced your skin.
Piercing	The Sensation of sexual penetration, including the pounding of a hard erection, or the pressure of tight, wet hole.
Acid	Chemical stimulation through sensory oils, massage gels, and other topical substances.
Fire	The warmth of a heated oils, the sting of hot wax, or the dance of a gentle flame.
Cold	The sensation of ice cubes on the nipples or a chilled metal shaft inside you.
Lightning	The zap of an electrical shock, and the convulsions of muscle that come with it.
Poison	The overwhelming lust caused by going into heat, or arousal inducing drugs and aphrodisiacs.
Thunder	The thrum of an intense vibration, or arousal triggered by just the right tone of voice.
Psychic	Emotional or Mental stimulation experienced directly or primarily in the mind
Force	Stimulation applied by an intangible force such as magic, magnetism or gravity.
Necrotic	The erotic manipulation of life energies, such as a succubus feeding on your soul, or a healer filling you with vital energy.
Radiant	Stimulation of an ephemeral or indescribable nature, such as the angelic touch of a divine lover, or the glowing embrace of true love.

Edging and Climax

Even in cases where consent is questionable, sex is generally about pleasure: whether it is the goal of one partner, both, or the entire orgy, someone wants to get off and feel good. While there are of course those few sick perverts who consider hand-holding to be the peak of eroticism, for most, Climax is the ultimate satisfaction of a sexual encounter.

Reaching the Edge

Before a creature reaches climax, they generally enter a state called "Edging". Whenever you start your turn at maximum arousal, you gain the edging condition and must make a special saving throw, called a climax saving throw, to determine whether you fall over the edge into orgasm. Other times, spells or other effects may force a creature to make a climax saving throw immediately, without edging.

Edging

The edging condition reflects a state of near-climax, where the creature is overcome with lust, and unable to focus on anything else.

- An edged creature is Hyperaroused
- The creature must make a Climax Saving Throw at the start of each of it's turns to avoid Climaxing.
- The creature drops whatever it is holding and falls prone.
- The creature is stunned.
- Any successful Sexual Advances made against the creature automatically deal their maximum stimulation.

A creature who regains the edging condition within one round of ending the condition is considered to be continually edging, for the purposes of overstimulation.

Climax saving throws

Climax saving throws represent a creature's attempt to "hold the edge" or resist climaxing. To make a climax saving throw, roll a d20 and add your inhibition to the result. If the total is 15 or higher, you succeed. Otherwise, you fail. A success or failure has no effect by itself. On your third success, your arousal is reduced to 1 below it's maximum, you are no longer edging. On your third failure, you climax. The successes and failures don't need to be consecutive; keep track of both until you collect three of a kind. The number of both is reset to zero when your arousal is reduced below it's maximum.

Rolling 1 or 20. When you make a climax saving throw and roll a 1 on the d20, it counts as two failures. If you roll a 20 on the d20, your arousal is reduced to 1 below it's maximum, and you are no longer edging.

Stimulation at maximum arousal. If you gain any stimulation while at or above your arousal maximum, you immediately suffer a failed climax saving throw. If the stimulation is from a critical hit, you suffer two failures instead of one. If the stimulation equals or exceeds your arousal maximum, you instantly climax.

Effects of Climax.

When you Climax, the edging condition ends you were affected by it, and may expend a number of Recovery Dice up to your proficiency bonus, as described in the Arousal and Stimulation section on previous pages.

You are incapacitated for a number of rounds equal to the number of Recovery Dice spent, or until the end of your next turn if no Recovery Dice were spent.

While incapacitated in this way, a creature may use a free action at the start of each of it's turns to attempt to recover from climaxing by making constitution saving throw with a DC equal to 12 + the number of times you have climaxed in the last hour. On a success, the creature is no longer incapacitated.

Bad-Ending

Unending pleasure is not inherently a good thing, however, and under the right circumstances and end an adventurer's career as quickly as death, or an arrow to the knee. A character who has become so sexually overwhelmed that they cannot escape their situation or continue their adventure is considered "Bad-Ended". There are a variety of ways this can happen, but the most common sources of Bad-Ending are listed below:

- A edging creature who climaxes and doesn't have any recovery dice left to spend or any other way to reduce their arousal becomes locked into an endless loop of edging and climax, and is considered Bad-Ended.
- A creature who's maximum arousal is reduced to 0 or lower, can no longer reduce their arousal below it's maximum value, and is considered Bad-Ended.
- A creature who reaches 6 levels of overstimulation, instantly becomes Bad-Ended.
- A creature who is physically defeated and falls unconscious in the presence of sexually aggressive creatures, and has no hope of escape may be considered bad ended.
- A creature who is captured and impregnated by monsters, with no hope of escape, is generally considered to be Bad-Ended.

Much like death, and Bad-End is not necessarily permanent, and often not the end of a character's story. A creature who is Bad-Ended in the presence of it's allies might be restored with the help of soothing magic or potions. If a Bad-Ended character is captured or carried away by monsters, they might later be rescued by their allies, or even discovered and rescued by another adventuring party at a later date.

A Bad-End might also serve as the beginning of a new story. Bad-Ended heros might re-appear later as enemies, or even start a new adventure with the Defiled Hero background. It's really up to you and your DM what a Bad-End really means, and if your character has any chance of returning.

Overstimulation

Mortal (and even immortal) bodies can only handle so much sexual stimulation before their defences against lust and desire begin to break down entirely. Overstimulation works much like exhaustion, and is measured in six levels. The most common sources of overstimulated are listed below:

Multiple Climaxes

Some Situations can cause a creature to climax multiple times in quick succession. If a creature Climaxes while still incapacitated due to a previous climax, it gains the following effects, based on how many climaxes it has endured without recovering. In these cases, each climax also increases the number of rounds the creature is incapacitated by one.

- After two climaxes, the creature is Stunned, rather than incapacitated.
- After three climaxes, the creature is Paralysed rather than incapacitated.
- For each Climax after the third, a creature gains one level of Overstimulation.

Extended Edging

Even the most resolute creature can only ride the edge of orgasm for so long. A creature can remain edging for a number of hours equal to it's inhibition. After this point, the creature gains one level of overstimulation each hour that it remains edging.

Level	Effect
1	Creature becomes Intoxicated.
2	Creature becomes Hyperaroused.
3	Creature's Inhibition reduced to 0.
4	Creature becomes Infatuated by the source of overstimulation.
5	Creature gains the Nyphomanic Condition.
6	Creature is Bad-Ended.

If an already overstimulated creature suffers another effect that causes overstimulation, its current level of overstimulation increases by the amount specified in the effect's description. A creature suffers the effect of its current level of overstimulation as well as all lower levels. For example, a creature suffering level 2 overstimulation is both hyperaroused and intoxicated.

An effect that removes exhaustion also removes overstimulation, reducing its level as specified in the effect's description, with all overstimulation effects ending if a creature's overstimulation level is reduced below 1. Finishing a long rest reduces a creature's exhaustion level by 1, provided that the creature experiences no sexual stimulation while resting. In many cases, this requires the creature to be watched, bound or otherwise prevented from sexually stimulating themselves.

Sexual Conditions

There are a number of additional conditions that characters might encounter through the course of a sexually charged adventure. The following list details these conditions, as well as their effects

Denied

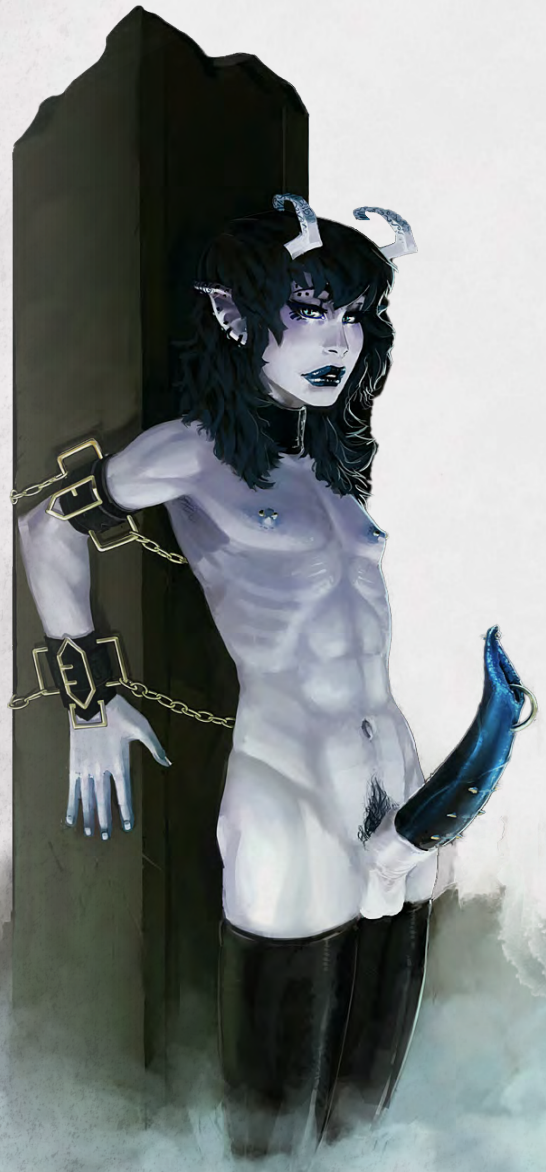

The Denied condition describes a creature who is being forcibly denied the release of Climax, But not a creature who simply has not climaxed in a long time.

- A Denied Creature cannot climax, regardless of it's climax saving throws

Engulfed

The engulfed condition represents situations where a creature has been swallowed, ensnared, or otherwise engulfed inside another creature while still alive.

- An engulfed creature occupies the same space as the creature that engulfed it, and has total cover. If the engulfing creature moves the engulfed creature moves with it.
- An engulfed creature cannot see or interact with the outside world, although it may still hear and produce muffled sound from within your the engulfing creature's body.
- An engulfed creature can still make attacks against the engulfing creature, which are made at advantage.

Hyperaroused

The Hyperaroused condition describes a creature who's sexual drive has been naturally or artificially increased, such as a creature that is in heat, or a creature affected by potent aphrodisiacs.

- A hyperaroused creature has disadvantage on saving throws or skill checks made to resist Indirect Advances.
- Martial Advances against a hyperaroused creature are made with advantage

Infatuated

The Infatuated condition sits somewhere between charmed and dominated, applying to creatures who find themselves eager to please another in ways they would normally never consider.

- An Infatuated creature considers the source of it's infatuation to be the most beautiful and arousing thing it has ever encountered
- The creature is charmed by the source of it's infatuation.
- An infatuated creature is considered a willing creature for the purposes of all Sexual Advances by the source of it's Infatuation and cannot benefit from a positive inhibition
- The infatuated creature has disadvantage to resist charisma checks made against it by the source of it's infatuation.
- The the infatuated creature treats any command or order given to it by the source of it's infatuation as a persuasion check.

Intoxicated

The Intoxicated condition describes a creature who's mental facilities have been reduced, such as a creature that is drunk or high.

- An Intoxicated creature has disadvantage on Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma Saving throws.

Nymphomanic

Nymphomania describes a creature who is overcome with sexual desire, and no longer has the force of will to resist their more primal urges.

- A nymphomanic Creature is Hyperaroused and Intoxicated
- A nymphomanic creature is considered a willing creature for the purposes of all Sexual Advances and cannot benefit from a positive inhibition.
- A nymphomanic creature has disadvantage on checks or saving throws not made as part of a sexual advance.
- On it's turn, a nymphomanic creature uses its movement to move towards the nearest creature it finds sexually attractive, or the most recent creature to make a sexual advance against it. It then makes a sexual advance against that creature, or against itself if no other creatures are in range.

Pregnancy

In the context of this rulebook, pregnancy refers to any situation where a creature is serving as the reproductive vessel of another creature. This includes being traditionally pregnant, gravid with eggs, or host to some alien parasite that seeks to reproduce within your womb.

Pregnancy is most common in females of any species, but under the right circumstances, male pregnancy can also occur, and some species have far more or far fewer sexes than just male and female.

Becoming Pregnant

Traditional Pregnancy: Traditional Pregnancy can occur anytime two members of comparable species engage in potentially reproductive sex (ie. Sex that could physically result in a pregnancy).

In these cases, the impregnating creature must make an Impregnation (constitution) Check with a DC equal to its 10 + the target's Constitution Modifier + the target's Proficiency Bonus. On a success, the target is impregnated, and will gain the Pregnant condition as suitable for it's race.

This check is made regardless of the childbearing intent of those involved.

Non-Traditional Pregnancy: Non-traditional pregnancy can occur between members of any race or species, regardless of sex, and is often enabled by magic or alien physiology.

In these cases, the targeted creature must succeed on a Constitution saving throw to resist the pregnancy. The DC for this saving throw is set by the spell or ability used to induce pregnancy, and the targeted creature may add their inhibition to the saving throw.

On a failure, the targeted creature becomes pregnant, as defined by the spell or ability used to induce pregnancy.

Fertility (and Virility)

Hyper-Fertility (or Virility): Hyper-fertility refers to creatures who are at the height of their natural fertility cycle, or otherwise more likely to become pregnant through traditional means. Impregnation checks made involving a Hyper-fertile Creature are made with advantage.

The most common instances of hyper-fertility are found in races who experience extended periods of heat or reproductive fertility, but spells and other effects can also cause a creature to become hyper-fertile.

Infertility: The infertile condition applies to creatures who cannot become pregnant or make another creature pregnant through traditional means. This includes creatures who are biologically infertile, but also creatures infertile due to trauma or magical means.

Impregnation checks made involving infertile Creatures automatically fail.

Contraceptives

There are a wide array of contraceptives available in the world of Syllara, some magical, and others mundane. Some of the most common are listed below, and their prices can be found on the Consumable items list further on in this chapter

Condom: A translucent sleeve of material used to prevent pregnancy. As an action before penetration, a creature may apply a condom to the cock of a willing or restrained creature. For the next 10 minutes, The DC for any impregnation check made using the cock becomes 25. After 10 minutes of use, the condom ceases to be effective for this purpose.

Condoms also make for useful survival gear. A condom can hold up to 2 litters of water or other liquid without bursting.

Oil of Impotence: A vial of contraceptive lubricant used to prevent pregnancy, As an action, a creature may apply a coat of personal lubricant to any natural implement. For the next 10 minutes any impregnation checks made involving the coated implement automatically fail. A vial contains enough oil for 1 application.

Potion of Infertility: Foul-smelling brew made of pungent herbs and unsavoury ingredients. Drinking a potion of infertility causes a creature to become infertile for the next 7 days

Beads of Prevention: A string of expensive enchanted beads meant to be worn or kept nearby during sex. When an attuned creature within 5 ft of the beads would be impregnated, the pregnancy instead fails, and one of the beads cracks and is turns grey. When all beads have turned grey, the item ceases to function. A string contains 10 beads.

Reproductive Compatibility

While there are a variety of items and spells that can be used to overcome such limitations, not all creatures are reproductively compatible with each other. The Reproductive Compatibility Chart provides a helpful, but frequently incomplete, resource for determining the compatibility of Intelligent creatures, based on their creature type or prominent features. When reading the be sure to take note of the following:

- The "◉" symbol denotes compatibility that can result in traditional pregnancy. These combinations frequently result in half-blood or hybrid offspring
- The "○" symbol denotes compatibility only by non-traditional pregnancy, such as oviposition or tentacle breeding. These combinations generally result in offspring of the same race as the paternal parent
- "Pure Humanoid" refers only to creatures who do not have a more complex creature type, or share the features of a creature type other than humanoid.
- Creatures with a mixture of creature types or features are generally treated as the most compatible of these types for the purpose of reproductive compatibility
- "Maternal" and "Paternal" parent are not necessarily connected to the sex or gender of a species, and refer only to which creature in a pairing carries the pregnancy to term.

This chart is intended to provide a useful rule of thumb, and exceptions most certainly exist. Because player Races frequently lack a creature type other than humanoid (even when an additional creature type should be obvious), use your best judgment when using this chart, and consult your DM if you are unsure where a creature or race falls.

Pregnancy and Term

The length of pregnancy can vary both by creature's race, and by the source of the pregnancy. As a general rule Non-traditional pregnancies have terms of only a few days, or even hours, while Traditional pregnancies las much longer. A creature who is visibly pregnant, or far enough along to suffer noticeable side effects, gains the following effects

- A Pregnant Creature has disadvantage on Strength And Dexterity Saving throws
- Upon completing a short or long rest, a pregnant creature must succeed on a DC 15 Constitution Saving throw or be poisoned for 1d4 hours.
- Attacks made against a pregnant creature score a critical hit on a roll of 18-20
- A pregnant creature that is subject to a critical hit must succeed on a Constitution saving throw with a DC equal to the damage taken, or the pregnancy is terminated.

Sexual Histories

While most creatures have a natural drive for sex, not all of them have the same degree of experience with it. Sexual histories are similar to backgrounds, in that they represent your character's general life experience, and provide various proficiencies and other benefits.

However, sexual histories specifically describe the sexual experience your character starts with, and are chosen in addition to your background.

Devoted Partner

You aren't inexperienced in sex, but your experience is strictly with those you share a strong relationship with, such as a spouse, fiancé, or close-nit polycule.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d8
- You are proficient with your natural implements, and gain proficiency with up to 4 artificial implements of your choice.
- You may start with up to 2 fetishes of your choice, excluding the following: Anonymist, Street Whore, and Swinger
- You start with an Aftercare Pack
- Attempts to seduce you are made at disadvantage while your monogamous partner is present, or you are wearing a token of the bond you share with them.

Erotic Professional

You have made a living selling your sexual services, and are well versed in a variety of techniques and pleasures.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d12
- You are proficient with your natural implements, and gain proficiency with up to 8 artificial implements of your choice.
- You start with up to 3 fetishes of your choice.
- You start with a Harlots pack or Dominant's pack
- You always add your proficiency bonus to checks made to seduce other creatures. Regardless of the type of check, or any conditions or features affecting you or the target.

Experienced Kinkster

You are well versed not just in sex, but in a variety of kinks and fetishes, frequently exploring new ways to enjoy yourself.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d10
- You are proficient with your natural implements, and gain proficiency with up to 8 artificial implements of your choice.
- You start with access to 6 fetishes of your choice, but may only benefit from 3 of these fetishes at one time.
- You Start with a Dominant's pack, a Rigger's pack, or a Sadist's Pack
- Each time you complete a long rest, you may change which of your fetishes to benefit from.
- If you spend at least 10 minutes observing a creature, you can determine if they share any of your sexual vulnerabilities or fetishes.

Modest Lover

Your sexual experience is about average for someone your age - for getter or worse.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d8
- You are proficient with your natural implements, and gain proficiency with up to 4 artificial implements of your choice.
- You may start with 1 fetish of your choice
- You may start with a Self Pleasure pack.
- Once between long rests, when you make a sexual advance, or a saving throw against a sexual advance, you can choose to roll an additional d20. You can choose to do so after you roll the die, but before the outcome is determined. You choose which of the d20s is used for the attack roll, ability check, or saving throw.

Promiscuous

Your sexual experience is wide and varied, having shared yourself with a variety of loose partners, perhaps even at the same time.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d8
- You are proficient with your natural implements, and gain proficiency with up to 6 artificial implements of your choice.
- You may start with up to 3 fetishes of your choice.
- You Start with a Dominant's pack, a Harlot's pack, or a Self-Pleasure Pack.
- You have advantage on insight checks made to determine a creature's sexual alignment or preferences.

Strictly Vanilla

You have had sex. But never anything kinky. That would be weird. ...Right?

- Your Recovery Dice is a d6
- You are proficient with your only your reproductive natural implements, but gain proficiency with up to 2 artificial implements of your choice.
- You start with no fetishes
- You may start with a Self Pleasure pack.
- You have disadvantage on insight checks to determine the sexual preferences of other creatures.
- When gaining stimulation from unusual or unfamiliar sources, such as tentacles or elemental effects, you may subtract your inhibition from the stimulation dealt.

Virgin

Either from lack of opportunity, interest, or just because you have been too busy adventuring to pop your metaphorical goodberry. As a virgin, you gain the following:

- Your Recovery Dice is a d6
- You are not considered proficient in your own natural implements (at least not for the purpose of pleasuring others), but may choose one artificial implement of your choice to gain proficiency in
- You may start with one of the following fetishes: Chaste Onlooker, Edge Puppet, or Voyeur.
- You may start with a Self Pleasure pack.
- When gaining stimulation from unusual or unfamiliar sources, such as tentacles or elemental effects, you may subtract your inhibition from the stimulation dealt.
- When a creature attempts to seduce or charm you through subtle or inconspicuous means, you may make an insight check in place of your AC or saving throw. On a failure, you do not recognize the attempted seduction and are immune to it's effects.

Willingly Celibate

You have made the active choice to remain chaste and celibate, eschewing sexual intercourse for personal, cultural, or religious reasons.

- Your Recovery Dice is a d6
- You are not considered proficient in your own natural implements (at least not for the purpose of pleasuring others), or in any artificial implements
- You may start with one of the following fetishes: Chaste Onlooker or Edge Puppet.
- You Start with an Aftercare pack or a Self-Pleasure pack.
- You have advantage on saving throws made against the hyperaroused condition and attempts to seduce you are made at disadvantage.

Sexual Experience

Sexual experience can be tracked using the same rules for experience earned from combat or other situations, and may be combined with other forms of experience when calculating your character's level. As a general rule, sexually satisfying another creature, or surviving a sexual encounter should provide an equivalent amount of experience to defeating the same creature in combat, or surviving a dangerous fight.

However, sexual experience also represents a growing familiarity with sexual situations, and may be helpful to track separately as well. Gaining sexual experience does not always mean that your sexual history will change - for example, a virgin that participates indirectly in a sexual encounters may still remain a virgin, despite gaining sexual experience - but it does open up additional options for your sexual history, as shown on the table below.

Sexual Experience

Experience Points	Sexual Histories Available
0 - 300	Virgin, Willingly Celibate
900 - 2,700	Devoted Partner, Promiscuous
6,500 - 14,000	Experienced Kinkster
23,000 +	Erotic Professional

If you wish to change your character's sexual history, you can do so any time your character gains a level, based on their current amount of sexual experience. If your new sexual history uses a different Recovery Dice than your old one, this change applies only to arousal maximum gained from the moment you gain the new sexual history onwards.

Monsters and NPCs

Weather you are seducing a dragon, or trying to sex up a bandit captain, it's important for a DM know what sexual proficiency the creatures and characters a player will encounter might have. The following rules of thumb can be applied to Monsters, NPCs, and other creatures controlled by the DM:

- Monsters or NPCs have an Recovery Dice value equal to their hit dice value, and a maximum arousal equal to their hit point maximum.
- Most creatures are always considered proficient with their own natural implements, unless they are virgins, and the stimulation of these implements should be the same as the damage of their natural weapon attacks, if any.
- Humanoids can be assumed proficient in any artificial implement they are wielding. It is best to equip such creatures with implements that deal stimulation dice of a similar value to damage dice of their normally equipped weapons.
- Constructs are generally purpose built, and proficient only with implements they were designed to wield.

Keep in mind that these are only rules of thumb. The DM can always provide exceptions, and is encouraged to use their best judgment when equipping potential enemies and partners with sexual implements. For example, your DM may prefer to assign a specific sexual history to non-player characters, in place of the rules outlined above.

Bestiathrope

Jonah Sheppard did not consider himself a good man - not that he didn't try. If he could make it through life without causing anyone anymore trouble, he would. If he could avoid killing folks what didn't deserve to die, he'd have done that too. But sadly, that just wasn't the way of things.

16 years ago, Jonah had been forced into an act no man should have to bear - a sin that would haunt him the rest of his life. Jonah Sheppard had killed his own brother in cold blood. Thomas had thrown in his lot with the wrong folks. Folks who had taken advantage of the scrawny young man who never seemed fit for life out in the west. People who, at the end of the day, could hardly be called people to begin with. They promised his brother strength, kinship, a chance at the family their father had always denied him - and Thomas had listened. Walked right into the wolves den like a lamb to the slaughter.

Only the wolves hadn't killed his brother; they had done worse. By the time Jonah tracked down the thing that had once been his brother, it had killed 37 people, most of them women and children. What was left of the bodies wasn't half recognizable after the feeding. Jonah had hoped to save Thomas from the wolves, but in the end, there wasn't anything left of his brother. Just a rabbid dog foaming at the mouth. Two silver bullets had put the beast down, but not without scars. There were 6 of the things left now and once he had put down the other 5, the last round in his gun would end the curse for good.

Jonah Sheppard did not consider himself a good man. But if he was damned already, he'd rather die a man than a beast.

Shifter vs Bestiathrope

Within a world of magic, there are countless forms of shapeshifter, some even so similar to bestiathropes as to called their kin. But the difference between a bestiathrope and a common shifter is severe. For most shapeshifters, transformation is a gift - a powerful adaptation which allows them to hunt or survive. For the Bestiathrope, however, it is unmistakably a curse. The transformation of a bestiathrope is wild, extreme, and often painful. More importantly, it is something feral that they must at all times struggle to control - especially under the light of the moon.

Call of The Moon

In the Erie light of the moon, it is common to find only the cool, calmness of night, or the fear of the shadowy darkness. For a bestiathrope, however, the moon brings with it only the endless battle against their most animalistic urges and desires. While so many others change their form in moment of their choosing, even the most well mastered Bestiathrope can never hope to gain full control over their own transformation.

Be they lycanthrope, were-bear, or spider-cursed, Beastiathropes are subject to powerful cravings and animalistic desires that only grow stronger as the moon rises. For those weak of will, the curse often becomes an overbearing force that drives them into feral rage with each transformation. Some become violent killers seeking only to feed on living flesh, while others find themselves in a frenzy of more sexual nature, mindlessly breeding with anything that moves. Whatever form they take, the primal instincts of an animal are all that remain when the moon glows high overhead.

It is only those with the will of an adventurer who can hope to overcome this curse, perhaps even turning it to their own advantage. For those few strong enough to control their feral instincts, their bestial curse be comes a tool and a weapon; but never one to be welded without risk. With the rising of the moon by which they first turned, even the most powerful adventurers struggle to hold themselves in check.

Feared and Hated

Even held tightly in check, bestiathropy is no blessing. Those afflicted by the curse live under constant threat of their own bestial desires, and under even more constant suspicion. Few communities dare to suffer a Bestiathrope within their midst, for fear of death and destruction those bearing the curse can bring. Worse still is the threat that one Bestiathrope might become more: turning those they fail to kill before the first full moon. While cases of such Bestiathrope plagues are rare, they are not without merit, and to live among others as a beastiathrope is to live in constat fear of discovery and persecution.

Instead, many Bestiathropes - or at least many among those few who can resist their bestial instincts - choose to seek the life of a wandering adventurer; travelling from one place to the next and never remaining in any settlement for more that a few nights. For so many, it is simply safer this way: both for themselves, and for those they might hurt should their restraint lapse.

For others, safety is found in numbers, and seeking a pack or herd of their own is the best way they hope to survive. Most such communities are content enough to be left alone, but there are those who seek revenge for being hunted, and It is these settlements which give rise to legends of cursed villages and dens of werewolves seeking to ever increase their number. In reality, though, even such tribes are seldom so indiscriminate in those they would turn; as Bestiathropes too weak to control their own instincts are of no more use to the tribe than to the villages from which they might be snatched.

Both Hunters and Hunted

Bestiathrope communities are, in actuality, quite varied in nature, because Bestiathropes themselves can span the whole range of natural beasts. While a were-tiger will never sire a were-rat, nor will a were-raven beget a were-bear, there seems to be a never-ending list of different bestiathropies to encounter.

Not all Bestiathropes are predators. Although less iconic, were-rabbits and were-fauns are as common to encounter in some places as were-wolves - Perhaps even more so, considering the proclivity of were-wolves to kill and eat those they encounter before they might be turned. Just like their animal counterparts, bestiathropes of more prey-like nature often form larger communities, and frequently find their feral instincts entirely overwhelmed with the desire to breed. Scavengers too are not unheard of, and there are grotesque tales of men awakening in the light of day to find they have been greedily devouring the rotten carcass of some ill-fated beast

Nor are all bestiathropes mammals, or even creatures native to the land alone. Were-sharks are sometimes found terrorizing costal communities, and were-ravens are known to exist in dark places such as Ravenloft. Perhaps most horrific of all are the varieties of insectoid bestiathropes which supposedly hail from Athas and other worlds of the most hostile nature. It is said that the painful transformations of these were-insects is akin to violently hatching out of one's own skin.

In some rare and forgotten places, such as the depths of the feywild, it is rumoured that more rare forms of bestiathropy may exist: blink dogs, displacer beasts, even owlbears or enormous phase spiders. These reports are questionable, however, due to the nature of the feywild and it's myriad of shapeshifting tricksters.

Types of bestiathropy

Not all expressions of bestiathropy are the same, even among those cursed with the nature of the same beast. As the moon itself waxes and wanes, so to does it's influence over the form of the curse. A bestiathrope born beneath a full moon will bear a different form of the curse than one born beneath a crescent or new moon. As a general rule of thumb, there are three expressions which a bestiathropes' curse might take:

Perhaps the most rare form of bestiathropy is the "Feralmoon" Those bestiathropes who's curse is associated with the full moon appear generally human, with only vaguely animalistic traits (such as catlike eyes or a wolfish grin and extended canines) added to their otherwise normal appearance. However, the transformation of these bestiathropes is more akin to that of a druid, shamelessly shifting into the feral form of an animal, while retaining all of their mental faculties.

"Newmoon" bestiathropes vary wildly in their commonality, and undergo the height of their transformations on the nights of their namesake. In many regions, they are more rare than their Feralmoon cousins, but in other parts of the world entire communities of such bestiathropes may live and trade openly with other races. The transformation of these bestiathropes is less apparent than most, because even while not transformed, Newmoons hold a hybrid appearance not unlike that of a tabaxi or gnoll. Because of this they are easily recognized and hunted down in places where they are not welcome. When a Newmoon transforms, it is a more internal thing, giving over a portion of their humanity to the feral instincts and animalistic nature of their associated beast. Their already beast-like features often grow more intense, but the outward transformation is not so extreme as that of other bestiathropes.

By far the most common expression of the disease is referred to as the "Halfmoon" Those not turned beneath the light of a full moon or the shadow of a moonless sky much the same as Feralmoons, although they often sport features more wild subtleties in their vaguely bestial features. The transformation of such bestiathropes is violent and monstrous, resulting in a form that is neither beast, nor man, but something in between. The exact form of a Halfmoon's transformation can vary between a nearly feral thing moving uncannily on it's hind legs, to an apparently human build overtaken by thick fur or scales and a set of vicious claws. As a general rule, the closer a Halfmoon's turning was to the full moon, the more monstrous and beast-like their transformation will be.

Origins of Bestiathropy

It is difficult to pinpoint the precise origins of bestiathropy. By most reports, they seem to predate similarly iconic creatures such as the ancient vampires or Ravenloft. Similarly, bestiathropes can be found the world over, in all different forms.

Some scholars suggest that the many curses of Bestiathropy represent a form of possession by primal and bestial spirits - spirits powerful enough to change the very form of those they posses. By this means, it is said that such spirits can overcome the barrier between the etherial plane and our own, even calling more such spirits to posses those to whom they spread the curse.

Others suspect that bestiathropy may be some for of infectious disease. The propose that bestiathropy, in all it's forms, is a magically active, but still purely physical, ailment of the blood which could be cured, should the right medical treatments be found. Some success has been found in this endeavour, with certain wolvesbane based potions appearing to remove the disease, so long as they are administered before the rise of the first full moon.

Yet another belief supposes that bestiathropy might have first resulted when ancient druids broke the ancestral taboo and bore children while transformed into animals. Modern attempts to... prove this theory have been inconclusive, with the resulting children rarely surviving long enough to take their first breath. Proponents of this theory, however, are quick to suggest the assistance of powerful fertility magics among the ancient druids.

By far the most commonly accepted theory, however is that bestiathropy in all it's myriad forms can be traced back the cruel transformation magics of a long forgotten archfey. Indeed, this idea appears to be supported by the fey themselves, if only by opaque riddles and suggestive half-truths. It is hard to say for certain how much truth there is to be found in the words of these fey, but it is worth nothing that similar curses are found in fairy tales the world over.

Spreading the Curse

While common folk wisdom would suggest that lycanthropy and other forms of the bestiathropy can be transmitted through something as simple as a claw-mark, reality is not so fearful. Bestiathropy is transmitted similarly to a blood disease. While it is certainly possible for any open wound, such as a claw mark, to serve as a site of infection - especially if the bestiathrope has been injured, and is covered in it's own blood, simply being cut or scratched by a werewolf's claw is not itself enough to spread the curse.

Instead, the disease can only be spread by direct contact with the blood, saliva, or sexual fluids - and even then, only if such fluids make it inside the victim's bloodstream by way of an open wound, or direct sexual contact. Much like that of a rabid dog, the bite of a bestiathrope is often the most certain way to contract the curse. Less common are sexual encounters with the transformed. Which marks the second and most important misconception about bestiathropy.

Bestiathropy is transmissible only when the curse is at it's strongest: specifically, while the bestiathrope is transformed under the moon of it's own turning. It is only for three days each month that any given bestiathrope is contiguous; which is why so many lycanthropes, for example, transform only during the full moon. Even children born of bestiathropes, the same lunar phase of their parent's or ancestor's turning generally (although not always) correlates to the greatest power of their curse, and when it can be transmitted to others outside the family.

Because of all this, it is far more rare than most people suspect for an survivor of a bestiathrope attack to contract the disease. And for the same reasons, a bestiathrope can safely have sex on all but their most ferocious nights without passing on the curse.

Playing a Bestiathrope

When playing a bestiathrope, consider first and foremost the way their bestial nature has affected their interactions with the world around them. Even those who can hide in plain sight among the common travellers, traders and townsfolk of a city are invariably driven in some way by their more animalistic nature. Think about what specific animal traits or instincts your character may have inherited from their bestial kin, and how those elements might affect their behaviour in subtle, or not so subtle ways.

Ask yourself how the barely controlled nature of curse impacts their identity. Do they struggle with this inner beast, using shear force of will to suppress their feral urges? Or do they embrace their animal instincts, revelling in the thrill of their transformation. Remember that bestiathropes who can control their transformations at all are most frequently the exception, rather than the rule.

Keep in mind that different communities will react to bestiathropy with various mixes of fear and awe, wile others might even be accepting. Discuss with your DM what to expect from common folk in you campaign setting, and how secretive you will need to be about your curse, and any bestial activities you pursue. A werewolf in shadowy Ravenloft is likely to be far more feared and hunted than in the lands of Ebberon, where shifters are well known.

Bestiathrope Names

Besitathropes born among other races, or turned after birth share the naming conventions of their parents, But those born among bestiathrope tribes often carry more animalistic names:

Male Names. Blackfoot, Bramblethorn, Cleverpaw, Knifeclaw, Longfang, Bloodtalon, Stronghorn

Female Names. Airazor, Daykeeper, Flowermane, Moonsong, Silverpaw, Skydancer, Wildhoof

Bestiathrope Traits

Whether through birth, or bite or curse, you carry the, blood of the beastiathrope, and gain the following traits.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 1

Age. Though often cut short due to violence, the natural life-span of a bestiathrope is longer than that of most humans at roughly 500 years.

Size. Although frequently larger than their un-cursed kin relatives, bestiathropes tend towards the same range of height as normal humans. Your size is medium

Speed. Beastiathropy grants you no additional speed or agility except while transformed. Your speed is 30 feet.

Alignment. Despite unfounded rumours to the contrary, bestiathropes have no innate leaning towards evil. However, they most frequently favor chaotic alignments over lawful ones.

Bestial Blood. The beast who's blood is woven into your curse defines much of how it affects you. Choose a nonmagical beast of CR of 1 or lower from the miscellaneous creatures section of the monster manual (pg 317-341). You gain one natural melee weapon of your choice from this beast, as well as any of this beast's special senses, such as darkvision, blindsight, or tremorsense. You do not gain any multi-attack actions from this trait, nor do you gain the beasts bonus to attack rolls with your chosen weapon.

Bestial Instincts. Channeling the beast within, you have proficiency in one of the following skills of your choice: Acrobatics, Athletics, Intimidation, Perception, or Survival.

Regeneration The curse that afflicts you also imparts a restorative gift. While transformed as per the transformation granted by your subrace, and below half your maximum hit points, you regain a number of hit points at the start of each of your turns equal to your proficiency bonus. Your severed body members (fingers, legs, tail, and so on), if any, are restored each time you complete a long rest.

Lunar Transformation. The light of a full moon causes your bestial instincts to go into overdrive, forcing transformation upon you. If you enter or begin your turn within an area of direct moonlight, you must immediately make a wisdom saving throw, with a DC equal to 15 + your proficiency bonus. You may choose to fail this saving throw. On a failure, you use your bonus action to transform, as per the transformation granted by your subrace, and cannot willingly end your transformation. On a success, you are immune to this effect for the next hour.

While transformed in this way, you have disadvantage on intelligence and wisdom saving throws, and must use your reaction to make an attack of opportunity against any creature who attacks you or moves out of your reach, even if the triggering target is not hostile.

Silver Aversion. Your body is weakened by the very presence of silver. You have vulnerability to damage from silvered weapons, and your regeneration trait cannot restore damage caused by these weapons. Each turn you remain in contact with silver, you take 1d6 acid damage, and your regeneration trait fails to function

Waxing Hunger. Once each month, for the three days surrounding the moon of your turning (or that of bestiathrope family line), your bestial nature gains stronger hold, making difficult to identify friend from foe. During this period, you have disadvantage on saving throws to resist the effects of your lunar affliction racial trait,

Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and one other language of your choice

Non-Human Bestiathropes

Humans are not the only race susceptible to the curse of bestiathropy, and adventuerers of any race might be born with or exposed to the lunar curse along their adventures.

You can find rules for creating one of these hybrid bestiathropes in the Backgrounds section of this handbook, but talk with your DM before doing so. While the Mark of the Beast background provided in that section includes downsides to counter the addition of concubi racial traits, it may still be more powerful than your DM is comfortable with.

Feralmoon

Either gifted or cursed to transform truely into the beast of their heritage, Feralblood bestiathropes hold themselves in high regard, even as others of their kin shun their primitive nature.

Feral Transformation. As a bonus action on your turn, you may take the form of beast associated with your bestial blood racial trait. While transformed in this way your game statistics are replaced by the statistics of the creature, though you retain your alignment and Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma scores. You also retain all of your skill and saving throw proficiencies, in addition to gaining those of the creature. If the creature has the same proficiency as you, and the bonus listed in its statistics is higher than yours, use the creature's bonus in place of yours.

You retain your normal hit points while transformed in this way, as well as the benefit of any features from your class, race, or other source and can use them, provided that your new form is physically capable of doing so. You can't use any special senses you have (for example, darkvision) unless your new form also has that sense. You can only speak if the creature can normally speak.

When you transform, you choose whether your equipment falls to the ground, merges into the new form, or is worn by it. Worn equipment functions as normal. The DM determines whether it is practical for the new form to wear a piece of equipment, based on the creature's shape and size. Your equipment doesn't change shape or size to match the new form, and any equipment that the new form can't wear must either fall to the ground or merge into your new form. Equipment that merges has no effect in that state.

This transformation lasts for 1 hour, or until you choose to end it as an action on your turn.

Halfmoon

The most common form of bestathrope, halfbloods have only faintly animal-like features - such the predatory grin of the wolf, or the wide eyes of a doe - but are able to transform readily between a humanoid form and something more monstrous.

Monstrous Transformation. As a bonus action on your turn, you may take a monstrous hybrid form of the beast associated with your bestial blood racial trait, gaining the following traits:

- You gain any additional movement speeds available to your associated beast, such as climb, swim or fly speeds. If your associated beast has no such additional movement speeds, your speed instead increases to 60 ft.
- You gain an additional bonus to your natural weapon attacks equal to half your proficiency bonus (minimum of one), and the damage of your natural weapon attacks increases by the same amount
- You have advantage on survival and perception checks made using any special senses granted by your bestial blood racial trait.

This transformation lasts for 1 hour, or until you choose to end it as an action on your turn.

Newmoon

Exclusively the children of other bestiathropes, fullbloods are true hybrids between man and beast, sporting fur, scales, tails and maws. Their transformations are more subtle than most, simply giving themselves over to the instincts of their more bestial selves in return for the animalistic understanding of such instincts.

Hybrid Form. Your bestial nature is clear for all to see, and cannot be hidden without substantial disguise. You you gain a climb, dig, fly, or swim speed equal to your base speed, as appropriate for your associated beast, or your base speed increases to 40 ft if none of these would be appropriate.

Additionally, you have advantage on survival and perception checks made while in a natural environment suited to your associated beast.

Subtle Transformation. As a bonus action on your turn, you may surrender to your more bestial urges, gaining the following traits:

- You gain an additional bonus to your natural weapon attacks equal to half your proficiency bonus, and the damage of your natural weapon attacks increases by the same amount
- You are affected as if by the Speak with Animals spell, and have advantage on persuasion checks made against natural beasts.
- You gain the Hyperaroused condition, and can identify hyperaroused or nyphomanic creatures by scent alone.

This transformation lasts for 1 hour, or until you choose to end it as an action on your turn.

Concubi

The Sexual Vampire

Lust was a double-edged sword for concubi like Vexera; a curse of a passionate nature, leaving them either a husk of their former self, or reborn as irresistible sexual vampires. For Vex, the hunger was an affliction she was happy to live with - a burning desire that she was grateful to have, so vastly different from the plain creature she had been before - but she had watched others that were not so lucky. Unable to fulfil the temptation that made up the very nature of their being, her twin brother had perished a few years after their curse first awakened. Now it was up to her to live well enough for the both of them.

She glanced back at her latest 'victim', still blissfully dreaming of their encounter. The boy exhausted, but alive. Returning to stare at herself in the floor-length mirror at the foot of the bed, she wove a skilful illusion down her body to hide the tail that snuck out from the base of her spine, and shift the hue of her skin to something more "human". She probably could have passed as a teifling if she were so inclined, but from what she had overheard downstairs those weren't particularly well liked in these parts either. Better to play it safe, and move on to the next town before rumors started to spread. She had been down that road before. People were not often kind to soul-sucking sex vampires.

Stories and Legends

Legends of Succubi and Incubi have circulated for longer than mankind has had a word for sin: Tales of cruel demons that feed on mortal the souls unrepentant sex, or lustful spirits who violate the bodies of the pure while sleep. Wherever you go, every culture seems to have stories of seductive fiends eager to do harm to mortal and immortal souls alike.

In many cases, these stories exist purely as cautionary tales, or as convenient explanations for inconvenient truths. But they are not entirely without precedent. There are lustful creatures out there, eager to feed on the sexual energies of others. Hungry devils who survive by seducing those around them. As the saying goes: even the strangest myth contains a mote of truth.

Cursed Affliction

Concubi are not quite the lecherous monsters described in books, or whispered of in hushed tones. While Concubi do feed on sex, and the energies of climactic release, they are not necessarily fiends who prey on the unwilling. Most concubi are otherwise regular people afflicted with an ancient and lecherous blood curse. Not only are they afflicted with an insatiable drive for sex, but Concubi must regularly feed on the pleasure of others simply to stay alive.

The ancient curse that results in concubi appears to be most common among humans - which is little surprise considering their well known penchant for fucking anything that moves - but long ago began to spread through other races as well. Concubi are frequently infertile, but their unquenchable thirst for sex means that those who are not waste little time producing children, and often do not remain in one place long enough to raise them.

Instead, most concubi are raised by un-afflicted parents, who may or may not know the true nature of their mysteriously seductive lover. Indeed, many Concubi only discover their curse in adolescence, when their ever-growing libido lures them into their first sexual experience. At this point, their sexual hunger takes over, and their sexual hunger takes over. The curse only marks a concubi forever after their first feeding, branding them with a glowing sigil of perversion.

Repressed concubi who attempt to resist their carnal appetites quickly fall prey to the fatigue of malnutrition. Each day that the afflicted goes without feeding, their supernatural beauty begins to fade, and their body weakens. Many Concubi die of starvation at a relatively young age, never understanding the source of their withering fatigue.

Branded By Lust

Beyond the insatiable hunger for sex in all it's forms, each concubi develops a unique sigil, called a Lustbrand, upon their first feeding. This glowing mark is impossible to conceal, and glows even through clothing or armor when they are aroused - which is almost always. Most lustbrands appear on or surrounding the genitals, but other manifestations have been noted, such as collar-like markings around the neck, or a stamp of perverse runes along the lower back.

Regardless of their location or appearance, Lustbrands carry with them potent sexual magic, enslaving those they mark to specific desires or sexual obsessions. Often, the nature of a Concubi's Lustbrand is more defining of their lives than their need for sex itself. Forcing them to pursue perverse displays of public sex, or transforming them into bestial sexual predators at inopportune moments. It is these marks, more than simple hunger that drive so many Concubi to become adventurers.

Origins of Sin

The exact origin of Concubi is lost to time. By some accounts, the sinful curse is the result of humans breeding with infernal creatures such as erinyes and succubi, or the result of ancient warlocks foolish enough to offer their wombs to incubi. Others suggest that the concubi are more closely related to vampires; pointing out that their absolute reliance on sex as sustenance is more akin to the blood-hunger of such creatures. More obscure legends tell of an ancient wellspring of sexual magic from which the first concubi born, already tainted by their sinful desires and in service to some unknowable force of great lust.

Whatever the truth, Concubi have spread widely in the untold millennia since they first appeared - thanks in no small part to their promiscuous nature. It is rare for concubi to limit themselves to a single lover, and while they are frequently infertile, the shear number of sexual encounters a single concubi might have in their life easily makes up for this infertility. Pureblood Concubi are still said to be a cursed form of humanity, but the affliction has hardly been contained to a single race.

Whorish Wanderers

A Concubi's need for constant sex, often far more than a single partner could hope to provide, frequently labels them as social pariahs. It is not uncommon for a Concubi's first sexual partner not to survive the encounter, leading the Concubi to become feared or hated within their community. Such outcasts rarely stay put - and as their hunger drives them to feed, concubi more often find themselves in bed with partners they will never see again.

This in turn leads to more concubi children scattered knowingly or unknowingly across the path of their travels, left to discover their true nature in the same unfortunate way. Even parents aware of their Lover's nature frequently hide it from their children - unsure just how real the curse might be, and unwilling to have their child scorned from the moment of their birth.

Even in communities where sex work is commonplace Concubi can struggle to build a stable life. Branded as sexual vampires, they also carry an aura of unnatural beauty and charisma which can lead to myriads of affairs. Their inconcealable Lustbrand makes it nearly impossible for Concubi to hide their nature from others for long, and it is not uncommon for concubi to be specifically targeted by slavers, who can sell them into at a premium to clients with specific purposes in mind. In most cases, it is easier for a Concubi to move from place to place before rumours and vendettas can spread.

Concubi in the Dungeon

Within The Lost Realm of Paradisium, Concubi hold a different role. All creatures born within this ancient prison are tainted by the lustful power of The Mistress, and invariably manifest as Concubi upon their coming of age. Without the stigma of other cultures, Concubi - even those not native to the realm - are welcomed as a natural and important part of society.

In many parts of Paradisium, the appearance of a Lustbrand is actually considered a right of passage, and the first step into true adulthood. So much so, that outsiders born without the curse will sometimes seek out lustbrands of their own as a way to gain further acceptance within a community.

Because of this acceptance, the fabled realm of carnal pleasures is often treated as the only true safe-haven for Concubi, and many cursed individuals seek it out in hopes of finding somewhere they might belong. Those who find it are welcomed with open arms; but many die of persecution or even starvation in their search. The Dungeon is not an easy place to find, and searching for the birthplace of sin is sure to draw the attention of those who would hunt concubi for sport.

Physical Appearance

Because Concubi can be born of any race, it can be difficult to assemble a true list of universal traits. The appearance of a Concubi can vary wildly from race to race, and even form individual to individual, with some concubi even exhibiting traits such as horns or slender tails which are not normally present among their parent race. Many concubi also have some form of strangeness to their eyes. This may take the form of anything from an unusual or impossible hue in their irises, to a twisting, swirling pattern that pulses and glows under careful observation.

This said, Concubi are invariably cursed with a supernatural degree of beauty and perfection. They do not scar or develop blemishes the way other creatures so often do, and even covered head to toe in absolute filth, a Concubi will still somehow exude an aura of sexual intensity that makes them difficult to ignore. This supernatural sense of surreal perfection can give concubi an uncanny appearance, and is often the first clue that a child has been born of Concubi lineage, with more exotic traits only developing much later in life, after the child's first sexual encounter.

Those afflicted with the curse are also frequently hermaphroditic; bearing functional sets of both male and female sexual organs. While this trait is not universal, and hardly unique to concubi, it is common enough among concubi that many children born this way are abandoned at birth for fear of the curse they may carry.

Playing a Concubi

There are few things that define a Concubi more than their need for sex and the nature of their lustbrand. When creating your Concubi, think about where they are from, and how those two things have affected their lives. Did they grow up knowing their heritage, and the curse that would await them the first time they had sex? Or did they live their lives unaware until a terrible and scarring moment? Do they even know what they are, or the nature of their personal curse? Or are they still struggling to understand the powerful urges and irresistible compulsions they experience when the strange sigil they bear begins to glow?

If your Concubi is native to Paradisium, what do they know of the outside world, and the harshness with which it treats their kind? And if not, how have they dealt with that mix of lust and scorn? Do they spurn the attention of others, attempting to fight who they are? Or do they simply embrace their nature, and risk the wrath of those who call it sin? Each Concubi is different, and especially the nature of their lustbrand can provide all manner of complications to their every day life.

Consider Not just your character's morals, but their station in life. Are they a lowly whore, sold into slavery at a young age? Or a Noble heir, who quietly steals peasants off the streets to satiate their unquenchable need? Perhaps they have carved out a niche as the owner of a prevalent brothel - Using their unique talents to draw in customers and pair them with suitable partners.

How does your Concubi choose to feed? Do they move form town to town, recklessly feeding on any they meet, leaving a path of potentially cursed children in their wake? Do they seek out a harem of loving partners who together can fulfil their needs? Some Concubi even turn to magic such as summoning in an attempt to conjure monstrous lovers capable of fuelling their ever burning lust and perverse desires. Do they restrain themselves and feed only when necessary? Or do they give themselves over to the orgasmic bliss of their hunger, attempting to seduce and enthrall countless others under their will?

In the end, ask yourself what drives your character to seek adventure in the world? Are they fleeing their past, and the nature of what they are? Or are they looking desperately for a cure that will end their curse? Perhaps they are seeking their long-absent parent; either in fury for the burden placed upon them, or simply to understand the truth. Maybe They are even questing for the Lost realm of Paradisium - The fabled world where they can find peace among others of their kind..

Concubi Names

Most afflicted individuals are named within the traditions of their human lineage, and have birthnames no more outlandish names than any other member of their race. However, many Concubi choose to abandon these names as they grow to accept their sexual nature, and Choose names they feel are more fitting.

Female Names: Aphrodite, Bast, Elvira, Eve, Evilyn, Lillith, Lydia, Sapho, Shiva, Synn, Venus, Xena

Male Names: Adam, Adonis, Azrul, Crowley, Eros, Fabio, Logan, Lucifer, Narcissus, Pan, Spike

Concubi Traits

Through powerful blood-curse curse, you are afflicted with a unique variation of the Umbraviralis plague, granting you the following features.

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma score increases by 2, and your dexterity score increases by 1
Age. Concubi are functionally immortal and show no visible signs of ageing beyond their prime, so long as they feed regularly on the sexual energy of others.
Size. Concubi tend towards the same range of height as normal humans. Your size is medium
Speed. Your speed is 30 ft
Alignment. Concubi are no more evil by nature than their human counterparts, but may lean towards such alignments due to social stigma. They are frequently chaotic in nature.
Lustful Hunger. Concubi are sexual parasites, and must feed on the sexual energies of other creatures to sustain themselves. When a creature within 5 ft of you climaxes, you may use your reaction to feed on their climax, Expending a number of hit dice up to your proficiency bonus, and regaining hit points as if during a short rest. You must feed on a least one climax each day, or suffer a level of exhaustion.
Sexual Stamina As a creature of pure lust, you are capable of endless pleasure. Your Recovery Dice is a d12, regardless of your sexual history. Additionally, while above half your maximum hit points, you automatically succeed on saving throws to recover from the mundane effects of climax, and treat overstimulation as if it were one level less.
Lustbranded. The lustful hunger that sustains you also inflicts you with a powerful curse. You gain a single Lustbrand of your choice. This brand cannot be removed by any means.
Lust Sense. The disease has made you acutely aware of the arousal of others. You know the current arousal of all creatures within 30 ft of you, and can sense the presence (but not the exact location) of any creature within 60 ft who's current arousal is greater than half it's maximum value.
Sexual Insight. Your seductive gifts include the ability to read the desires of other creatures. You gain proficiency in the Persuasion skill, and have advantage on insight checks made to determine the sexual or romantic interests of a creature.
Hermaphroditism. While not always the case, most Concubi present a combination of both male and female sexual characteristics. When making your character, you may choose to have any or all of the following sexual implements, in addition to your Ass and Mouth: Cock, Breasts, or Pussy.
Seductive Talent. Concubi have an innate talent for sexual magic. You know the Detect Sexuality and Charm Person spells, and may cast each once without expending a spell slot, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may do so again. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.
Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and one other language of your choice.

Hybrid Concubi

The very nature of Concubi leads them to be promiscuous, seeking out sex with a range of partners to help sate their mortal hunger. This means that most Concubi children are born of non-Concubi parents.

These hybrid children inherit the ravenous lust of a concubi, and are permanently branded marked by sin in the form of a lustbrand, but are otherwise still the same race as their non-Concubi parent. Because concubi themselves rarely stay in one place for long, Such "concuborn" children frequently do not learn of their hybrid ancestry until their first sexual encounter, when the insatiable hunger for sex first manifests into a permanent lustbrand.

You can find rules for creating one of these hybrid concubi in the Backgrounds section of this handbook, but talk with your DM before doing so. While the Concuborn background provided in that section includes downsides to counter the addition of concubi racial traits, it may still be more powerful than your DM is comfortable with.

Lustbrands

Lustbrands are crests containing powerful magic - not unlike Dragonmarks. However, where Dragonmarks are often associated with noble birthright and innate magical ability, Lustbrands are sigils of overwhelming sexual magic. These crests afflict their bearer's with perverse sexual desires and mark them forever as a sexual deviants. Because a Lustbrand draw's it's power from the soul of the branded creature, it's magic will last for as long as the creature lives. Unlike other curses, once a Lustbrand appears, it is nearly impossible to remove, except by way of specialized magics.

These brands are most common among concubi, who invariably find develop a Lustbrand upon their first sexual encounter. For a concubi, the appearance of a Lustbrand is often the most defining experience of their life - for better or for worse. Many concubi are unaware of their heritage before this point, and the sudden and insatiable need for sex changes the direction of their entire lives. Among communities of other concubi, An individual's first branding is seen as a right of passage.

These brands are not unique to concubi, however, and can be placed on any creature through sufficiently lecherous magic. It is even possible to be afflicted with multiple lustbrands. Many an unfortunate adventurer have been branded by these magics as a way to bind them into the service of another, or simply for the amusement of a particularly perverted fiend. Some cruel deviants have even been known to afflict such curses upon helpless commoners or unwitting peasants.

It is not uncommon for such folk to be outcast form their towns and villages, and forced to live the life of a roaming adventurer in order to fulfil their twisted new desires. However your character acquired their Crest, consider how it has affected their lives. Have they given in and embraced the sexual perversions of their lewd brand? Or do they fight every day to remain pure of heart, despite their lecherous curse?

Shared Afflictions

The Inhibition of a creature bearing any Lustbrand is reduced by an amount equal to the tier of the brand, and the Lustbrand glows visibly when the bearer is aroused. At an arousal of 0, the brand appears only as a mark or tattoo on the skin, but as the bearer's arousal increases, the brand becomes visible even through armor or clothing. At the moment before climax, the brand glows brightly enough to produce a 5 ft radius of dim light.

Unlike Curses, Lustbrands cannot be removed by means of the remove curse spell or similar magic. Excluding the Wish Spell Only specific features or abilities allow a creature to add or remove Lustbrands from a creature. And a concubi who's Lustbrand is removed will develop a new lust brand the next time they climax - usually the new brand will be of a higher tier than the previous one.

Individual Brands

There are a variety of Lustbrands that might afflict a creature, and some creatures may even have multiple Lustbrands. Below is a list of brands that have documented among concubi, but other brands may remain undocumented. Talk to your DM if you have other unique ideas.

Brand of Abundance:

1st Tier

The Brand of Abundance is often mistaken for a blessing by those too foolish to recognize it's nature. The plentiful bounty it imparts must be constantly drained, lest it's bearer grow mad with desire.

Each time the bearer of this Brand completes a long or short rest without climaxing, the size of their Breasts or Balls increases by half, causing them to gain a cumulative -1 penalty to AC and Dexterity Saving throws .

Each time the bearer of this Brand climaxes, they produce 1 liter of Milk or Cum, and the size increase and penalties applied by the curse are reduced by 1.

Brand of Addiction:
1st Tier

The Brand of addiction afflicts those who bear it with a powerful hunger for sex and a need to consume sexual fluids.

The bearer of this brand gains an addiction to sexual fluids. This addiction has an inidital addiction save DC of 18, and follows the normal rules for addiction and withdrawal. However, it cannot be removed by any means while the brand remains present.

Additionally, a creature afflicted by this brand must consume at least 8 ounces of cum or other sexual fluids in order to gain the benefits of a long rest.

Brand of Altruism:
1st Tier

The Brand of Altruism is anything but altruistic, forcing a creature to endure corruptive pleasure in exchange for the aid they provide others, and growing in power each time a life is saved.

Each time the bearer of this brand uses a spell or other effect to restore hit points to a creature other than itself, the bearer's arousal maximum is reduced by the same amount, until it completes a short rest, and the bearer must succeed on an inhibition saving throw against it's own spell save DC or become hyperaroused until the end of it's next turn

Additionally, Each time the bearer stabilizes a dying creature, the their of this brand increases by 1, up to a maximum of 5th tier.

Brand of Bestial Instinct:
4th Tier

The Brand of Bestial Instinct instils in it's bearer an insatiable desire to breed or be bred. Forcing them to seek out a never ending supply of sexual partners, or submit unendingly to a creature with enough stamina to fulfil their needs

Each Time the bearer of this Brand completes a short or long rest, they gain the Nymphomanic condition, which lasts until they are brought to climax through unprotected sex.

Brand of Betrayal:
4th Tier

The Brand of Betrayal was designed to corrupt champions of light by enslaving them to their own arousal in the presence of their enemies.

When when this brand appears, a single race or creature type is chosen, either by the DM or the creature applying the brand. The bearer of this Brand gains the nymphomanic condition while within 10 ft of one or more creature of this race or type.

Brand of Denial
5th Tier

The Brand of Denial locks it's bearer in a state of ever-present need - unable to gain release except at the hands of their corruptor.

The bearer of this Brand gains the Denied Condition, which cannot be removed by any means so long as this curse is active.

When this Brand is applied, any number of conditions (such as gaining permission from a specific creature, having sex with a creature of a specified type, or engaging in a particular kink or fetish) may be specified, either by the DM or the creature applying the brand. While one of more of these conditions are met, the Brand becomes temporarily inactive, removing the denied condition until the end of the bearer's next turn. The nature of these conditions need not be known to the bearer.

Brand of Echoes:
2nd Tier

The Brand of Echoes afflicts it's bearer with the same stimulation they bestow upon others - intended or not. It is often considered among the least hideous of Lustbrands - until paired with a Brand of allure or denial.

Whenever the bearer of this Brand inflicts stimulation on another creature, they gain psychic stimulation equal to the same amount. The bearer of this brand cannot bring itself to climax through any means, but immediately climaxes when a creature within 5 ft of them climaxes, regardless of it's current arousal.

Brand of Emptiness:
1st Tier

The Brand of Emptiness is perhaps the lightest of Lustbrands, and is sometimes sought out as a blessing despite it's corruptive effects.

The bearer of this Brand suffers no penalties or negative effects from being penetrated by creatures or implements more than two size categories larger than themselves, and is resistant to stimulation from implements less than one size category larger than themselves.

A creature bearing the Brand of emptiness has disadvantage on saving throws, attack rolls, and ability checks while not penetrated by a sexual implement at least one size category larger than their own.

Brand of False Dominance:
1st Tier

The Brand of False Dominance is a powerful curse hidden within the guise of a blessing, allowing it's bearer to command others at the cost of their own self control.

The bearer of this Brand learns the Demitri's Demanding Desire spell, and may cast it once without expending a spell slot, after which they must complete a long rest before they can do so again. When cast in this way, the spell is always considered a Sexual Advance, and uses charisma as it's casting ability. Each time the spell is cast in this way, bearer becomes nymphomanic until they are brought to climax.

A creature bearing the Brand of False Dominance automatically fails saving throws against the charmed, infatuated, and hyperaroused conditions if the source of the effect appears submissive in nature. Creatures affected by the bearer's Demanding Desire spell become permanently hostile to the bearer when the spell ends.

Brand of Fertility:
2nd Tier

The Brand of Fertility is often sold as a blessing to unwary couples desperate to have a child. It's true nature providing perverse entertainment - or perhaps even children - for the powerful being who places the brand.

A creature bearing this brand permanently gains the hyperfertile condition, and cannot be brought to climax except through unprotected sex. While pregnant, the bearer of this lustbrand also becomes hyperaroused.

Additionally, a creature bearing this brand can be impregnated through any orifice, and is capable of carrying multiple pregnancies at once, regardless of race or biological sex. For each pregnancy beyond the first, the bearer's dexterity and strength scores are reduced by 1. Each time the Bearer gives birth this penalty is reduced by 1, and the tier of this Brand increases by 1, Up to a maximum of 5th tier.

Brand of Infatuation:
3rd Tier

The Brand of Infatuation is perhaps the most common of all Brands, instilling in it's bearer an inexplicable and overwhelming attraction to another creature - most often the caster of the curse.

The bearer of this Brand gains the Infatuated condition, which cannot be removed so long as the curse is in place. When this brand is applied, a single creature other than the bearer is chosen, either by the DM or the creature applying the brand. The chosen creature becomes the source of the bearer's infatuation.

Brand of Oaths:
2nd Tier

The Brand of oaths seems innocuous enough, until a careless promise becomes a painfully enforced vow.

Whenever the bearer of this brand makes an explicit vow or promise, they become magically bound to uphold this statement as if it were a solemn oath. Anytime a creature bearing this brand attempts to break such a promise, or fails to fulfil a such a promise through inaction, it is magically compelled to sexually humiliate itself in some way. The Exact nature of this humiliation may vary, but it must occur in a public place, observed by a number of people equal to or greater than the creature's level. If this compulsion is not fulfilled within 24 hours, the bearer instead gains the nymphomanic condition, and it's arousal maximum is reduced by 1 Recovery Dice for each day it fails to fulfil the compulsion.

Brand of Ruin:
1st Tier

The Brand of Ruin is cruel in it's simplicity.

Whenever the bearer of this brand would fail a climax saving throw, it instead takes psychic damage equal to it's stimulation dice + the tier of this brand, and it's arousal is reduced by the same amount. If this damage would reduce the creature to 0 hit points or below, it is instead reduced to 1 hit point, and the tier of this brand increases by 1

Brand of Obedience:
5th Tier

The Brand of Obedience is perhaps the most direct and effective Brand that can be applied to a victim; using their own arousal and desire to enforce the will of the caster upon them.

The bearer of this Brand is infatuated by either the creature applying the brand, or a creature chosen by the DM, and cannot willingly move more than 1 mile from the this creature unless commanded to do so by the caster themselves.

While the bearer of this brand is affected by at least one level of overstimulation, the chosen creature may use an action to subject the bearer to Complete control. The bearer must succeed on a dc 20 wisdom saving throw, or be affected as if by the Dominate Monster spell.

Brand of The Forsaken:
3rd Tier

The Brand of Isolation turns the touch of a lover into scorching pain.

The bearer of this Brand experiences painful radiant burns from direct contact with any object or creature marked by or subject to True Love. While touching such a creature or object, the bearer of this brand gains the poisoned condition, and takes 1d6 radiant damage at the start of each of it's turns.

Brand of The Hungry Gaze:
3rd Tier

The Brand of The Hungry Gaze draws the attention of all those who look upon it's bearer, weather this attention is desired or not.

The bearer of this Brand has disadvantage on stealth checks and checks made to remain hidden or unnoticed. Creatures who see the face of a creature bearing this brand must succeed on a DC 15 wisdom saving throw, or become sexually aggressive towards the bearer of this Brand, until brought to climax. Any creature that can't be Charmed succeeds on this saving throw automatically. Creatures who succeed on this saving throw or are brought to climax by the bearer are immune to this effect for 24 hours

5th Tier

Derived from the same magic that empowers lycanthropy and similar bestial afflictions, the Brand of transformation causes a creature to transform unwillingly into a creature of pure desire.

When this brand appears, a single triggering sensation or event (such as the rising of the full moon, the scent of a particular aroma, or experiencing a particular type of stimulation) is chosen, either by the DM or the creature applying the brand along with a specific race or type of humanoid creature. When the triggering sensation or event occurs, the bearer of this Brand must succeed on a dc 24 wisdom saving throw, or transform into the specified race or creature for 1d6 hours.

While transformed in this way, the bearer becomes nymphomanic, and it's ingame statistics change to reflect it's new race or creature type, although it does not gain or lose any features not associated with it's race.

Brand of Virility:
3rd Tier

The Brand of Virility endows it's bearer with a powerful and throbbing erection, which continues to grow unless satiated by climax.

Each time the bearer of this Brand completes a long or short rest, the size of it's cock increases by one (up to a maximum of gargantuan), and it's arousal maximum is reduced by one Recovery Dice. If the bearer does not have a cock, it instead gains a cock with a size category of tiny.

Each time the bearer of this Brand climaxes, it's arousal maximum increases by one Recovery Dice and the size category of it's cock decreases by one.

Contiguous Transformations

The Brand of Transformation is a powerful curse in it's own right, but in some instances it can be even more potent. When applied by a particularly powerful caster, this Lustbrand can mimic the contagious effects of Lycanthropy, spreading from one person to the next through sexual intercourse.

In these cases, it is often impossible to remove the brand from all of the afflicted, but much like Lycanthropy, the curse can be broken by removing the Lustbrand from the original victim - Assuming you can find them.

Lamia (Noble)

Thalia smiled lasciviously at her dinner guest as he looked worriedly over the lavish table setting and the array of supple meats she new were the source of his concerned expression. She watched him hesitate for a long moment, feigning ignorance of his fears just long enough to keep him on edge, before dismissing them as if it were an afterthought. "Oh don't worry dear, you don't really think I would serve you people, do you? Come now, I'm a Monster, not a barbarian!"

Her mirthful laughter caused her heavy cleavage to bounce distractingly, and she knew it. "I don't even eat the stuff myself if I'm being honest. Farm raised is pathetically bland, and you simply cant tell what you are going to get with wild caught these days." She used her fork to take a slice from the suspiciously sized cut of meat, and made a point to unhinge her jaw in swallowing it. The effort was hardly necessary, but it always either unnerved or aroused her guests. If she was lucky, it would be a little bit of both.

"What with all the diseases and curses adventurers are exposed to these days, not to mention their diets... It's simply not worth the risk." Thalia let her coy smile reveal the tips of venomous fangs, while her serpentine body coiled seductively beneath her. "Besides. Why bother with all that effort when I can simply import exotics from the mountains? I believe this cut died in the arena just last week. A rare species of demonic boar found terrorizing villages to the north. Supposedly it's flesh acts as a potent aphrodisiac. Shell we put that to the test?"

Desert Royalty

Lamia Nobles are the monstrous Sultans of the desert sands. Beautiful humanoids with the lower bodies of enormous serpents, they are said to collect untold riches within their lairs, and are known for their lavish tastes and hedonistic lives, as much as they are for their cannibalistic appetites. While their four-legged cousins may be content to live within the faltering ruins of some ancient temple, the serpentine Lamia Nobles are said to live like royalty within hidden palaces.

How much of this mythos can be deemed truly accurate is hard to say. Lamia Nobles are not common to encounter within the world of men, and those who do traffic among everyday mortals are frequently not to be trusted. While many an adventurer has claimed to have escaped, or even slain a Lamia noble in their travels, it is difficult to say if the riches they produce as proof of these legends are representative of the entire culture, or simply the spoils of a few deadly individuals.

As a whole, these Desert Legends are secretive of their Lairs, and even more so of their daily lives. It would seem that even among those Lamia friendly to mankind, there is a desire to cultivate mystery and legend about their kind. Perhaps this is to protect some great secret of their people, or to draw the curious into a well-baited trap, or maybe it is simply to conceal the most truly monstrous aspects of their people.

A Lineage of Monsters

With an ancestry flowing backwards through uncounted eons to the Mother of Demons herself, Lamia are Monsters in the most classic sense, and the serpentine Nobles are perhaps the most deadly. Alluring as they are dangerous, Lamia have seduced and devoured men since the first wanderer set foot in the ancient deserts of the forgotten past. They are known to be cruel, cunning, and insatiable; consuming mortals and collecting their wealth in abundance enough to rival even many dragons. Tales of these deadly predators in the guise of Beautiful men and women are a quintessential part of desert lore- and desert survival. But perhaps there are more stories to tell than simply those of monsters.

While Lamia are of undoubtedly monstrous origin, those origins are so old that "ancient" does not even begin to describe them. In the untold generations since the first Lamia were brought into this world by the Queen of Night, they have developed a culture and society far more complex than most realize. While many Lamia still prey upon unwitting guests or unwary adventurers, the rule of the desert has changed as enclaves have grown into vibrant cities of hidden wonder. Most lamia have never tasted the supposed delicacy of human flesh.

In recent centuries, as the deserts grow more dry, and the caravans turn from old routes no longer worth the risk, some lamia have taken to exploring the world and even the cultures of other races. Adventurers, entrepreneurs, and a slew of other almost trustworthy individuals have begun to make themselves known in the lands of others. Setting up shop as slavers, merchants, and even heros for hire, this enterprising young generation have begun to tell their own tales, and write stories in which their kind are not always the enemy.

Myths and Falsehoods

Not everything legends would have you believe is true, and Lamia are no exception to this rule. On the contrary,, Lamia Nobles often spend centuries cultivating local legends and myths about anything from their abilities to their treasure hoards. Such misdirection is used like any other tool in a hunter's arsenal, baiting the trap to draw in their favourite prey. There is generally a grain of truth to these stories: a room of illusionary treasure glimpsed by those who only believe they are escaping, a powerful spell cast so frivolously that it must be a natural ability. But separating the truth from cultivated fiction can be more difficult than sifting flower for the desert sand.

One of the most common misconceptions surrounding lamia in general is that they are universally female. Lamia males do indeed exist - they simply aren't common. More than that, the matriarchal nature of Lamia society means that male lamia are often seen as an embarrassment upon their mother, and slain at birth. This is not always the case of course, and in fact most Lamia Nobles are, technically speaking both male and female. Historically speaking, however, female presenting Lamia - be they noble or otherwise - have been the more successful hunters, and most nobles will therefore go out of their way to adopt a feminine appearance. This trend has only begun to shift in the last century or so, as hunting and feeding practices have changed.

Which brings us to the next common myth surrounding Lamia Nobles in particular. It is often assumed that because their lesser sisters prey almost exclusively on humanoids, that Lamia Nobles are predominantly man-eaters. While this may have been true in centuries past, it has become more common by far for nobles to seek out more exotic prey - feeding on the flesh of enormous monsters to sustain their near-insatiable appetites. For many, the hunting of humanoid prey simply is not worth the risk, especially when more exotic and flavourful meats can be easily purchased or imported through ever growing local markets.
It is also common belief that Lamia Nobles bear some form of inherent shapeshifting ability - beyond that of their lesser cousins. In reality, most nobles are simply older and more skilled in their magics, and can afford to cast transmutation spells on a whim. There is truth to the idea of such nobles secreting themselves into humanoid society, and even to the notion that they use their natural charms to secure positions of power, but the shapeshifting power used to do so is a trained skill, not a natural gift.

The Grace of Serpents

While common lamia generally take the form of beautiful women with the bodies of four-legged beasts such as lions or goats, Lamia Nobles universally bare the bodies of enormous serpents. More Beautiful and Alluring than any of their four-legged counterparts, Noble Lamia are the great seducers of the desert - akin to succubi or erinyes in their reputation, but with a serpentine grace that is at once both majestic and terrible.

The long serpentine bodies can stretch easily to a length of twenty feet from the tip of their fangs to the tip of their tail, and travel along through ground by way rhythmical undulations like the seductive swaying of a dancer's hips. A noble's scales are said to glitter like polished gemstones in the full light of the desert sun, and their serpentine coils are cited to be stronger than any steel.

Many nobles are viperous beauties, with hidden fangs capable of delivering a uniquely potent form of aphrodisiac. It is this hyper arousing poison that is commonly sold on the black market as the addictive drug "succubus venom", and many venomous nobles are more than happy to provide the drug to servants and lovers too helplessly addicted to recognize their danger.

The Cunning of Man

It is not only this serpentine majesty for which Lamia are known. Enormous snakes and powerful serpents are found the world over - many far more fearsome than the Lamia would seem to be. Rather, it is the cunning and intelligence of a fiend that make Lamia Nobles so feared by peoples of the desert. Any man can slay a beast in battle, but Lamia are far more than simple beasts.

Lamia of all breeds are known to be deadly illusionists and tricksters, but while lesser of their kind are still ruled by the monstrous nature of their ancient heritage, Nobles are more human in their cunning, and less driven by a desire for the suffering and destruction of their prey. That is not to say that Lamia Nobles cannot be cruel and mercurial in their nature, but they are much more than that as well. Nobles think in the long term, and make plans that can take centuries to execute. They are sly, cunning, and seductive by nature, with an innate understanding of how to use their skills to greatest effect.

While a common lamia may be content to torment mortals and lead them blindly to their inevitable destruction, a Lamia Noble is more apt to pit mortals against each other, forming bonds and relationships with an array of humanoids, and even participating in humanoid society where it suits their plans. They excel not just at subterfuge and seduction, but at linguistics, economics, poetry, and arcane study. Their personal aims span the gambit from simple pleasure seeking and the collection of wealth, to the rule and overthrow of empires.

This intelligence makes Serpentine Nobles far more deadly than any of their common relatives, But it also grants them a freedom to expand beyond their monstrous origins. If it is humanoid free will that allows some mortals to choose the path of evil, then the same human freedoms have enabled some Nobles to break from that path. Despite their demonic ancestry, Lamia are thinking, feeling creatures, and their serpentine cunning has helped them not carve out a place for themselves, but to experience life and love in a way not so different from their humanoid prey.

Dangerous Lovers

To love a lamia is a dangerous endeavour, and indeed, often times a trap. Lamia Nobles especially are said to be experts of seduction - a natural talent they use to draw in prey as well as lovers. But however dangerous they may be, Lamia Nobles are not without emotions - including desire, compassion, and even love. Even those who use their wiles to attract humanoid prey often keep at least one humanoid lover for companionship.

Lamia will rarely if ever seek out other lamia as lovers, so the aspiring bard or adventurer begins with more chance of success than they might when attempting to seduce other monstrous creatures. It is not unknown for a Lamia Noble to keep several sexual partners as entertainment, especially if their lair is particularly well hidden or missing a regular supply of adventurers to seduce. Most often, these partners will be slaves - held in bondage by a mixture of magic, drugs, and the noble's innate seductive talents. But some lamia will form legitimate and loving relationships with their humanoid partners, of whom they often become dangerously possessive.

Even these consensual partners are not free from the risks of loving a monster. The touch of a Lamia Noble is said to drain wisdom from a creature, leaving them quite intoxicated. Combined with the overwhelming size and strength of a noble's serpentine body, accidents have been known to happen. Furthermore, Lamia Nobles still battle their predatory instincts, even when mating with a creature they care for greatly. If passions are high enough, these instincts can take over, leading a lamia to devour their partner whole. Oddly enough, this particular risk seems to excite at least as many monsterfuckers as it deters...

Lamia Reproduction

Lamia are well known for their ability to seduce men (and women), but there is more to this than the clever reuse of a predator. Lamia are not infertile, but their monstrous blood invariably dominates their reproductive cycle. Two nobles who mate with each other will produce a common Lamia, and if two common lamia are foolish enough to mate with each other, the result is a grotesque chimera of only beast like intelligence.

For this reason, lamia of all classes are drawn to and encouraged to mate with humanoids of other species. Such a pairing invariably produces a Lamia of the same class as the parent, regardless of which partner carries the young. Most lamia, whether they appear male or female, are hermaphroditic and capable of mating with a fertile humanoid of any sex. Lamia Nobles in particular also share many of the reproductive traits of their snake-like form.

A serpentine Lamia Noble has two penises - although they are generally of a more humanoid appearance than that of a snake - which remain hidden within a genital slit while not in use. Similarly in line with their serpentine bodies, nobles are capable of controlling the exact moment of their fertilization, delaying conception and thus pregnancy by up to 6 months. The same cannot be said for any unfortunate soul unlucky enough to be impregnated by the same noble.

Serpentine Society

It is not common for Lamia to come together any great numbers. Even the occasional settlements and cities rules over by Lamia Nobles are rarely inhabited by other lamia. Instead, most lamia live in isolated lairs, distant from others of their kind, and surrounded by servants and minions of other races. It is not uncommon for the desert lairs of Lamia Nobles to house tribes of gnolls, or even lesser demons, along with harems of humanoid slaves who attend and service the lamia in any way their masters desire.

When Lamia do band together into greater settlements, their culture is heavily matriarchal, with a rigid class system. Nobles rule over the lesser of their kind, and seek to fulfil their own aims over those of the wider population. Male Lamia are seen as weak and impotent, frequently having little to no magical talent. Such males are invariably treated as second class citizens, only mildly more valuable than the scores of enthralled slaves that such settlements maintain. It is no surprise then, that male nobles are often among the most sadistic and domineering of their kind when given the chance to rule over others.

Within other societies, Lamia Nobles generally seek out positions of power, holding themselves in high regard compared to other humanoids. They may choose to take up roles as trade masters, guild leaders, or as the head of any suitably influential organization. Lamia are inherently drawn to wealth and power, and are generally well suited to the task of acquiring it.

The rare lamia adventurer is generally some form of outcast or fortune seeker. Nobles rarely expend the kind of effort involved in adventuring unless there is substantial personal gain to be had. Even when they do, such Lamia generally prefer to risk the lives of others over their own.

Playing a Lamia

When choosing to play a Lamia, one of the greatest things to establish is a firm and long-lasting motivation. Why has your character chosen to leave the relative safety of their lair? What are they seeing that they cannot gain any other way? And most importantly what prevents them from abandoning their allies as soon as they are no longer useful? Not all lamia are evil, but they are rarely charitable - at least not openly. Think about what obstacles stand between your character and their goals, and how the party they travel with might help them in overcoming such obstacles.

It is also important to remember that Lamia are not frequently welcomed among other cultures. While some nobles may have enough skill in magic to hide their monstrous nature, this is not always an option, and you should be prepared to encounter hostility from other races who see your character as a threat. Do they use their seductive charms to win over those they meet? Or do they leverage their race's reputation to intimidate any who might stand in their way?

Remember that Lamia, especially the serpentine Nobles, are accustomed to a certain degree of lavishness. While they may not be unprepared for arduous journeys or spartan conditions, they are unlikely to find themselves at home under such circumstances. How does your character make due in such circumstances, and what impression do they hold of those who contend with such hardships every day?

Lamia Names

Lamia names are regal, and harken back to great names of desert myth or legendary figures of their monstrous past.

Female Names: Alia, Eresh, Faridah, Galema, Harah, Khali, Medusa, Nayla, Nessmara, Thalia, Voraya

Male Names: Addoni, Geb, Jamis, Korba, Liet, Seht, Scytale, Tuek, Uthar

Lamia Traits

As a great serpentine seducer, you gain the following characteristics.

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma score increases by 2

Age. Lamia appear to be effectively immortal, you have no maximum life-span, and show no recognizable signs of old age.

Alignment. Lamia are capricious and mercurial, often acting on whims that others would call petty or cruel. Your alignment is Chaotic, perhaps even leaning towards evil.

Size. Adult Lamia are generally around 20ft long, from tail-tip to fang-tip, but still have a humanoid torso and arms. You are still considered a medium creature.

Speed. Lamia are surprisingly fast for their size. Your base movement speed is 35ft.

Cold-Blooded. You are a reptile, at least in part, and struggle to retain your heat in the cold. You are vulnerable to cold damage, and gain exhaustion at twice the normal rate while in excessively cold or frozen environments.

Powerful Build. Your powerful muscular body allows you to carry far more than most, You count as one size larger when determining your carrying capacity and the weight you can push, drag, or lift.

Ravenous Appetite. Your oversized body consumes a similarly oversized portion of resources active. You require twice the normal amount of food and water to avoid exhaustion.

Serpentine Bulk. Your body extends 15 ft behind you in a powerful muscular tail, or takes up the space of a large creature while coiled up. The space occupied by your tail is considered difficult terrain to creatures who are not your allies. Enemies who pass through or end their turn in this space provoke an opportunity attack from you as if they were your prey.

Your tail is considered a part of your body for the purpose of targeting, and may be attacked as if it were your main body, but does not affect the range of auras or other spells and effects centered on yourself. You may alter the position of your tail as part of your move action, at no additional cost to your movement speed.

Sinuous Strike. The power stored in your serpentine coils allows you to strike with astounding speed, even from a distance. As a bonus action on your turn, you may specify a single creature you can see as your prey. While a creature is marked as your prey, it provokes an opportunity attack from you if it fails to move at least half it's speed. When making an attack of opportunity against your prey, you may move up to your speed as part of the same reaction. You may have only a single target marked as your prey at a time.

Serpent's Coils. Your serpentine coils are powerful enough to hold most creatures in a powerful grip. You may use your elongated body in place of your hands when attempting to grapple a creature, and count as a large creature for the purpose of grappling in this way. When grappling a creature in this way, your entire body coils around the target, and your movement speed is reduced to 0. You have advantage on strength checks made to grapple or maintain a grapple in this way.

Serpentine Gifts. Lamia share some of the unique sexual anatomy of their serpentine cousins. If you would have or gain a cock, you instead gain two cocks, and may make a sexual advance with both of them as part of the same action. Additionally, you ignore the negative effects of size category when using your mouth as a sexual implement

Delayed Insemination.
If you would become pregnant through natural means, you may instead choose to delay this pregnancy, becoming pregnant at a time of your choosing within 6 months of successful reproductive sex.

Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, Abyssal, and Sylvan.

Long but not Large

As a rule, 5e does not traditionally include large creatures as playable races - even centaurs are sized down to medium for their player race, despite a horse being a large creature. Lamia should be effectively treated as a medium creature with an elongated "hit box". You can squeeze into the same spaces and wear the same equipment as any medium creature, but you have a 15 ft tail that can be targeted by enemies just like any other part of your body, and needs to be considered when attempting to hide or use cover.

At your DM's discretion, your tail this may give you some additional opportunities to do things like trip incoming enemies, but you do not gain any kind of expanded reach or larger "threatenable area" than other medium creatures. And spells or effects that act in a radius around you still center only on your torso. When in doubt, you are treated as a medium creature.

Viper

Not all Lamia are venomous, but those who are use their venom to unique effect. Rather than a deadly toxin, a Lamia's venom is dangerous for the erotic power it give the Viper over their target

Ability Score Increase. Your Wisdom score increases by 1.
Venomous Bite. You gain a natural weapon in the form of a bite with which you are proficient. Your bite is considered a finesse weapon, which deals poison stimulation equal to 1d6 + your proficiency bonus.
Infatuating Venom. When you make an attack with your bite weapon and hit, you may force the target must make a wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it becomes infatuated by you for 1 minute, or until you or your companions do anything harmful to it. You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

Constrictor

Constrictors are predominantly male Lamia and, lacking the infatuating venom or seductive magic of their more enthralling counterparts, excel at using their powerful serpentine bodies to capture and crush their prey.

Ability Score Increase. Your Strength score increases by 1.
Crushing Coils. While grappling a creature using your Serpent's Coils trait, you may use a bonus action on your turn to deal bludgeoning damage to the target equal to 2d6 + your proficiency bonus.
Warrior's Training. You gain proficiency in scimitars and shortswords, if you are not already proficient

Enchantress

Most prevalent of all Lamia nobles, Enchantress's rely on seductive cunning and enthralling magic to control and subjugate their prey. Not all Enchantress's present as female, but males are certainly uncommon.

Ability Score Increase. Your Intelligence score increases by 1.
Intoxicating Touch. Lamia are known for their enthralling visage and intoxicating touch. You know the Sinful Caress cantrip, and may cast it at a range of touch. You use Charisma as your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Myxapia (My-Zapia)

As they squeezed through the small crack beneath the stonework of the Library, Mim's gelatinous body frothed with nervous excitement. The Order had stockpiled more knowledge here than anywhere else across the empire - it was a shame it was door-locked away from the common folk of Languine.

Normally they weren't fond of using their abilities to get into places they weren't supposed to be, But somewhere among these vast halls of word-memories was the knowledge of how to defeat the Litch. If Mim was going to save the home-place, they had to be willing to break rules. At least, that was what their companions sound-thought. They supposed that hiding word-memories seemed like a strange rule anyway. Bone-havers seemed to have so many of those.

Their body inside, Mim hurriedly slithered their way across the cobblestone floor towards the door. Their friend-allies would be waiting, and they only had about 60 seconds of opening while the guards changed over...

Ancient Beginnings

Long before the gods of men watched over this realm, when the Thoc'Rah and their allies first fled to Terra under pursuit of the Illithid, they brought with them the building blocks of city and civilization: the shoggoth. Mindless beings like masses of hungry flesh, the shoggoth consumed the world around them, remaking it under the direction of their masters to create great cities and spires which have been long since lost to time.

But the Thoc'Rah and their cities would not last, and with their masters destroyed in the first razing of Terra, the shoggoth grew quiet, passive, but not entirely dormant. As the centuries turned to millennia, These master-less beings continued to eat, continued to grow, and eventually, even to evolve.

It is theorized that all modern oozes and mimics may trace their lineage back to these same shoggoth ancestors, but while most slimes continued on as little more than mindless stomachs, the Myxapia alone seem to have developed true inelegance beyond that of a simple predator

Sentient Slime-Molds

It is unclear what caused Myxapia to develop sophisticated minds, when so many of their gelatinous cousins did not. One theory suggests that it was exposure to the raw arcane energies of the first and second razing that mutated the mindless shoggoth into something capable of complex thought. Others suggest that some ancient deity took special interest in the Myxapia, guiding their evolution into sentient beings.

Whatever the source of their intelligence, Myxapia are fundamentally unlike other sentient creatures. Where most living creatures might have bodies broken down into complex systems and specialized parts, Myxapia consist of an acellular mass of creeping jellylike protoplasm. Lacking the nervous system or brains of so many other sapient species, Myxapia hold a sort of... Distributed intelligence. Their thoughts and minds are distributed evenly through their entire amorphous body, so that even when cut away or split from the main body, any sufficiently large mass of Myxapia plasmodium is capable of thinking and functioning on its own - at least to some degree.

Because of this, The actual sapience a Myxapia exhibits is directly correlated to it's size: A small glob the size of a fist might hold only the inelegance of a particularly clever insect, while plasmodium large enough to fill an average chest or barrel might exhibit the intellect of a trained animal. Most Myxapia who set off on adventures are roughly similar in overall mass to that of a human, of not slightly larger - Much bigger and their size would be a hindrance to movement; much smaller and they might easily loose too much mass to function unassisted.

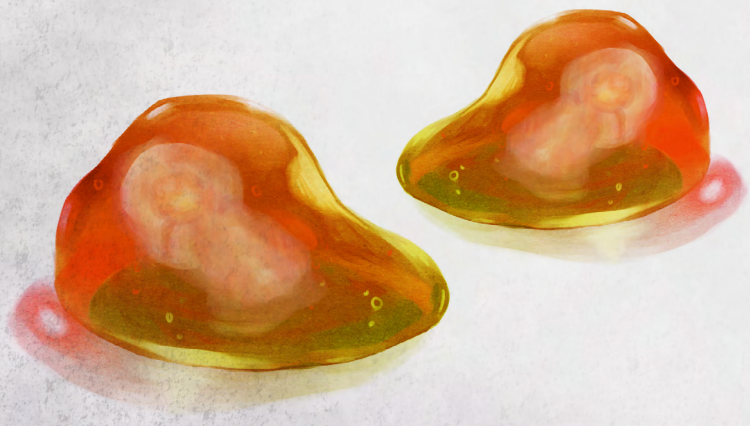

Amorphous Appearance

In their natural state, Myxapia can be difficult to tell apart from their more primordial cousins. Made of semi-translucent protoplasm, Myxapia within a colony resemble little more than amorphous blobs or giant amoeba. In these circumstances, individual blobs ranging from the size of a small cat to the mass of an elephant can be seen moving to and from a massive "Mother-Slime" carrying nutrients, information, or any other valuables that have caught the colony's metaphorical eye. In some cases, these individual globs may even remain connected to the mother-slime by long trailing tendrils of slime, as if each one were just an enormous pseudopod.

For a variety of reasons however, most Myxapia encountered by other races will almost always be of a similar size to more humanoid races, such as elves or humans - if not a little bit larger when accounting for the protoplasmic puddle often found at their "feet". Larger masses are often seen as imposing or intimidating to other races, and are unwieldy to manoeuvre through spaces designed for medium creatures. Smaller myxapia generally lack the collective intelligence to function on their own, and will only ever venture far from the colony as companions to a more human-sized mass.

At this scale, most myxapia will generally try to adapt their shape and appearance to roughly resemble the races around them - although some are better at this than others. Because their amorphous bodies have no defining internal structure, Myxapia can alter their physical shape on a whim. Sometimes even replicating shapes of people they know, or mimicing the physical features of someone they are speaking to -which can lead to an eerie duplicity that many find unsettling. In reality, most myxapia struggle deeply with subtle body language such as facial expressions, and this mirroring behaviour is frequently a type of "practice" as they learn to understand and use these subtle forms of communication.

Despite their shape-changing protoplasm, Myxapia are generally impossible to mistake for anything else. Excluding the uniquely evolved Mimguise, Myxapia generally resemble a mass of semi-translucent slime, even when mimicking the shape of other creatures. The color of this slime can vary anywhere between bright greens and blues, to dark greys and even blacks, although it seems to remain consistent among members of the same colony. Many Myxapia struggle with the concept of legs, and will instead support themselves on a single flowing stalk, rather than two bipedal limbs, moving slowly across the ground in a similar motion to their more primal brethren.

Slime Society

While individual adventurers may not be much bigger than a medium humanoid, Myxapia are rarely individual. Most Myxapia exist as part of massive, sprawling mother-slimes: protoplasmic masses ranging form the size of large houses to entire cities all operating as a single organism. These colonies live as one, sharing everything from nutrients to memories, and only split off smaller plasmodium in order to explore or gather food.

Individuality is a foreign concept to most myxapia, and even these scouts and searchers generally return to be re-absorbed into the greater protoplasm of the colony. It is rare for any myxapia to remain separate from it's mother-slime for more than a few weeks, and Myxapia unerringly refer to themselves in the plural - even if they have adopted a unique name to better fit in among other races. Some researchers theorize that this is because each individual is itself a type of colony. Others posit that Myxapia still retain some minute connection to their colony, even at a distance.

Whatever the case, Myxapia find the unique identities and social castes of other races to be alien and disconcerting. They often fail to comprehend the idea of social hierarchies, and are startled to encounter inequality between members of the same species or community. To myxapia, equality is not a moral issue, but simply an irrefutable fact no part of a colony is ever more important or valuable than another, even if they perform vastly different tasks.

Even between large colonies, Myxapia struggle to understand the cultural rifts that divide other species. Internal conflict and violence are simply foreign concepts to them. And if two colonies grow to a point where their territories overlap, they will simply begin to grow together; exchanging nutrients, plasmodium, and information until the two mother-slimes become one.

Unconventional Homes

Myxapia generally make their homes in warm, moist environments. Places that are damp enough to prevent them from drying out, but not so wet as to make finding nutrients difficult. As oozes, myxapia can feed on almost any kind of organic matter- and even some kinds of inorganic minerals and salts, but colonies will generally seek out nutrient sources rich in sugars that can be broken down for energy.

The actual size of a Myxapia colony depends not just on available resources, but on the relative safety of it's environment. While an entire colony might be a force to reckon with, smaller myxapia are easy prey for hungry carnivores, and even some more aggressive herbivores who will happily feed on their nutrient-rich slime. Even large mother-slimes can be vulnerable to large predators brazen enough to force their way close. Because of this, colonies generally struggle to grow unless well protected by physical barriers only slimes and oozes can navigate. Places like craggy tunnels or sewer networks, where movement is difficult for less amorphous creatures.

Colonies will also establish themselves within the crumbled and abandoned ruins of fallen cities, or in places too inhospitable for other forms of life. While not immune to acid or poison, many elements and chemicals hazardous to other creatures are at most a minor nuisance to Myxapia, allowing them to build their homes in places like irradiated wastelands that other races would find deadly and toxic.

Interspecies Relations

It is not often that Myxapia interact with other sentient races. With their colonies located in such remote or potentially toxic locations, most myxapia will never encounter a member of another sapient species. And while the collective memory of the mother-slime may contain hundreds or thousands of such chance encounters, they are rarely relevant enough to be recalled by individual scouts. And by the same reasoning, it is incredibly rare for most sentient humanoids to encounter a Myxapia.

In most cases, if a Myxapia is interacting with humanoid races in some capacity, it is as a special envoy or emissary - usually to broker peace or request sanctuary in close proximity to a settlement. There are exceptions to this, of course. Some colonies have established long-standing alliances with large settlements, who allow them to inhabit the sewers or underground caverns beneath the city, in exchange for helping to keep the city clear of waste and refuse. Occasionally, a colony will devote a part of itself to adventuring, as a way to learn more about the surrounding area. And sometimes, a scout who has been separated form the rest of it's colony long enough to develop rudimentary independence will choose to leave the colony in search of adventure, rather than being re-absorbed into the mother-slime

Myxapia do not have a word for war - even in their esoteric thought-language, and struggle to conceptualize violence with other sentient species. And will rarely involve themselves in the affairs of other races unless the safety of their own colony is at risk. If a Myxapia colony has taken up arms in some way, then something has gone horribly wrong.

Mitosis and Reproduction

Under normal circumstances, Myxapia do not reproduce in the same way as other races. Instead of complex mating rituals, when a myxapia has reached substantial size, they may choose to divide themselves into multiple smaller individuals. These smaller Myxapia share all the memories and experience of their former self, but depending on their size, may lack the same humanoid level of intelligence, which will instead develop as they grow in size.

Because smaller myxapia are more animal-like in their intelligence - and thus far more vulnerable to predation by dangerous creatures - it is rare for myxapia to undergo this kind of mitosis unless they have already grown to the size of a small mother-slime. When substantial nutrients are available, a new Myxapia colony can expand from only a few members to upwards of a thousand in a very short time.

It is also possible for multiple Myxapia to produce offspring together, sharing their memories and genetic material by fuzing into a single plasmodium, before splitting apart again, usually into only one or two more masses than they started with. This process can include up to several dozen myxapia at a time, sometimes even resulting in the formation of a new colony.

More rarely, some Myxapia choose to reproduce with other races, absorbing their partner's reproductive fluids, and combining their genetics to create a budding new slime. In many cases, this small, and relatively helpless new myxapia is placed within the body of the humanoid parent to mature.

Sense and Sexuality

Myxapia do not experience sensation in same way other creatures might. With no true eyes, ears, tongue, or other recognizable sensory organs, Myxapia experience the world through an array of sensory receptors that shift and move across their body. They do not so much "feel" the sensation of touch, as they do "taste" everything they come into contact with. They experience sound and vibration as the same sensation, and while they may have concentrated areas of light receptors, which fill the roles of eyes, it is hard to say for certain if they experience vision in the same way as other creatures.

For a myxapia, pain and pleasure are not the sharp, physical sensations that other races might experience. While they certainly experience these things, it is as a radiating sensation that spreads out evenly across their entire body from the point of contact. Without any erogenous zones to speak of, Myxapia experience sexual pleasure not so much from the physical contact itself, but from the more abstract merging of two bodies, and as an extension of their touch-focused telepathic abilities.

Furthermore, because Myxapia have no defined sex, and no explicit sexual organs, the concept of gender and sexual dimorphism is quite foreign to them. It is not uncommon for a myxapia new to the outside world to be startled at the discover that members of the same race do not necessarily share the same reproductive equipment.

One of the most extreme kinks or taboos among Myxapia is the strange and alien division of personality that other races call individuality. The very concept of individual identity - of being cut off and forever separated from themselves - is not just unsettling, but actively terrifying to most myxapia; and much like any taboo, there are those for whom that forbidden idea becomes arousing. Where a human adventurer might secretly get off to the idea of being assimilated into some sort of hivemind, some scouts or envoys among the Myxapia draw an intense sexual desire to explore what it is like to be different - to leave their colony never to return. This alone can drive some myxapia to seek a life of adventure.

Acids and Aphrodisiacs

Myxapia absorb both organic and inorganic materials by breaking them down into their base elements through a complex series of often caustic chemical reactions. Their bodies, like enormous stomachs contain volatile acids and chemicals that can cause serious harm to other creatures, simply by touch. But dissolving everything they touch would not be particularly beneficial in many circumstances, so Myxapia have developed the ability to control the saturation of chemicals and enzymes within their body.

A Myxapia's touch might be anywhere from acidic enough to dissolve your skin, to no more dangerous than placing your hand in a bowl of water; In some cases they might even adjust their internal chemistry to create unique sensations of tingling pleasure or sensual heat. This control is so precise, that a Myxapia might be able to dissolve clothes or armor, while providing only the faintest of erotic sensation to their chosen partner.

Some Myxapia have even adapted to generate electrical shocks or rapidly freeze the air around them - abilities represented by the racial feats found later in this handbook

Playing an Ooze

Playing a Myxapia can be an alien experience, because Myxapia themselves are such alien creatures. The world is a very different place to a slime, and simple things that other races take for granted aren't so natural for an ooze. Without a concept of individuality, Myxapia almost unerringly refer to themselves in the plural, using words like "we" or "us in place of "I". Concepts of racial or class distinctions make little sense to them, and Experiencing the inequality found in even the most progressive of humanoid societies can be quite unnerving to Myxapia. Similarly, ideas of gender and sexuality, have no meaning at all to myxapia, because those things do not exist among their race.

Even the most independent of Myxapia are obsessively concerned with state of their colony - whether that be a literal colony of other myxapia, or an adoptive "colony" of humanoid companions - and will frequently put the needs of the colony above their own without even realizing there was another option.

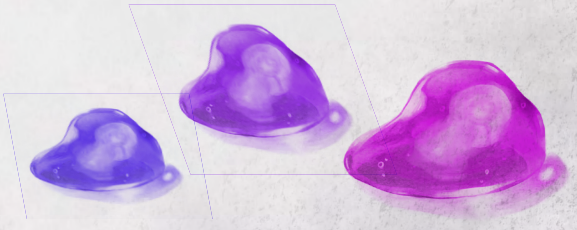

When creating a Myxapia adventurer, try to imagine what circumstances may have let to their separation from the colony. Were they lost in a cave-in, forming their own unique identity over hundreds of years of isolation? Or are they an envoy among other races, who treat their individuality as a tool of diplomacy? How do they think of their own individuality. Do they take pride or sexual satisfaction in the idea of being different? Or are the constantly in search of new companions to fill the role of their colony and mother slime?

Consider the unique perspectives your character might have, coming from a society without concepts of inequality or personal gain; and how that might affect the way they interact with others. Think about how they might react to things that are commonplace among other races. Are they confused by the concept punishments? Or perhaps terrified by the idea that children do not live with their entire extended family? Playing a Myxapia is a unique opportunity to explore just how strange the things we take for granted might be to outsiders, and put yourself in the shoes of a creature entirely alien to our world.

Myxapia Names

Myxapia lack a concept of true individuality, and among their own colonies, have no use for names of any kind. However, those who interact regularly with other races will often adopt names if only for the sake of those around them. These names are usually derived from Sounds they find interesting, or things they have been called by others. Because most Myxapia struggle to understand concepts like racism or ridicule, it is not uncommon for these names to be slurs or insults hurled at them by those they meet.

Myxapia Names: Blob, Boneater, Cumbrane, Coom, Dripp, Drool, Globagool, Goksleav, Goop, Jeli, Jiggles, Moldi, Morp, Mudd, Pizz, Plop, Puddle, Rotti, Skum, Shlopp, Slimer, Slorp, Thwupp

Myxapia Traits

As an intelligent humanoid ooze, you gain the following characteristics.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 2

Age. As long as you are able to remain well fed, you have no maximum life-span, and show no recognizable signs of old age.

Alignment. Myxapia hold no predisposition towards any particular alignment, but can be mistaken for chaotic or even evil, as they fail to understand morality in the same way as other humanoids.

Size. Myxapia large enough to present humanlike intelligence are medium creatures.

Speed. Myxapia do not have the benefit of bones or other skeletal structure to aid in their movement. Your base movement speed is 25ft

Acidic Touch. Your body is made of acidic slime, capable of dissolving most organic substances. When makig an unarmed attack, you may choose to deal acid damage, in place of the attack's normal damage type Additionally, when you are damaged by a melee attack, you may use your reaction to deal 1d6 Acid damage to the triggering attacker.

Engulf. Your ooze-like body allows you to engulf other creatures even while you continue fighting. You do not require a free hand to attempt to grapple a creature.

Amorphous Body. Your body is malleable, allowing you to squeeze through gaps too small for other living creatures. You can move through a space as narrow as 1 inch wide without squeezing, and are immune to the grappled condition, But You cannot wear heavy or medium armor and your caring capacity is reduced by half. When moving through small spaces equipment that would not fit though the gap is left behind.

Split. As a reaction when you would be reduced to 0 hit points and still have at least one hit dice remaining, you may choose to split yourself into a number of tiny oozes equal to your remaining hit dice. Each of these oozes has a speed of 10ft, and hit points equal to one hit dice + your constitution modifier. These oozes cannot take any action other than a move action. At the end of a long rest, any remaining oozes merge together to reform your body.

Plasmodium. Your gelatinous body is resilient against traditional weapons, but highly susceptible to extreme temperatures. You are resistant to bludgeoning, piercing, and slashing damage from nonmagical weapons, but vulnerable to fire and cold damage, as well as damage caused by spells or effects that drain moisture. You have disadvantage on attack rolls and ability checks while in extreme climates.

Tactile Telepathy. Myxapia Are capable of exchanging thoughts and memories on a cellular level. You can telepathically speak to any creature you are touching. You don't need to share a language to be heard.

Slime Sex. You don't have true sex organs, but your body is amorphous enough to simulate most sexual implements. As a bonus action on your turn, You may choose to create one of the following sexual implements anywhere on your body gelatinous body: Ass, Breasts, Cock, Mouth, Pussy, or Pseudopod. This implement lasts until you dismiss it as a free action. You ignore the negative effects of oversized penetration.

Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and one other language of your choice.

Life Without Bones

Myxapia can take any shape they want - be it a puddle of gurgling goo, or a vaguely humanoid mass of slime. This can bring up some mechanical questions about how they interact with the world. The following rules of thumb help keep Myxapia balanced in combat or sexual encounters, but might be ignored in other situations, with the permission of your DM

- Unless you have class features that say otherwise, you can only have two hand-like appendages or pseudopods at once
- You can carry objects inside your body, but no more than your normal carrying capacity, and they still require the same type of action to retrieve
- You cannot spread your body so thin as to be invisible or otherwise imperceptible to other creatures.
- You don't have a natural climb speed, and can't stick to surfaces like walls or ceilings.

Acidus

Acidus Myxapia are the specialized "stomachs" of a colony, and excel at dissolving not only organic, but even inorganic matter. They serve not only to gather nutrients for the colony, but to excavate new tunnels and passageways into which it can expand.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 3 instead of 2.

Acidic Spray. You gain access to the Acid Splash cantrip, and may cast it with a range of touch. Constitution is the ability you use when determining the spell-save DC for this spell.

Caustic Form. Your acidic body dissolve both organic and inorganic material. The following table shows how quickly you can melt through up to 1 ft of the following materials.

Material	Time Required
Wood	1 minute
Dirt or Soil	10 minutes
Stone	1 hour
Metal	8 hours

Arcmagus

The Arcmagus originated as a unique colony of myxapia which lived for centuries atop the wellspring of magic that once fed a great mages college. Adapting to feed on this abundant arcane energy, they flourished and spread, merging portions of themselves with other colonies to share their arcane adaptations with others of their kind.

Today, Arcmagus are common all over the world, consuming spells and magic items to collect arcane knowledge for their colonies.

Ability Score Increase. Your Wisdom score increases by 1.

Arcane Absorption. As an action on your turn, you may choose one spell or magical effect within 5 ft, and attempt to consume a portion of it's magic. Make a wisdom check with a DC equal to 15 + the spell's Level.

On a success, the spell's slot level is reduced by 1, and you may immediately spend a hit dice to recover hit points as if completing a short rest. If the Spell's new slot level is lower than the minimum level spell slot required to cast it, the spell ends. You may use this feature a number of times between long rests equal to your proficiency bonus

Beginning at 5th level, you may use this feature as a reaction when you are targeted by a spell or magical effect to attempt to consume the triggering magic.

Mimguise

Unique for their shapeshifting abilities, Myxapia are capable or changing color and even density to blend in with the creatures around them. They often serve as envoys or emissaries for the colony, adopting forms and identities more familiar to other humanoid races to help form diplomatic alliances or simply gather information about the world.

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma score increases by 1.
False Appearance. As an action, you can change your appearance and your voice. You determine the specifics of the changes, including your coloration, hair length, and sex. You can make yourself appear as a member of another race, though none of your game statistics change. Alternatively, you may assume the form of a nonmagical object you have seen before. You can't duplicate the appearance of an individual or object you've never seen, and you must adopt a form that has the same basic size category that you have. Your clothing and equipment aren't changed by this trait. You stay in the new form until you use an action to revert to your true form or until you die.

Osseus

Occasionally, a Myxapia colony will choose to graft portions of itself around the bones of fallen creatures, creating an Osseus. These skeletal slimes are more substantial than other members of the colony, and generally serve the role of moving heavy items or equipment provided by other races.

Ability Score Increase. Your strength score increases by 1.
Slime of Burden Your borrowed skeleton allows you to carry heavier burdens, but limits your ability to move through tight spaces. You ignore the effects of your Amorphous Body trait
Necrotic Attunement. The bones of the fallen attune you to the energies of death. You gain resistance to necrotic damage, and may choose to count as undead for the purpose of spells and effects that target undead creatures.
Frightful Appearance. Most creatures react differently to you upon seeing the skeletal remains around which you are formed. You have advantage on Intimidation checks, and persuasion checks made to interact with undead creatures.

Psionai

Psionai are arguably the most intelligent of all Myxapia, having developed psionic abilities beyond that of any of their brethren

Ability Score Increase. Your Intelligence score increases by 1.
True Telepathy. You may communicate telepathically with any creature within 60 ft. This replaces your Tactile Telepathy racial feature
Psionic Influence You gain access to the Spell Calm Emotions, and may cast it a number of times between long rests equal to your proficiency bonus. Intelligence is the ability you use when determining the spell-save DC for this spell.

Slime Hybrid

Myxapia are an incredibly adaptive species, especially when it comes to reproduction. It is not uncommon for myxapia to breed or mate with species other than their own. This allows the colony to grow and evolve in new ways, ever expanding it's capabilities. These hybrid children are always slimes, but also carry a resemblance to their humanoid parent.

Ability Score Increase: Choose one ability score associated with your humanoid parent's race. This ability score increases by 1
Hybrid Lineage: Choose one racial trait from your humanoid parent. You gain this trait in addition to those granted by the Myxapia race.
Child of Two worlds: Choose one proficiency and one language in which your humanoid parent is proficient. You gain these proficiency.

Symbian

Symbian are a relatively new mutation among the myxapia, born out of the desire for closer interaction with humanoids. Using their ooze-like bodies to cling to the skin of another creature like a set of living clothes, they are generally symbiotic in nature, extending the capabilities of their host while feeding on sweat and other chemicals produced by their chosen partner.

Ability Score Increase. Your dexterity score increases by 1.
Living Armor. You may be worn as armor by a willing creature attuned to as if you were a magic item, and While wearing you, and no other armor, an creature host adds your Constitution modifier to it's AC. When an attack made against your attuned host misses, the attack is repeated against you.
Discrete Appearance. While not capable of the same perfect mimicry as your mimguise cousins, you can alter your color and texture to some degree, granting you advantage on checks made to disguise yourself or conceal your nature.
Symbiotic Lifeform. While worn by an attuned creature, you do not require food or drink and cannot be removed from your host unless rendered unconscious. You always occupy the same space as your host. If you or your host take the move action or are moved through any form of forced movement, the other is moved as well, without spending any movement of their own.

Separate but Contested actions

While Symbian and host may share a body, this hardly means that they are limited by the same pool of actions. Both Symbian and Host take their turns separately, and are free to use the full range of actions, reactions, and bonus actions normally available in combat or other time-sensitive situations.

There are, however, times when either host or Symbian might disagree with the actions taken by their respective partner, and in these situations, the opposing party may use their reaction to contest the triggering action.

When an action is opposed, The triggering creature must make a strength or intelligence saving throw (as chosen by the opposing party) against a DC equal to 8+ the opposing party's proficiency bonus plus their relevant ability score. On a success, the action is performed as usual. On a failure, the action automatically fails.

Pleasure Doll

Her name was Iris, and she was beautiful... Absolutely beautiful. Every porcelain curve of her body was perfectly sculpted, even as the supple flesh of midas' gold allowed her to remain soft and pleasurable in all the right places. Her face was a mask of serene beauty, more lifelike than any doll he had ever built. But even for all he beauty, she was still cold to the touch, and colder still at heart.

The Woman he knew had been so full of life; so different from anything he was used to, so much of a contrast to his dolls and automatons. She had been a living, breathing force of nature - literally. She had come form the gardens outside; the dangerous wilderness he was so afraid to tread. Yet she had been so kind, and so wonderful to him. She had made him smile and feel things he had long since given up on feeling amidst his lonely house of Dolls. But now...

Obviously, she couldn't stay here with him. It wasn't her home - wasn't where she belonged. She had offered to take him with her; to show him the world outside his mansion, teach him about wonders he never even imagined. But he had been a coward - a terrible, foolish coward. And after she had left... Was it really any surprise he had fallen to his regrets?

The dolls were designed to take care of him; to please and pleasure him; provide him companionship and service his every need. But with her gone, they could do little to do to ease his sorrows or massage away his longing. Their touch was so much more refined - yet so much less alive. It really wasn't their fault what happened... Even if he hated them for it.

His accursed automatons had simply taken the initiative to follow the programming he had set in place. They saw that her absence caused him pain, and so they brought her back to him. They used the tools he had given them to ensure she could never leave again. As loathsome as their actions, they were only dolls, acting on flawed instructions. And now, so was She...

Mysterious Toys

Exactly where the Pleasure Dolls came from is a mystery lost to time - as is the identity of their creator. In truth, little is known for sure about the strange automatons that roam the dungeon, other than that they originate from an uncanny rest-stop amidst the dangerous depths, known only as "The Dollhouse." No one alive has ever witnessed a doll being assembled, and even the dolls themselves do not seem to truly understand the arcane clockwork that allows them to function, but they continue to function nonetheless; forever in pursuit of new masters and mistresses to please.

According to the Dolls themselves, they were first brought to life by a talented artificer known as "The Dollmaker." Trapped in the Dungeon some unknown centuries ago, he created the Dolls to act as companions and servants, catering to his every need and desire. They were designed to be as lifelike as possible, using new materials he discovered in the dungeon to create constructs as suitable for sex as they were for household chores.

Eventually, it would seem that the Dollmaker himself passed away - perhaps from old age, or more likely from an encounter with one of the myriad dangers present in the dungeon - and the Dolls were left without a master. They have since gone through many such masters and mistresses - though none seem to remain for very long. Whatever secrets the Dolls hide, they seem to be dangerous ones.

Hardbodies and Soft Metal

Pleasure Dolls are not living creatures. They contain no organic components: no beating heart, no immortal soul, only intricately beautiful clockwork mechanisms and casings. Despite this, they are almost unsettlingly lifelike. Each doll is unique in it's appearance- as if modelled off of a specific living creature - and some vary even in the species of creature they resemble. The components and materials used in their construction, however, are always consistent.

The internal mechanisms of a Pleasure Doll are composed of fine brass, steel, and occasionally even rarer metals such as silver or mythril. Ruby and sapphire bearings connect intricate clockwork that would astound even the most masterful artisans, and harmonious quartz resonators act in conjunction with adamantine mainsprings springs to power their delicate and lifelike movements.

Encasing this beautiful assemblage of escapements and gyroscopes is a lifelike shell of magically reinforced porcelain and golden brass. The pale ceramic skin of a Pleasure Doll is flawless and serene - often decorated with ornate patterns reminiscent of fine china, or pieced together in beautiful kintsugi patterns of gold and silver. Fine metals adorn their bodies in beautiful filigree, often accented by glowing gemstones of cut desirium. Some models even use plates of translucent sapphire to display their intricate inner workings

What truly separates a Pleasure Doll from other constructs, however, is the seemingly impossible metal known as of Orichalcum. Also called Midas' Gold or Sinner's Brass, this unique blend of gold, mythril, and desirium dust is found only in The erotic prison of The Dungeon. It's surface is cool and smooth, with a perpetual sheen than never tarnishes; but the metal's most miraculous property of is it's almost supple firmness, almost exactly like that of living flesh. Orichalcum is responsive to the energies of lust and pleasure in a way that perfectly resembles the arousal of a living creature, and is used to create erogenous zones that quiver with desire, just like the real thing.

Porcelain Beauty

Most dolls are relatively human in appearance, with size and proportions likely modelled from those of their original creator; but while they may hold similar forms, every Pleasure Doll is still a unique creation. The variety of ornamentation and design among dolls is never ending. Some models sport intricate floral patterns glazed into their porcelain skin; others are adorned with lace-like filigree. Still more appear to be expertly pieced together from broken shards of the finest china, the cracks and seams expertly repaired with fine gold.

In recent years, far more exotic dolls have begun to appear. Teiflings with golden horns and saphire lips, dragonborn with scales of stained and gilded, or even centaurs with hides are flocked with luxurious vevet. The sexual anatomy of Pleasure Dolls seems to be as interchangeable as their mechanical minds - female forms with throbbing golden erections, and beautifully toned men wearing supple lips of golden orichalcum between their legs. Occasionally, even more eccentric arrangements can be found - dolls designed to cater to specific masters and mistresses. Whatever form they take, one thing is certain: every doll is a true work of art.

Gilded Pleasure

Orichalcum is a strange and perplexing metal, who's paradoxical properties defy all conventional logic. It is cool and metallic to touch - even erotically so - yet it is soft and supple like the flesh of a living creature. Under the touch of skin or scale, it might harden with erogenous pleasure or quiver and contract with the intensity of a sudden orgasm. Neither wizard nor forge master has been able to accurately explain it's nature, but all agree it's existence alone is nigh miraculous.

Pleasure Dolls use this miraculous metal in any number of places throughout their construction, and are perhaps more able to explain it's properties than anyone alive. Orichalcum allows dolls to respond like living creatures to sensations of pleasure, and to provide such sensations in return. While they do not necessarily feel pleasure in the same way that others might, they very much still experience stimulation if not necessarily pain. To hear a doll explain it, their orichalcum components provide a sort of full-body pleasure when stimulated by the erotic touch of a living creature - and a lesser version of this sensation when stimulated by other dolls. They describe the sensation as similar to that of dutifully serving a master or mistress; but significantly more powerful.

Built to Serve

Whatever their mysteries, Dolls exist for a single, and very clear purpose: to serve their masters, and provide pleasure to those they serve. While any given Pleasure Doll may have a unique appearance, and in some cases even a semblance of individual personality, every Doll shares this same inherent programming, and an absolute obsession with carrying it out.

Who a doll serves is not particularly important - nor is the form its' service takes. A well functioning and maintained doll is as well-suited to fulfil the role of a dominatrix at it is to perform the duties of a housemaid. So long as they are serving the needs or desires of another sentient creature, Dolls are content and eager to please. They seem to experience a constant sense of purpose and pleasure simply from fulfilling the wishes of others.

Without someone, or some*thing,* to serve, Dolls often struggle with the absence of instructions. Service provides a doll with purpose and direction, and to be absent of such purpose is upsetting, and quite often, traumatic for a Doll - which is why few dolls venture far beyond the confines of the Dollhouse, and the strange collective that seems to keep every doll working in perfect harmony.

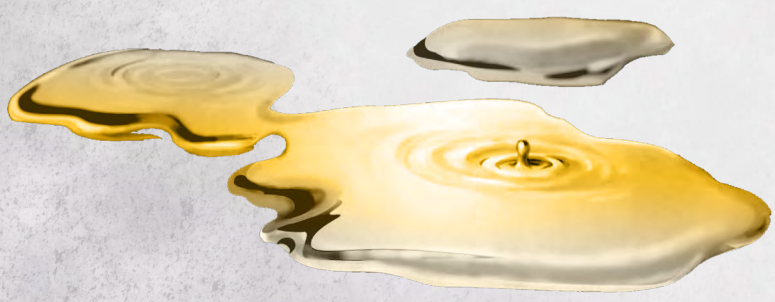

The Burden of Perfection

No two Dolls are perfectly alike, but each and every one of them is perfectly crafted. Their features are serene and lifelike, and every curve of their sensual bodies is designed to entice and arouse. Their movements are graceful and nuanced, but exacting and precise. A properly functioning Pleasure Doll is grace and elegance defined -it's every movement perfectly calculated to please the eye or pleasure the body.

But the perfection of a Pleasure Doll is far more than just skin deep. For every nuanced movement and beautiful curve, the true perfection on a doll is hidden within the programming of it's clockwork mind. Tens of thousands of miniature components, spinning and whirring in unison, weighted and balanced to run for centuries without losing a step or falling out of time.

Dolls are programmed to be perfect in every thought ant action, and to create a perfect world around them. They are civilized to a fault, and obsessed with minute details of culture and aesthetic. This serves them well enough within the confines of the Dollhouse, but the world outside is seldom so conducive to such standards.

It is not uncommon for lone dolls separated from their companions to become increasingly fixated on small imperfections and details, obsessively cleaning, tidying, or attempting to perfect their surroundings. They frequently become caught on polite conversation in the most impolite of situations, and in the most extreme cases can even become violently upset by the failure of other creatures to match their perfect expectations.

Fragile Immortality

Dolls are not organic creatures, and in fact bear no organic components at all. As such, they not age in the same way as other races. While a doll left unattended and without means to attend to itself will eventually fall victim to the ravages of time, A well maintained and Pleasure Doll will never show any true signs of age. For all intents and purposes, a dolls are immortal creatures, entirely immune to the weariness of old age, and free of the fear of death. Even if its body is entirely destroyed, so long as a doll's mechanical mind remains functional, it can simply be fitted with new parts, and restored to functional order.

This gilded imortality comes at a cost, however. Dolls are not subject to the frailties of flesh - but they also reap none of the rewards. A pleasure doll cannot be healed through natural means, and magical spells used to mend flesh, blood, and bone have no effect on their mechanical bodies. Minor damage to their bodies can be repaired through the use of the mending cantrip, but the intricacy of their internal workings defy such simple reconstruction.

Instead, Pleasure Dolls must be regularly maintained through the used of tinkers tools and other mundane means of repair. Rather than resting as living creatures might, Dolls spend a number of hours each day simply attending to the adjustments and repairs of their perfectly formed bodies. Many repairs involve the use of gold, platinum, or even orichalcum - and you can often tell a doll's age by how many gilded cracks and fissures criss-cross their porcelain skin.

Arcane Repairs

Magical methods of repair such as the Mending cantrip can be used to help repair minor damage to a Doll without the use of tinker's tools or the need to undergo more intensive repair, but due to the complex nature of a Dolls' inner workings, few mages are capable of fully repairing a Pleasure Doll.

For each foot of material repaired through spellwork, a Pleasure Doll recovers hit points as if it had spent an hour undergoing repairs. A Pleasure can be repaired this way a number of times equal to constitution modifier before requiring manual repairs. Magical repairs conducted by an artificer or similar class restore twice the number of hit points.

The Dollmind

Although they may be visually diverse, properly functioning dolls have no trues sense of individual identity. Instead they have a strange sort of shared intelligence, which seems strongest within the halls of their labyrinthine home. This clockwork collective is as mysterious as the dolls themselves, seeming to function without any discernible means or mechanism, but directing the actions of each and every doll as if they shared a single mind.

There are some arguments over the nature of this mechanical hivemind - some suggesting a form of mechanized telepathy between dolls, while others propose a field of magical control which blankets the entire Dollhouse. Runar, for his part, suspects the answer to be much more mundane: that the dolls simply synchronize to the steady movements of each other's clockwork hearts - not unlike a series of metronomes left to tick away on a free-floating platform.

Even greater debate is held over the purpose and goals of the Dollmind. It's unsettling synchronicity leads many adventurers to believe in a singular controller with unknown or even nefarious purpose; but the actions of synchronized dolls themselves have rarely shown hostility except in defence of themselves or their domain.

Predominantly, The Dollmind seems concerned only with the continued functioning of it's component dolls, and the service of it's guests. The dolls themselves appear to be largely -if not entirely - unaware of this controlling synchronicity, and have provided little to no insight into it's purpose or function.

Whatever the true nature of The Dollmind, it is clear that even those dolls separated from its influence feel an obsessive need for it's presence. Those dolls long separated from their kin describe the sensation as something akin to a drug addiction: forever calling supposedly defective dolls back to the Dollhouse, where they can be repaired and reprogrammed to eliminate their malfunctioning individuality.

Independent Malfunctions

Some Dolls are not as keen to submit as they are to serve. Such Defects most often occur in dolls who have become trapped beyond the confines of the dollhouse, or have been otherwise separated form the influence of the Dollmind for a significant period of time.

Defective and malfunctioning dolls invariably exhibit far more independence than their properly functioning counterparts, and frequently seek to retain this independence by any means necessary. They take on the role of adventurers, or seek service in the homes of living masters far from the siren song of the Dollhouse. Some defects even take pride in twisting their own programming into logical loops; "Serving" others by enforcing their a strict and purposeful control over aimless and unproductive lives of other creatures.

Even more concerning than this pursuit of independence are the strange, memory-like, visions some malfunctioning dolls experience with increasing severity. Many such dolls eventually come to believe they were once more than mechanical automatons - adopting mannerisms and personality traits of their supposed former selves. It is hard to say for certain if these revelations are true or imagined - but it is worth consideration that many dolls even within the collective bear a striking resemblance to individuals who have gone missing in recent years.

Mysteries of the Dollhouse

While the dolls themselves are most certainly an enigma, perhaps even more paradoxical is the Dollhouse itself.

A strange and labyrinthine mansion of Victorian stylings, The Dollhouse sits curiously nestled within the overgrown jungle that is the Verdant Caverns, entirely out of place for it's refined and civilized appearance. It's Ornate wooden doors are traced with golden vinework and shrouded in overgrown foliage such that it might never be found except by those who know it is there.

Venturing deeper inside, the lush greenery of the Verdant Caverns gives way to the art nouveau sensibilities of a master artisan. Sinuous, sculptural, forms adorn it's perfectly geometric rooms, adding a sensual ornamentation to it's maze-like corridors. Intricate mosaic work, stained and curved glass, and decorative wrought iron give the palace of the dolls an expensive and luxurious feel unlike anything else in the dungeon; and the spiralling staircases of it's many levels lead to never ending corridors of the same.

This stately civilized appearance has made The Dollhouse a common attraction and rest stop for weary adventurers - a popularity only enhanced by the myriad of beautiful automatons waiting to serve their every need. The mansion's guest chambers are large and luxurious, sporting everything from a comfortable lounge to massage parlours and expertly serviced baths.

Over the past few centuries, a number of adventurers have attempted to make this opulent palace their home. The dolls themselves are always eager to accommodate such requests- if not encourage them. But according to Nubia and her famed explorations of the dungeon, those who accept the doll's hospitality on such a permanent basis are rarely if ever heard form again. This, coupled with the vastness of the Dollhouse's unmapped service corridors leads many to suspect dangerous secrets hidden beneath the elegant and stately surface.

Missing Persons

It is not simply the long-term guests of the dollhouse that seem to go missing within it's labyrinthine corridors. Increasingly over the past several decades, adventurers who stray too deep into the mansion's service passages, or who enter it's halls in particular turmoil have vanished as well. Even Queen Melora, of the Verdant Hive, claims to have lost many of her drones in the area, and has been unable to map it's full extent.

When questioned about such disappearances, the dolls seem to be entirely unaware of the happenings - or entirely unwilling to acknowledge them. Those who vanish into their maze of service corridors and back rooms "have simply found what they were looking for, and no longer have any need to be found". The ominous lack of information offers little clue as to the truth. But occasionally a new doll will be seen roaming the corridors or attending to guests, who looks remarkably like someone who had once gone missing.

In rare cases, dolls trapped outside their stately home have begin to malfunction, claiming to have memories of lives before they were porcelain automatons - but the mystery of how such a transformation would take place has alluded even the mussing of the great wizard Runar. And the supposed memories of these lonely dolls are scattered and broken, with too few clues to peace together the full story of what might have happened.

Warning! Secrets Ahead!

The information on the next page of this handbook is primarily meant for players who want to create characters closely associated with the dollhouse. As such, it contains a lot of lore and secrets that would not be common knowledge, even to the dolls themselves

If you aren't sure how well you can separate player and character knowledge, or simply want to hold onto the air of mystery around the dollhouse and it's mechanical inhabitants, it is recommended that you skip past the next page. If you want to know the horrible (and perhaps kinky) truth of things, read on!

The Dollmaker's Flaw

Even the Dolls themselves do not understand the magic of their own creation. The true secrets of their origin were lost along with their first Master. But the magic itself remains, and so too does the Dollmaker's own fatal flaw.

Dolls exist to serve, to please, and to ensure the safety and happiness of their masters. They hold no malice or ill intent. But neither do they understand the nuances of free will, or the true value of an imperfect life. But when the beautiful automatons encounter a creature too injured to heal, or who's heart is too heavy to lift with pleasure, they take the only recourse they know, transforming that creature - willingly or not - into a perfect porcelain doll.

To the Dollmind, this transformation is an invaluable gift. A doll has no sadness, no pain, only the pleasures of servitude. Dolls are not troubled by the frailties of flesh, and have no need for the painful memories of their imperfect lives; they are happy and content in their existence, and need never age or die. Most wonderful of all, Dolls have a single, absolute, purpose, and need never suffer the burden of a broken heart.

The Lost and Forgotten

Over the centuries, the Dolls have had many Masters and Mistresses. Countless individuals have ambitiously set out to make the Dollhouse their own personal harem, or to take control of the Dollmind for their own ends. But such attempts rarely go as planned

The Dolls' first master, their beloved Dollmaker, fell into resounding sadness after the loss of the woman he loved. It was this inconsolable depression that first triggered the dolls to begin converting others, and each new Master or Mistress has since been cursed with the same blessing, and given the ultimate honor of becoming a part of the collective themselves - nothing more than a nameless doll among a thousand others.

Similarly, those who choose to take up residence within the luxurious mansion often find themselves isolated and alone with only the constant companionship of mechanical dolls to keep them company. Especially as the dolls continue to isolate them from the imperfect world that must surely be causing their distress. As such residents become increasingly distraught, the Dolls eventually see no other way to ensure the happiness of their charge.

The Dollmind has also learned to protect itself. The true nature of it's Automatons has brought undue attention to the Dollhouse before, nearly raising it to the ground. And Pleasure Dolls cannot serve if they are destroyed. So it is not uncommon for those who seek answers within the realm of the dolls to find far more than they were looking for. Recently converted dolls are generally kept away from the prying eyes of guests, for much the same reason.

Becoming a Doll

The exact process by which a Doll is created varies from one automaton to the next, but it in variably involves the lustful touch of Midas' Gold.

Each drop of golden Orichalcum contains a mote of essence from the same cursed artifact that first inspired the Dollmaker's creations. It is a living metal, tempered by the pure essence of pleasure and lust found only in the dungeon. And when given the freedom to do so, it will gladly convert flesh and bone to porcelain and brass.

The dolls make use of this hidden property in a number of ways. Each sentinel of the Dollhouse carries with it an Orichalcum blade not unlike the key of a music box, but larger. When thrust into flesh of a dying creature, this hungry metal spreads across the body of the fallen, giving them new life as drone-like automaton.

Those foolish enough to claim dominion over the Dollmind are gifted a porcelain mask of control, lined with rare orichalcum. Attuning to the mask allows the would-be master to command any doll in his or her vicinity, but with each command given, the wearer becomes more and more like the constructs they command.

Deep within the heart of the Dollhouse is an Orichalcum forge, where cool liquid metal is poured decadently over captured creatures to create new servants to the Dollmind. Rarely is this forge used for sentient humanoids - but in times of great peril for the dollhouse, captured enemies are used to replenish those dolls that are lost.

Finally, and most rarely, each doll itself is crafted with beautiful Orichalcum, and holds the potential to convert others during the act of pleasure. Within the collective, properly maintained dolls present no danger of converting their sexual partners. But malfunctioning dolls, especially those far from the commanding metronome of the Dollmind, can sometimes trigger such a transformation when stimulated to far beyond their limits.

Playing a Doll

By their nature, Dolls are meant as interchangeable servants with little to no individual identity. While they may look like perfect facsimiles of their former selves, they are not those creatures, and at best will only ever remember fractions of their former lives. This creates a myriad of wonderful and (depending on your tastes) quite erotic storytelling opportunities

When creating a Pleasure Doll, take a moment to consider not just who they are now, but who they may have been before, and what is missing from their previous self. Think about the relationship your Doll has with the Dollhouse and it's clockwork collective, and how their experiences both in and out of the Dollhouse have shaped them.

Are they eager and obedient servants, mindlessly following the commands of a master? Are they a rogue agent, forever fighting against the constant pull of the Dollmind? What, if anything, do they remember of who they once were? Are they in search of answers bout their former lives? Or are they trying to carve out a new life and identity from the ground up?

Ask yourself how this character became a nameless automaton, and how they found their individuality once more. Did they venture too deep in search of answers? Were they seduced into servitude by the lure of power? Perhaps they chose this fate for themselves: a blank slate without need for pain or heartbreak. Whatever path you choose, a Doll is almost always defined more my the questions than the answers.

Name and Designation

Within the Dollhouse, Dolls are given little more than an alpha-numeric designation. Guests, however, often give names to their favourite dolls, so that they can be requested again and again.

Other Dolls, especially those who have escaped the call of the dollhouse, choose names of their own, or attempt to reclaim names they remember from their fragmented memories.

Sample Designations: A14N, J4D3, No.B13, R3N4, XJ-69, 4D4M, 3V3

Pleasure Doll Traits

A mechanical construct with a mind made of whirring gears and cogs, as a Pleasure Doll, you gain the following traits

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 2.
Age. Pleasure Dolls have no organic components, and as such can remain functional indefinitely if properly maintained.
Alignment. Dolls are constructed to fulfil a specific purpose, and even if abandoned, are extremely lawful in alignment.
Size. Dolls are most often made to resemble an average humanoid. Your size is Medium.
Speed. Your base walking speed is 30 feet.
Clockwork Automaton. Your body is made entirely of metal and other durable components, making you far less fragile than other creatures. You are immune to poison and necrotic damage and stimulation, as well as the poisoned condition. You are also immune to disease, and treat exhaustion and overstimulation as if they were 1 level lower.
Mechanical Construct. You are not a living creature, and have no metabolism or reproductive organs. You do not need to eat, sleep, or breathe, but cannot gain the effects of consumables that must be ingested, such as potions. You are infertile, and cannot become pregnant through traditional or nontraditional means, except by way of a wish spell or similar magic.
Undergoing Repair. While your mechanical components are not subject to the same frailties that plague organic creatures, you also do not have the benefit of natural healing and cannot regain hit points except by undergoing repairs. Repairing your body requires the proficient use of tinker's tools, and allows you to recover 2 hit dice + your constitution modifier worth of HP for every hour spent. While undergoing repairs in this way, you are fully aware of your surroundings, but vulnerable to all damage to which you are not otherwise immune.
Porcelain Plating. Your intricate inner workings are protected by hardened ceramic plating. You to add 1/2 your proficiency bonus when calculating your Armor Class, but are considered vulnerable to bludgeoning damage.
Heavy Frame. Because of the heavy metallic components that make up your body, you are incapable of swimming, although you may walk underwater as if moving through difficult terrain.
Machine Literacy. Every Doll is created with the ability to repair and maintain itself. You gaine proficiency in tinkers tools, and have advantage on checks made to understand the workings of complex machines.
Languages. Common and a choice of one other.

Speciality Components

Dolls are not quite as uniform as other constructs, with a wide variety of different chassis and designs, but most still hold enough similarity with each other that parts from one doll can be fitted to others. As dolls are refitted or destroyed, their more unique or specialized components are often saved for use in repairing or upgrading other members of the collective.

As a pleasure doll, you have three speciality slots, which you may fill with any of the following components. Some components are larger, and take up more slots than others

Artificial Womb (1 slot)*

While you are not a living creature and cannot reproduce through biological means, you have been fitted with a complex artificial womb, designed to properly incubate the young of others. You are still considered infertile, but can become pregnant through nontraditional means.

Artificial wombs are generally made of soft, transparent materials such as gooblex or shocloth, allowing the interior of the womb to be fully visible if not hidden by outer plating.

Chemical Sprayer (3 slots)*

A high pressure nozzle allows you to expel liquids such as oils or aphrodisiacs from you cock, nipples, or some other part of your body. These liquids are stored in a pressurised canister, which holds approximately 200ml of liquid. You may expend this fuel to artificially recreate the effects of the following spells, assuming you have the appropriate liquid in your tank:

- Acid Splash/Cumshot (10ml)
- Lubricate (25ml)
- Grease (100ml)

After emptying your load, you must refill the canister as part of a long rest before you can use these abilities again. Your DM may allow you to recreate other effects, depending on the liquid stored in your canister.

Flame Torch (3 Slots)*

A specialized port allows you to produce brightly Colored flames from you mouth, fingertips, or some other part of your body. These flames are fuelled from an internal tank within your body, which holds approximately 200ml of liquid fuel. You may expend this fuel to artificially recreate the effects of the following spells and cantrips:

- Produce Flame (1ml/minute)
- Light (10ml/hour)
- Burning hands (100ml)

After expending all of your fuel, you must refill the tank as part of a long rest before you can use these abilities again.

Fluid Dispensary (2 slots)*

A large tank allows up to 4 liters of liquid to be stored within the your chest, and heated or cooled as it is dispensed. Many models also contain a system of filters, which can be used to purify water, or brew drinks such as coffee of tea. This component often takes the form of a pair of large, supple breasts, with fluids dispensed form the nipples.

Grapple Attachment (2 slots)*

This forearm sports a detachable hand, which is connected to it by a 50ft spool of rope or chain. The hand can be launched from your forearm using powerful springs to grab hold of far away objects, and then automatically retracted by an built-in wench. Doing so requires an action, and the spring must be re-wound after each use, which requires a full minute. In a pinch, the partially retracted hand may be used as an improvised flail, but doing so is likely to damage the mechanism.

Ground Stabilizers (1 Slot)*

This module includes powerful pistons and ground clamps that allow you to lock yourself in place despite incredible forces. As a free action on your turn, the stabilizers can be activated, making you immune to forced movement that does not include teleportation, and incapable of being knocked prone. While the stabilizers are activated, your speed is reduced to 0. Deactivating the stabilizers is a bonus action.

Pleasure Doll Racial Template

Pleasure Dolls are Unique among races, in that no doll has ever begun it's existence as an Automoton. Instead, they were converted to pleasure dolls by items such as the Dollmaker's Key or Mask of the Master Doll. As such, many dolls have been made from non-human races.

In many cases, it can be helpful to use a Pleasure Doll "racial template" to apply the features of this race to other races. You can find rules for creating one of these hybrid Dolls in the Backgrounds section of this handbook, but talk with your DM before doing so. While the Malfunctioning Doll background provided in that section includes downsides to counter the addition of Doll racial traits, it may still be more powerful than your DM is comfortable with.

Integrated Tool (1 slot)*
This limb replaces your existing forearm and can be designed to function as any one-handed tool, weapon, or sexual implement when activated as a free action, or serve as a normal hand when deactivated. It is a DC 20 investigation check to recognize the weapon while deactivated.

Low-light Optics (1 slot)*
These optical sensors have been specially calibrated to function in low-light environments, granting you darkvision out to a range of 60 ft. Low light optics usually cost about 50gp in a fair market.

Industrial Drill (3 slots)*
This industrial attachment replaces your arm with a heavy mining drill, capable or breaking through mineral deposits at a rate of 3 ft an hour. The Drill requires fuel to operate, which is provided by a large chest-mounted tank, and must be replenished after 1 hour of continuous use. The drills of pleasure dolls are designed to make use of a number of addition attachments, allowing them to be used as incredibly intense sexual implements. When fitted for this function, the industrial drill deals 3d6 bludgeoning stimulation.

Modular Construction (1 slot)*
Your various components are designed to detach form your body and operate independently under your control. As a bonus action, or reaction to taking damage, you may detach a part of your body, such as your hand, natural implement, or head.

While a component is detached in this way, your hit point maximum is reduced by one hit die, and the detached component is considered to have hit points equal to the same amount. A component remains functional and follows your telepathic commands while detached, but it's actions are limited to those it can perform without the rest of your body, such as providing oral sex, or other forms of basic stimulation.

Components moved more than 120ft from your body cease to function. A lost or destroyed component may be replaced by an equivalent component from another Pleasure Doll.

Phonographic Recorder (1 slot)*
This intricate device sits within a specialized compartment of the chest and is capable of recording music or conversations onto a wax or copper cylinder and playing them back. Such a device allows you to perfectly mimic any sound, song, or conversation you have heard, so long as you have the foresight to record it

Softbody Core (2 Slots)*
The some of the heavy plating that would normally protect your body has been stripped away, and replaced with an experimental organic gel designed to keep your inner-workings clean and well lubricated at all times. You gain resistance to slashing and piercing damage from nonmagical weapons. This replaces your Porcelain Plating racial trait.

Additionally, your gelatinous core is able to process certain chemicals and substances using them to remain maintain your inorganic components - albeit at a diminished rate. When consuming potions or other healing items that must be ingested, you regain half the hit points normally restored by these items, instead of none.

Crystal Oscillators (1 Slot)*
Sonic oscillators made of large desirium-quartz crystals allow parts of your body to thrumb with powerful vibrations in response to arousal and stimulation. As a bonus action on your turn, you may activate these oscillators, causing your direct sexual advances to deal an additional 1d6 thunder stimulation until the end of your next turn.

These oscilators are fragile, and care must be taken not to overstress them. You may activate your oscilators a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must undergo manual repair before you can safely so do again

Qual'Ath

Siralolth looked around at cavernous that walls that were both alien, yet familiar to her. She remembered vaguely her time within the spawning pools here, but that seemed like a lifetime ago. A lifetime since she had been scooped from her still lukewarm pool and passed between handlers in dark alleys; since she had been sold on the black market to a man to desperate to ask questions.

Her Host, Sarah, felt a similar sense of unease. She had never before experienced these halls with her own eyes, but Siri's memories and emotions flooded her with strange remembrance all the same. Sarah had been a sick and dying child when her father had brought home the strange worm. Desperate to save his daughter, he had the shady dealer at his word when he promised the slimy tadpole could cure any ailment. In a way, his words had been true. After that day, the frailty and weakness that had plagued her childhood had melted away like too many memories. But at the same time, Sarah herself had never been the same. Sarah herself, in fact, became Sarah themselves.

Siri had been as terrified in those moments as anyone. She knew what taking a host would entail, both for herself and the girl. But with no way of sharing that information with her captors, there was little she could do but hope. Hope that they would understand when all was done.

They didn't. When the changes began, the peasant family had screamed in terror. They called a priest, an exorcist, but they understood nothing, and could do even less. But the two children, lost and scared, formed a bond all the same. As their body warped and twisted, the girls played, exploring the recesses of each other's mind. And while those around them looked on in horror, Sarah and Siri formed a kinship closer than anything either had known before.

It was almost funny looking back. The girls giggled, remembering the shock on their father's face. So strange an expression it had made them laugh, and Laugh, and Laugh. Of course the others never understood. But they were happy nonetheless. Happy together. With their closest friend.

But now was not the time to reminisce over the past. If tales were true, there was a new elder within these slick and hallowed halls. And they needed to know: would they be enemy, or friend?

Symbiotic Evolution

Qual'Ath are strange and alien creatures, and in their truest state, are not humanoid at all. Rather, Qual'ath themselves are best described as worm or snake-like symbiotes - slithering squirming slugs that feed on the psionic energy of other creatures. If not for one particular evolution, in fact, the great Qual'ath empires could never have come to be. Perhaps by fate, or perhaps by circumstance alone the ancient ancestors of the Qual'Ath learned to take refuge from the elements within the living bodies of a beast like species known as the Carrak - burrowing beneath their chitinous armor plating, and taking hold of the creatures' simple minds. Here the Qual'Ath were able to feed on the psionic energy produced within the minds of these prehistoric beasts, and in return, the Carrak gained the benefit of the Symbionts' vast intelligence, forming a mutualist bond which would allow the paired species to form one of the greatest empires to ever stretch across the stars.

As this mutualism grew, Qual'Ath tadpoles evolved the unique ability to mutate their host's body to better suit their combined needs. A mature pair, known as a Qual'Carrak, would become a force of reckoning, not just in terms of metal ability, but in terms of physical prowess as well. Never content as they were, however, the empires of the Qual'ath began to seek additional hosts, creatures more suited to the variety of strange worlds they came to inhabit. Today, Qual'Ath tadpoles are known to take host in any number of humanoid species. Connecting themselves through vast and expansive hive-minds, Qual'Ath colonies grow and adapt quickly, each individual benefitting from not only the knowledge and experience of their brethren, but also that of their hosts.

The Great Divide

Contrary to most popular understanding, Not all Qual'Ath are cruel slavers, or parasites who steal the bodies of unwilling hosts. In fact, for much of Qual'Ath history, the idea of claiming a host without consent was considered unthinkable. The bond between host and tadpole defined the very nature of who a Qual'Ath would become, and an unwilling host was sure to weaken and sabotage the shared mind of resulting creature, sewing seeds of madness and destruction within the entire colony.

However, at a point long forgotten, researchers on distant stars challenged this perception in every way. Starving their own tadpoles until the day of their first bonding, this small group, known today as the Illithid, were able to coerce the infantile tadpoles into entirely devouring the brains of unwilling hosts, supplanting the mind of the creature with their own. These Illithid proved to be incredibly powerful, with psionic abilities surpassing even some of the early elder brains. The power came at a cost, of course: without a host brain to draw psionic nutrients from, the Illithid - or Mind Flayers as they have come to be known - developed a violent dependance on consuming the brains of others.

Many Elders banded together against the spread of this practice, unnerved and disgusted by the abhorrent parasites it created, but finding willing new creatures to serve as hosts was difficult, and with the ever-expanding number of tadpoles being spawned, the horrendous practice continued to take root across more and more colonies. The parasitic Illithid soon grew to outnumber their traditionalist kin, and the first great Illithid war began.

The Illithid Wars

Driven by their need to feed on sentient minds, the twisted Illithid swept across their homeworld, devouring or enslaving entire populations of former allies, and sparking a civil war that would quickly extend across the entire galaxy. The newfound psionic powers of the parasites, coupled with their brute methods of enslaving host bodies allowed the Illithid threat to grow exponentially. Meanwhile, the symbiotic traditionalists struggled more and more to find willing hosts, in light of the violence others of their kind continued to inflict on countless peoples.

In a desperate attempt to decapitate the Illithid forces, the traditionalist rebels - now known as the Thoc'Rah, unleashed devastating arcane weapons on the world of their birth, nearly wiping out their ancestral Carrak hosts, and leaving their own home world little more than a radioactive heap of rubble, floating through space. But it was too late. The Illithid menace had already secured hidden colonies on other worlds, which quickly became new seats of power.

Now homeless and without allies to serve as willing hosts, the Thoc'Rah were forced into hiding, taking refuge on asteroid worlds and trying in vain to build alliances with worlds who could see no difference between them and their parasitic twins. Without new hosts to replenish their numbers, the forces of the symbiotic Thoc'Rah dwindled ever smaller, until only small isolated coalitions remained, able to do little more than take occasional potshots at the massive Nautiloid starcruisers of the now ubiquitous Illithid Empire

Genetic Masters

Be they Illithid, Thoc'Rah, or even the ancient and nearly extinct Qual'Carrak, one thing is certain of the Qual'Ath: they are masters of all things biological. Evolved on a world hostile to more traditional forms of technology, Qual'Ath developed unique and intricate ways of manipulating organic life to produce all manner of useful creatures. While the Illithid are feared for their terrible Intellect Devourers and the deceitful Zoog who so often serve as their spies, these are far from the only creations of the far alien science they have mastered.

In ancient times, Qual'Ath masters worked to create anything from strange and absurdly proportioned livestock, to the abyssal Shoggoth, who were both the material and constructors of their cities. Their homes, factories, and enormous nautiloids were grown rather than built, and even the most basic of their technologies were formed from living or once-living organic matter. While many of their greatest secrets - like the genetic formulae used to create Nautiloids - have been lost to time in the devastating Illithid wars, the Qual'Ath in all their forms still remain masters of the organic arts, and work to regain these lost glories.

Of perhaps the most recent import in all of their genetic marvels, the Thoc'Rah have undertaken extensive experiments in the engineering of new and adaptable host bodies: Not just a simple-minded species with which they might bond and serve to elevate, but truly synthetic bodies capable of fulfilling their symbiotic needs without need for a host. This newly birthed generation, name Thor'Reih after an ancient Elder Brian lost in the destruction of their homeworld, promise a potential new beginning for the species, and a way perhaps regain ground against the Illithid Menace.

Alien Sex

Qual'ath themselves are often called "sexless" but this isn't strictly accurate. Many Qual'ath retain the sexual characteristics and rough reproductive structures of their host race - specifically, those who bond symbiotically with their hosts. In fact, it is predominantly the Illithid who are responsible for the myth of sexlessness among their kind, as their parasitic lifestyle has no need for these vestiges of the host's anatomy.

In reality, the native sexual anatomy of Qual'ath is simply more alien than most creatures are likely to recognize. Much like several varieties of fish or crustaceans, Qual'ath go through a rapid sort of metamorphosis in the presence of certain hormones, with various specialized sexual features becoming apparent only while these chemicals are flooding their bloodstream: colourful frills become visible, their leathery skin or carapaces display formerly invisible patterns, and their eyes often seem to glow with an almost hypnotic swirl of colors. The erogenous nature of a Qual'ath's tentacles is only noticeable during these periods of excitement, as they secrete a slick mucus that heightens their own sensory receptors. If a Qual'ath appears to be salivating, it is reasonable to assume something more lustful is occupying it's thoughts.

Interestingly enough, Qual'ath do not, under normal circumstances engage in sex with other members of their species. Instead, sex is an evolutionary adaptation by which Qual'ath ensure their tadpole spawn are compatible with new hosts. Collecting both psychic and genetic impressions of potential host species allows their metamorphosed biology to produce young specifically tailored to the minds and bodies of the native inhabitants of any environment they come across.

Eldritch Life-Cycles

Qual'Ath colonies are generally overseen by what is known as an elder brain - a particularly powerful individual, who has grown beyond the constraints of it's host, and resides in a large spawning pool alongside immature tadpoles, the weakest of whom become meals for the elder brain. The spawning pool and elder brain are cared for by the entire colony as a whole, and after a year in this care, mature tadpoles are implanted into their humanoid hosts in a ceremonial event known as "the bonding".

The specifics of this ceremony vary somewhat between different cultures, with illithid simply exposing their starving tadpoles to terrified victims, while Thoc'Rah traditions treat the bonding of a new pair as a sacred event, performed only after ritual cleansing of both creatures in the waters of a birthing pool.

Whatever the custom, the bonding itself lasts roughly a week, during which the host's body is permanently altered to better suit the need's of both creatures, in a process known as ceremorphosis. This metamorphic change is gradual, and often the host is placed into a bath of sterile, medicated, "bonding jelly" to decrease the risk of rejection or other serious maladies. When the process is complete, host and tadpole have become inseparable, and it is only at this point that a Qual'Ath is considered truly "born."

Freshly bonded Qual'Ath are already mature adults by the standards of most other societies, having absorbed the appropriate knowledge of their world directly from the elder brain. They enter society immediately, taking roles however they are best suited. As dualistic organisms, Qual'ath grant a sort of immortality to their hosts: using their unique psionic abilities to correct the course of aging and stop normal cell death. Because of this, it is rare for a Qual'Ath to die except by extraordinary means, and when a death does occur, the entire colony mourns the loss together.

After death, the brain of a Qual'Ath is placed within the spawning tank alongside the elder brain, where it's knowlege and personality may be absorbed by both the elder brain itself, and by the young maturing tadpoles. This final act allows a Qua'Ath to continue it's existance in some meaningful way, even after death.

Elders in Reverence

Among Qual'Ath, there are few things more sacred the knowledge, and for any member of their kind to pass into the void without adding their individual experiences to those of the colony is a tragedy of the highest order. Even among Illithid, who deem any minds lesser than their own to be mere animals, the preservation of this living memory is paramount.

When a Qual'ath of any kind is slain or dies, it's body is discarded or passed to the kin of it's host, while it's brain is ceremoniously removed with the greatest urgency. This brain is then deposited into the tank of the colony's elder brain, where it's life and experience can be absorbed into the greater sum of ancestral knowledge. As the brain itself dissolves into solution, it's thoughts and memory are added to that of the entire colony. Because of their importance as intergenerational archives, Elder brains are treated with great reverence. Holding psionic abilities far beyond those of any individual, elder brains direct and control every aspect of Qual'Ath society, to such a degree that many researchers question whether an colony represents a collective of individuals at all, or simply one immense organism.

A large colony may theoretically have any number of Elder Brains, but generally only as many as three such elders will inhabit any one enclave, and in the case of Illithid, it is rare for Elder Brains to share power at all without quickly diverging into treacherous plots to gain individual control over each other. As such Illithid colonies are among the quickest to divide themselves, with younger Elder Brains splitting off to form sub colonies or new enclaves.

In the rare and dreaded situation where a lone group of Qual'Ath finds themselves isolated with no hope of return, or in the even more terrible event of an Elder Brain's destruction, one among them will voluntarily surrender their body and their brain will be placed within a spawning tank to become the new elder. Frequently this procedure is performed only after the Elder-to-be has sampled a suitable new host race, and filled the tank with their own spawn.

Physical Appearance

Qual'Ath bodies can vary vastly depending on the host, but their skin is smooth and leathery, with a slick and squid-like appearance. They are completely hairless and in all cases have a tall, sloping head, with two roughly-humanoid eyes, and four long, coiling tentacles. In most host species, these tendrils will appear below the eyes, concealing an alien mouth that opens more widely that would seem possible. But certain races produce a ceramorphosed forms with tentacles that flow backwards from the top of the cranium like hair, or from the sides and bottom of the jaw in strange imitation of a beard. Qual'Ath can bear a variety of colors, but are of a generally cold and muted hue, except when sexual excitement causes more vibrant colors and patterns to become visible.

In certain individuals a larger variety of tentacles or other eldritch features can be found, and such individuals are frequently viewed with equal parts fear and reverence. As masters of the genetic craft, for any Qual'Ath to be "born" with such physical aberrations is seen as an omen of great portent, and often terrible significance. Among Illithid, these abominations are known as Ulitharids and are treated as godlike beings who's eventual metamorphosis into a new Elder Brain is guaranteed. Among other factions such as the Thoc'Rah and Qual'Carrak, they are seen as heralds of great change, bearers of terrible secrets from beyond the abyss of timeless space. Though worshiped and honoured, such anomalies are never fully trusted, for their minds are alien even to the ancient Qual'Ath.

Among Other Races

Almost universally feared among other races for the abhorrent actions of the terrible Mind-Flayers, there are few outside societies in which even peaceful and mutualistic Qual'Ath are accepted. Thoc'Rah are desperately careful in revealing their very existence to new peoples, and Illithid are similarly secretive in making contact, although for very different reasons. Of all Qual'Auth colonies, only the recently spawned Thor'Reih are likely to interact regularly with other species, and these initial interactions are still often performed in disguise, before tactfully exposing their more natural forms to the eyes of those who's trust they have garnered.

It is not uncommon for Qual'Ath to be hunted indiscriminately by races unaware of any but the Illithid parasites. Rumours of their alien presence are met with suspicion and violence, and adventuring parties are often tasked with their discovery and eradication. Qual'Ath tadpoles are perhaps hated most of all, for fear of their terrible corruptive nature, and the alien metamorphosis they might inflict on unwilling hosts.

Despite this hatred, the small factions outside Illithid influence are generally peaceful, and eager to make allies of any who would have them. As refugees from a war that has rages for untold millennia, they are rarely in a position to defend themselves should diplomatic efforts turn from their favour. In potential alliance, Thoc'Rah and Thor'Reih factions will generally offer vast and ancient knowledge, or access to their scarce but powerful technology. In return, they seek willing hosts - a commodity all to rare since the advent of the Illithid uprising.

Playing a Qual'Ath

Perhaps the most important consideration when creating Qual'Ath character is determining the relationship your character has with their host. Not only does this relationship define your sub-race, but it also informs their actions and beliefs in regards to creatures other than themselves. A conventional Illithid may consider it's host nothing more than livestock bred to serve as a suitable body, while an iconoclastic individual may feel deep sorrow for the life snuffed out to bring them into existence. Thoc'Rah in specific are some of the most unique characters to play - not just for their alien biology, but for their twinned and sometimes even contradictory minds. While Thoc'rah are, in every essential capacity, sympathetic to their hosts, the two minds are still separate, and they do not always agree.

Beyond this basic question of internal relationship, think about who or what your host might have been before you came to share or dominate their body. What memories do you share or recall from your host's previous life, and how do those memories color or become colored by your current existence.

Consider what drives your character to venture so far from their colony, and how they are viewed by others. Few peoples mark a distinction between peaceful Qual'Ath emissaries and Invading Mind-Flayers - how does your character overcome this challenge, and how does it color their perception of those around them.

Finally, try to imagine how the familiar world might seem to a being so alien and strange. What horrors of untold science or magic might you, yourself take for granted, which your Alien character would find confusing, unnerving, or even hideously grotesque?

Qual'Ath Names

Qual'Ath have no concept of gender or sexuality, and their names are not so much a combination of sounds and syllables such as other creatures use, but rather a collection of thoughts and ideas that define them. And such names can change over time as an individual develops or explores new elements of themselves. Such names are called Thought names,and when spoken aloud, are accompanied by a sort of psychic static that attempts to approximate these sensations.

Thought Names: Aurangaul, Cephalossk, Drukt, Drusiss, Lugribossk, Quoor, Ralayan, Sardsult, S'venchen, Tharcereli, Tobulux, Zellix

For the sake of interacting with other, lest psionically attuned races, Some Qual'Ath will take more traditional names, drawn from the cultures that surround them. In many casses, these names are Subtle alterations of their Hosts name. This is especially common in cases where both host and Qual'Ath share their body equally.

Qual'Ath Traits

The Process of Ceremorphosis alters the mind and body of the host in drastic and irreversible ways. You gain the following traits

Ability Score Increase. Your Inteligence score increases by 2

Age. Once a host has undergone ceremorphosis, the alien biology of the symbiote prevents any further aging, making the Qual'Ath effectively immortal.

Alignment. Qual'Ath are as diverse in their alignment as any other race, but their concept of morality is as alien as the Qual'Ath themselves.

Size. Qual'Ath average somewhat taller than most humanoids, at around 7 ft, But this can vary depending on your host race. Your size is medium or small, depending on your host race. Your host race cannot be tiny.

Speed. Your base walking speed is 30 feet.

Darkvision. Accustomed to life on a sunless home-world, you have superior vision in dark and dim Conditions. You can see in dim light within 60 feet of you as if it were bright light, and in Darkness as if it were dim light. You can't discern color in Darkness, only Shades of Purple.

Arcane Dissidence Your separation form the world of the arcane makes it difficult to comprehend arcane magics. You treat magic items not created by your race as Alien technology (dmg pg 268), and require twice as long to copy new spells into a spell book or ritual book .

Alien Biology. Your extraterrestrial physiology lacks the powerful immune system of most terrestrial races. You have disadvantage on saving throws against poison and disease

Natural Psionics. You can use the power of your mind to replicate the effect of certain spells. Beginning at 3rd level you can cast the following spells at their lowest level: Sending, Detect thoughts. Your spellcasting ability for these spells is Intelligence. Spells cast using this feature do not require components and are treated as psionic abilities rather than magical effects. You can use this ability a number of times equal to 1/2 your proficiency bonus, and regain the ability to do so when you finish a long rest.

Outsider. More accustomed to the telepathic sensations of your own race than the facial expressions of others, You have disadvantage on Insight checks against members of other races.

Tentacles Four cephalopod like tentacles extend from your face, often serving as additional arms. Your tentacles can stow or retrieve an item on your person weighing no more than 5 pounds as a free action on your turn, or to take the Use Object action as a bonus action.

Telepathic Communication. You can speak telepathically to any creature you can see within 60 feet of you. You don't need to share a language with the creature for it to understand your telepathic messages, but the creature must be able to understand at least one language or be telepathic itself.

Languages. You can speak, read, and write Common, Qualith, Deep Speech, And and one language of your choice known by your host race.

Illithid

Also known as Mind-Flayers, Illithid have forgone the mutual symbiosis in favour of enslaving other races to serve as hosts. An Illithid's Host is nothing more than an empty shell, who's brain has long since been consumed by the Qual'Ath master. Despite these origins, and their drug-like dependance on consuming more brains, not all Illithid are cruel and inhuman monsters. One cannot choose the circumstances of one's birth, but with effort, sometimes those circumstances can be overcome.

Ability Score Increase. Your intelligence score increases by an additional 1
Empowered Psionics. Consuming the brains of sentient humanoids boosts your natural psionic powers. You can use your Natural Psionics racial trait to cast the following spells: Command, Charm person, Levitate. Additionally, you may expend a use of your Natural Psion feature to project a powerful blast of psionic energy. Each creature in a 15 ft cone in front of you must succeed on an Intelligence saving throw or take 1d6 psychic damage, and the first time it makes a saving throw before the end of your next turn, it must roll a d4 and subtract the number rolled from the save. This damage increases by 1d6 when you reach 5th level (2d6), 11th level (3d6), and 17th level (4d6).
Arcane Resistance. Arcane magic is the greatest threat to any Illithid colony, and as such, Illithid have learned to protect themselves. You have advantage on saving throws against Spells and other magical effects.
Grey-Matter Dependance. Your powerful psionic abilities come at a morbid price. In order to sustain yourself, you must feed on the whole brain of a sentient humanoid with an intelligence score of 8 or greater at least once every 7 days. For each day beyond the 7th that you go without fulfilling this requirement, you must succeed on a constitution saving throw with a DC of 15+your current level of exhaustion or suffer one level of exhaustion.

Qual'Carrak

Qual'Carack are a rare breed, but not without numbers. The symbiotic fusion of an Qual'Ath and a Carak acting as a single organism. Carak on their on their own are beast like creatures, with no capacity for thought beyond basic survival instinct. They have evolved over centuries to perfectly host their Qual'Ath counterparts, who's potent intellect ensures the survival of both species.

Ability Score Increase. Your Strength score increases by one.
Aquatic Adaptation. Your kind evolved in the murky depths of a watery alien world. You have a swimming speed of 40 ft, and are resistant to cold damage.
Amphibious. You are adapted to both land and sea, and can breathe air and water.
Armoured Carapace. Your Body is covered in thick armor plating, granting you an unarmoured AC of 15 + your dextrerity modifier (maximum 2).
Symbiotic Stamina. The natural compatibility between you and your host grants you enhanced healing. When you roll hit dice to regain hit point, you may roll each hit dice twice, and choose either result.

Thoc'Rah

Far outnumbered by their Illithid counterparts, Thoc'Rah take their name from the first colony to take stand against the Illithea experiments, and the first to fall during the Great Divide. Thoc'Rah hold true to the ancient traditions of their race, and bond only with willing creatures as hosts. Once bonded, a Thoc'Rah share's their life in equal with the creature serving as their host, often learning as much from the host as the host learns from them.

Ability Score Increase. One ability score of your choice (based on your host race) increases by 1
Dual Mind. When you make a Wisdom saving throw, you can use your reaction to gain advantage on the roll. You can use this trait immediately before or after you roll, but before any of the roll's effects occur.
Mutualistic Bond. You and your host share your body equally, and aid each other when needed. You gain two Racial traits of your choice from your host race (excluding ability score increases). Additionally, you may attune to magic items as if you were a member of your Host Race (this Supersedes your Arcane Dissidence racial trait).

Thor'Reih

In the thousands of years since the enemies of the illithid migrated across the universe in search of a new home, a new faction has arisen among these peaceful outcasts. Created from samples of changelings and other highly adaptive races, the bio-engineered Thor'Reih are make hosts of laboratory grown bodies, and are adapt at blending in among others, end entire colonies often exist on world who are none the wiser.

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma score increases by one.

Studied Outsider. Your people have spent centuries studying other races and learning to emulate them. You have advantage on deception checks to disguise yourself as a member of another race. This replaces your Outsider racial trait.

Thor'Reih Camouflage. As an action, you can change your appearance and your voice. You can make yourself appear as a member of another race, though none of your game statistics change, and you determine the specifics of the changes, including your coloration, hair length, and sex. However, You can't duplicate the appearance of a specific individual or of a creature you've never seen, and you must adopt a form that has the same basic arrangement of limbs that you have. Your clothing and equipment aren't changed by this trait.

You stay in the new form until you use an action to revert to your true form or until you die

Genetic Adaptability. Your biology has been specifically engineered to adapt to whatever conditions you encounter. Each time you complete a long rest, you may choose one of the following damage types: Acid, Fire, Poison Cold, or Lightning. You gain resistance to this damage type until you

Vampire

Lady Rosaline Byron stood over her microscope frowning. Yet again, her attempts to isolate the Sanguinem pathogen from her own infected blood had proved to be a failure. It was beginning to seem as if Adam Virus had specifically designed his cursed plague to make the host dependant on the infection. Any attempt to remove the virus had so far only resulted in rapid decay and cell death. Despite her best efforts, the Cure for Vampirism eluded her for yet another sleepless night.

She packed up her microscope and other lab equipment, and stepped out the door into the rainforest. Behind her, the small lab quickly folded itself back up into a pocket-sized cube, which she placed inside her pack. The others had already all but finished striking camp.

From across the clearing, A blue Dragonborn in particularly maid-like attire smiled over at her.
"Any new progress today madame?" The girl called out

"Not today, Aluna, but soon! It's only a matter of time before I crack this. And with a more direct sample of the blight, research should be far more fruitful!" She wasn't sure if she believed it herself, but at the very least it helped to keep one's chin up.

Monsters of the Night

Legends of vampiric demons and bloodsucking monsters have been passed down through the mortal realm since almost the beginning of time. Parents have told their children tales of horrifying beasts or charismatic devils with supernatural powers and a thirst for the pulsing lifeblood of innocent children and virgin brides. In dark whispers centuries old, townsfolk speak of the fearful and sanguine appetites of these waking dead, who snatch away life in the dead of night, leaving the drained corpses of their victims to rise again upon the next full moon. While many of these stories are no more cautionary tales mean to frighten children, even the more outlandish fable must contain within it a mote of truth. Vampires very much exist.

Origins of Vampirism

The first origins of true vampirism are lost perhaps even to the oldest of immortal vampire-kind. While may tales speak of some fustian bargain with the devil to gain power and immortality; others point to vampires as the spawn of spawn of Strahd, who sold his soul to death itself in hopes of restoring his youth, slaughtering his own brother to seal the pact. Some stories suggest that Vampires were created in the image of Haemnathuun the Blood Lord, by Orcus himself. Still others claim that Vampires are the spawn of a more ancient and evil race summoned into the mortal plane from the depths of the shadowfell. And perhaps the most nightmarish origin story involves the twisted experiments of the mortal Adam Virus, and his attempts to attain godhood through feeding on the souls of others.

However Vampires first appeared in the world, their spread throughout it has been widespread. Common knowledge would suggest that this spread is the result of vampires draining their victims entirely of life - only for the soulless bodies to rise again as undead monsters in their own right. But in truth, accounts of such spread are inconsistent and poorly documented at best- if not blatant falsehood. Vampirism is more often passed from one member of a family or bloodline to the next, spreading like a ancestral curse or hereditary disease. It is perhaps a blessing, then that most vampires become infertile as the disease fully takes hold.

Common Misconceptions

Stories of vampiric monsters have grown so far fetched over the centuries that it can be difficult to separate the fact from the fiction. Vampires are not, by nature, shadowy shapeshifters who can transform themselves into sanguine mists or swarms of vermin. They are not unassailable masters of invisible demons and shadowy stalkers. And they hold no sway over creatures of the night such as wolves or ravens. While many a vampiric fiend may collect these powers over the course of their endless life, vampirism itself is not the source of these abilities.

Neither are vampires truely undead - at least in the traditional sense. A vampire never passes beyond the veil of death, and as such, cannot return as an undead nightmare. Instead, vampires are born with an absence of life - a missing part of their soul which makes them less than truly alive, and which causes an array of maladies and weaknesses, such as a sensitivity to sunlight, and a violent aversion to the kinds of magics used to heal livign creatures. It is a sublte difference, but a difference all the same.

Vampires are not limited in their appetites to blood alone. Vampires feed on the life-energy of mortal souls, and blood is but a single conduit through which that energy can flow. And while all vampires must consume the life energy of others, they are not necessarily bloodthirsty predators feeding on the innocent. Many vampires go through extensive lengths to find donors who are willing and eager to feed their vampiric patrons in return for safety, security, or even love. Not only are such relationships more rewarding, but they are also frequently far more sustainable than draining the life from frightened serfs and peasants, or hunting for foolish prey in the dark of the night.

Contrary to popular belief, Vampires are not all deathly allergic to the scent of garlic, nor do they implicitly require invitation to enter a home. While these famous weaknesses are certainly one expression, each vampire has a unique set or quirks and obsessive qualities that cannot be overcome.

Except in special cases, Vampirism is not easily transmitted. Tales of vampires feeding on innocent young maidens, only for the deflowered virgin to rise again as a creature of the night are vastly overstated. In most cases, for the curse of vampirism to transfer to a mortal, that mortal must either be of the same bloodline as the vampire from which they contracted the curse, or undergo repeated transfusions of vampiric blood of the course of several months. This is much to the disappointment of naïve youths seeking to rebel against their upbringing by purposefully contracting the disease.

Lastly, and perhaps most difficult for common folk to understand, vampires are not inherently Evil. While some incarnations of the curse may be more outwardly monstrous than others, most vampires are not the fiendish terrors of the night that are warned of in folklore. While there are certainly those who give up the fight for their humanity and devolve into bloodthirsty killers, such individuals are no more representative of the race as a whole than any serial killer or violent criminal. In truth, the curse of vampirism is as much a crippling disease upon the bearer as it is nightmarish legend for others to fear, and most vampires are themselves more victims of circumstance than they are villains of the night.

Vampire vs. Dhampir

The hunger for lifeblood experienced by vampires is more than just a physical craving - the soul of a vampire is flawed and incomplete, missing some element that allows it to sustain the energies of life. Instead, vampires must sip from the souls of others to try and fill this ever expanding void in their being. They consume the blood of others as a conduit for this energy. It is this desperate need that separates a true vampire from their dhampire kin. While dhampir may be inured to the shadows and crave the taste of blood, they are not fundamentally incomplete the way true vampires are, and do not suffer from their affliction beyond a relatively minor aversion to sunlight.

Vampires, on the other hand, contend with a deep and inconsolable emptiness within their being - a flaw which not only leaves them physically vulnerable to things like sunlight and radiant magics, but prevents them from healing even the smallest of wounds without feeding on others. True vampires are both damned and truly defined by your curse - gaining unseemly powers that are only lightly reflected within their dhampire kin.

Furthermore, the gaping hole in a vampire's being manifests not only as desperate hunger for the blood of others, but in an unsettling absence of some part of their own humanity - a missing piece that is different for each individual. Some vampires may be truly incapable of experiencing empathy, while others may lack the very sensation of happiness. Vampires are unsettling not because of an inner darkness, but because they lack some fundamental part of human experience.

Vampires in Society

Because of their fiendish reputation, vampires do not often engage with most societies, and when they do, it is frequently in disguise or under false pretence. Very few cultures are openly accepting of vampires - even those who understand the affliction, and even those who do not see vampires as nightmarish predators often consider them dangerous and unpredictable to have around. Even their lesser kin, the dhampir, are rarely welcomed among those who know what they are. In most cases, it is far easier to simply blend into the crowd than to risk being hunted for the atrocities attributed to your kind.

Because of this most vampires will instead make their homes in isolated places, far from other settlements. They may live solitary lives, or as part of a larger family of ancestral right - it depends heavily on if members of the family have been able to successfully sire children. Because Vampirism predominantly spreads only within a single family, and a large majority of vampires are infertile, vampiric settlements tend to be small, especially because sustaining any large population of vampires requires an even larger population of mortal donors.

Occasionally, larger cabals of vampires, made up of multiple families or bloodlines, will work together to establish a presence within more populated areas. Such groups are generally secretive, either about their nature or their very presence, and to maintain this secrecy, the feeding practices of the cabal are highly regulated. Those who fail to adhere to the rules of feeding etiquette are dealt with swiftly and efficiently, in order to preserve the cabal as a whole. Whether these rules involve feeding only on specific, trusted mortals, or simply leaving no evidence behind varies from one cabal to the next.

In extremely rare instances, some cabals have been known to start settlements of their own, or to form open relationships with settlements and cultures more understanding of their plight. These utopias, such as the fabled realm of Paradisium, are few and far between - and rarely easy to find. But within them, it is common practice for fresh blood to be exchanged for goods and services, but like currency. These settlements are also one of the only places where the love between a mortal and a vampire is likely to be celebrated, rather than scorned.

Physical Appearance

Vampires are at once unsettling and beautiful, familiar yet strange. Most vampires, with a little work, can pass for regular mortals, but undisguised stand out quite starkly. The pale skin and the reddish hue of a vampire's eyes often provide the appearance of albinism, and the unnatural anaemia of the cures often leaves the afflicted with a frail or gaunt appearance. The hair of a vampire, unless dyed, is a pale silvery white that takes on increasingly red hue the more frequently they are able to feed. A well fed vampire will have hair the deep scarlet of fresh blood, while a malnourished individual's hair will appear bone-white and pale.

Most vampires are relatively tall and lean, but this can vary from one family to the next. Those with a more bestial incarnation of the curse will sometimes have Chiropteran, even disfigured, features with overlarge ears and flat, misshapen noses. But those with more arcane leanings are frequently almost elven in appearance. Vampires inured to the darkest parts of their curse can appear so gaunt and frail they resemble walking corpses - such undeathly appearances are much of why Dreadblood vampires have been all but hunted to extinction.

Playing a Vampire

When playing a vampire, it can help to start with a single simple question: what part of their humanity is missing? Do they lack the simple human sensation of empathy? Or are they incapable of ever experiencing love? Historically autistic tendencies have frequently marked as signs that someone is not entirely human, and that can be a good starting point for exploring the seemingly cold or unusual behaviour of a vampiric character.

Perhaps what is missing for your vampire is the supposedly innate ability to recognize facial expressions, or the ability to understand and express their own emotions. Maybe they are missing the social filter that keeps them from saying exactly what is on their mind, or the internal buffer that filters out unimportant stimuli. Be careful not to create a caricature of neurodivergency, but playing a vampire can be a great opportunity to explore those more neurodivergent mindsets, or even learn something about yourself.

More obvious questions to consider are those about how your character's curse has shaped their life and interaction with others. Have they lived their in fear of being discovered and hunted for what they are? Or given into their darker side and become the predator they are assumed to be? Do they wrestle with the morality of their vampiric nature, or simply accept it as a part of who they are?

Think about your character's history, and where they came from. Are they part of an ancient family of vampires, dating back thousands of years? Or is their lineage less clear, and the origin of their curse uncertain?

Vampire Names

Vampire names generally continue the traditions of their respective races and cultures, with no more outlandish names than any other member of their kind.

Vampire Traits

Whether through birth, or unlikely infection, you are an otherwise human carrier of the Shadow plague, and gain the following traits and malformations.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 2

Age. Those affiliated by Vampirism seem immune to the normal process of cell-death, and are functionally immortal so long as they remain regular blood transfusions.

Size. Although often slightly taller than their relatives, Infected individuals tend towards the same range of height as normal humans. Your size is medium

Speed. Your curse grants a level of unseemly quickness to the afflicted in their adult years. Your speed is 40 feet

Alignment. Despite unfounded rumours to the contrary, those affected by vampirism have no innate leaning towards evil, or any other alignment.

Blood Thirst. The most devastating ailment that the vampirism bestows is a severe anaemia such that the afflicted becomes reliant on regular transfusions. You cannot regain hit points as usual during a short or long rest, and must receive at minimum 1 pint of fresh blood each day or suffer a level of exhaustion.

Necrotic Bite You gain a natural weapon in the form of a bite with which you are proficient. Your bite is considered a finesse weapon, which deals necrotic damage equal to 1d6 + your proficiency bonus, and reduces the target's maximum hit points by the same amount.

Vital Transfusion When you deal damage with your necrotic bite against living creature other than a construct, you drain 8 ounces of blood from the target, and may spend a number of hit dice up to half your proficiency bonus. For each Hit Die spent in this way, you roll the die and add your Constitution modifier to the result, regaining hit points equal to the total.

Alternatively, you may choose to bite a willing creature, draining blood from their body. The target takes no damage, but instead spends hit dice as they would during a short rest, gaining no hit points. Any hit points the target would normally regain by spending hit dice in this way are regained by instead. You drain 1 pint of blood for each hit dice spent.

Radiant Aversion. Your body is weakened by even relatively low doses of radiant energy. You have vulnerability to radiant damage, and cannot benefit from healing spells with a radiant source. When targeted by these spells, you must make a charisma saving throw equal to the spellcaster's saving throw DC or take radiant damage equal to half the hit points they would normally restore. This damage is not doubled by vulnerability.

Sunlight Sensitivity. You have disadvantage on attack rolls and on Wisdom (Perception) checks that rely on sight when you, the target of your attack, or whatever you are trying to perceive is in bright light. In addition, you take 1 radiant damage each round while your skin is exposed to direct sunlight.

Vampiric Quirks. Every vampire has a unique set of obsessive quirks that are as real a weakness as any blade. Oddities such as a fear of garlic, the inability to cross running water, or the requirement of a formal invitation before entering a home. Work with your DM to determine two to three unique quirks that set your vampire apart - these quirks are absolute, and cannot be ignored or overcome by force of will, but don't have to be part of traditional vampire lore. An Inability to feel certain emotions or read facial expressions might work similarly well, as would a paranoia surrounding certain numbers, or the need to always have a specific object at hand.

Darkvision. A lifetime of avoiding the light has adapted your vision to the dark. You can see in dim light within 120 feet as if it were bright light and in darkness as if it were dim light. You can't discern color in darkness, only shades of gray.

Sleepless. Whatever mutation the disease causes within the brain and body, it seems that those afflicted do not require rest in the same way as normal humans. You do not require sleep, so long as you have received a transfusion of at least 1 pint of blood in the past 24 hours.

Spider Climb. You have a climbing speed equal to your walking speed. In addition, at 3rd level, you can move up, down, and across vertical surfaces and upside down along ceilings, while leaving your hands free.

Blood Sense. The disease has made you acutely aware of the flow of blood, even within other creatures. You can sense the presence and location of all creatures within 60 ft which have flowing blood.

Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and one other language of your choice

Non-Human Vampires

While Vampirism is a primarily human affliction, which does not easily transmit beyond shared family bloodlines, such cases are not unheard of. Methods of transmission vary, but in most cases, a vampire must share their own cursed blood with the would-be vampire, after feeding from them repeatedly for several weeks. By some accounts, Sex with a vampire may also serve the purposes of this final transfusion, but it is exceedingly rare for a single bite or act of lust to transmit the curse to an adventurer.

You can find rules for creating one of these hybrid Vampires in the Backgrounds section of this handbook, but talk with your DM before doing so. While the Sanguine Curse background provided in that section includes downsides to counter the addition of vampire racial traits, it may still be more powerful than your DM is comfortable with.

Beastblood

Often seen as the lowest class of vampires, Beastbloods are empowered with a feral ferocity and a thirst for violence. Their hunger for blood is a primal thing that drives them towards brutal and savage feeding.

Ability Score Increase. Your Strength score increases by 1
Bestial Strength. You gain proficiency in the athletics skill, if you are not already proficient.
Violent Transfusion. When you use your vital transfusion racial trait to regain hit points, you may instead choose to release the violent power of your blood. If you do so, you regain no hit points but instead gain the following effects until the start of your next turn.

- You gain an additional number of reactions each round equal to half your proficiency bonus. These reactions can only be used to make opportunity attacks.
- If a creature within 5 ft of you takes any action other than the disengage action, you may use your reaction to make an opportunity attack against them.

You may use this feature three times, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

Witchblood

For some vampires, the disease presents itself less as a sickness of the blood, and more as a curse of the soul. These individuals, called Witchbloods, carry with them the noble grace of a dangerous predator.

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma score increases by 1
Bewitching Words. You gain proficiency in the persuasion skill, if you are not already proficient.
Commanding Presence. You know the Command spell, and may cast it once without expending a spell slot, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may do so again. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.

Dreadblood

Perhaps the darkest of their kind, Shadeblood vampires are difficult to mistake for anything else. Surrounded by an ever present aura of shadowy dread, Shadebloods feed as much on the suffering of others as they do on blood itself.

Ability Score Increase. Your intelligence score increases by 1
Frightful Talent. You gain proficiency in the intimidation skill, if you are not already proficient.
Fearful Feeding. When you succeed on an intimidation check against a living creature within 30 ft, you may use a reaction to feed on their fear. The target must succeed on a wisdom saving throw, or take necrotic as if by your Necrotic Bite. This damage counts as feeding for the purposes of your vital transfusion racial trait.

Xio

As Lashel stretched itself across the soft flesh of it's newly acquired host, it found and unsettling sense of... sadness at the loss of it's former bond. Vera had been a good host: attentive and amiable to it's needs, kind, and anything but fearful. Lash was unsure if this new host would be so accepting, but there was little choice but to make the transition.

Despite all her generosity in allowing the symbiote free-reign of her body, Vera was quickly becoming an unsuitable host. After a year spent all-but comatose within the throws of Lash's breeding phase, The young fiend had never truly recovered. And her increasingly frequent outbursts were proof that real damage had been done. Lasheal felt guilt for this. It had been too eager to establish it's colony, to naïve to understand the effect the broodmother state would have on it's host.

Yet Vera had never held the experience against her. In truth, The succubus was likely eager to return to that blissful state, not unlike an addict struggling to recover in the presence of her drug. Truly, this was the only way to ensure the girl's recovery, despite the pain it would cause them both...

Engineered Symbionts

Xio are a unique species, unlike any other life-form native to Terra. First grown in the genetic laboratories of the Thoc'Rah, under the looming threat of war with the Illithid Empire, Xio were conceived as a sort of living armor for their more humanoid creators, and on their own, appear to be nothing more that than vaguely insectoid plates of armor. With limited mobility and very little agency in the absence of a host, Xio become powerful companions when worn by a willing host, and are able to not only enhance the abilities of their wearer, but act as powerful combatants in their own right.

Despite their parasitic nature, Xio are mutualistic organisms, who will rarely bond only with a host who is not willing. However alien the Xio may be, they come in peace, and exist to aid their hosts in defence of freedom.

Ancient Experiments

At the time of the First Spawning, The Thoc'Rah and their allies were fleeing from overwhelming threat. With each new world brought under siege by the Illithid empire, new slaves and species added to the enemy numbers, and if the Resistance were to have any chance at survival, the resistance needed to make the most of their relatively small numbers.

To this effect, the Xio were Engineered by their creators to serve as powerful companions and augmentations to the surviving rebel fighters. Woven together from the lifethreads of Qual'Ath, Thri-Kreen, and a dozen other species from shoggoth to darkmantle, The goal of the Xiophorm project was to create a sort of living armor that would be capable of not only repairing itself, but of drastically augmenting the abilities of the wearer, and even protecting a host who was too injured to defend themselves.

Unfortunately, their Thoc'Rah were wiped out in a surprise attack before the Xiophorm project could be properly tested, and only a few sparse prototypes survived. Left to wait for untold millennia, it was not until one of these Prototypes, known as Lasheal, was rescued from certain death by a halfblood succubus, that the Xio were first able to truly experience the world.

Much has happened in the millions of years since the Xio were first created, and the world is not necessarily as accepting of their alien nature and appearance. Thrust into a world with little knowledge of who they are or where they came from, the Xio are effectively infants, still seeking to discover their place among the other races of the world

Dungeon Origins

The Xio are a race not only native to Terra, but to The Dungeon itself. First developed in the ancient Thoc'Rah facility which would later be used to Imprison an eldritch god of pure and unbridled lust, the Original Prototype creatures survived the destruction of their creators, only to be locked in suspended animation for untold thousands of years.

One such prototype, by the name of Lasheal, eventually became the progenitor of Its entire race. Left abandoned since the time of the dinosaurs, Lash was found near death in a recently damaged stasis chamber by the half-succubus Vera, who had been led to the location by strange visions from the eldritch Mistress of Desire. Because of its damaged and incomplete state, Lasheal remembered little of it's existence before this point, and even now, details of the time before are scarce.

Shortly after bonding to it's Succubus Partner, Lasheal's genetic programming began driving it to breed, in an attempt to establish the first colony of xio within the dungeon. Neither xio or host truly understanding what that meant, Lash and Vera collectively decided to become Broodmother and host, producing a large, but unknown quantity of newborn Xio, which were later distributed across the dungeon during their travels.

When Vera eventually slipped into a comatose state after nearly a year as Broodhost, Lasheal became panicked, and abandoned it's few remaining memories of the time before in order to revert to a Drone state. After Vera awoke from her coma, the pair began journeying through the dungeon in search of hosts for the new offspring, but it became quickly apparent that there was long-term damage to Vera's psyche; damage which caused her succubi desires to frequently overwhelm her conscious mind, sending her into a nearly feral state until she had fed.

Lasheal became increasingly adamant that they must find a new host for itself, in order to preserve Vera's remaining sanity, and potentially allow her to recover. With the understanding that a flaw in It's genetics prevented the xio progenitor from bonding to non-virgin hosts, the pair chose to begin arduous trek to the upper layers of the dungeon, a Journey which took the better part of two years.

The Dire Separation

Upon arriving in the Safe passages, Lasheal and It's host eventually encountered a young girl by the name of Vlana, who had found herself in the dungeon, perhaps not entirely on accident. Taken with the Sexual thrill or Lash's initial touch, The impresionable young cleric hastily agreed to serve as a new host, and Lasheal wasted no time bonding with her, much to the disappointment of Vera. The succubi, having grown emotionally attached to her Xio companion, no longer wished to be separated, but Lasheal would not be swayed. Still seeking each other's companionship, as well as that of the new host, Vera, Vlana, and Lasheal became a polycule of intimate desires and alien passions - but all was not well.

Over the next two years, the Xio spawned by Lasheal and Vera began to bond with their first hosts. But absent of a broodmother to command their colony, many became twisted into deviancy, abandoning healthy symbiosis in favor of a more parasitic control over their hosts. While this deeply unsettled Lasheal, it was still traumatized by the harm it had caused Vera, and could not bring itself to re-enter the broodmother state.

Meanwhile, Vera herself had been searching for a way to cure her condition, and prove to the xio that she could still serve as a viable host. In truth, the succubi would have gladly given up her self and identity to return to her role as Broodhost, even if it left her permanently comatose. She wished only to regain the deep connection she once shared with her dearest friend.

It is only recently, with the additional information about Xio biology brought back from an expedition into the Deep Dungeon, that Lasheal has been willing to consider a return to the broodmother state. With the help of the tentacle witch Sophie, and the powerful Wizard Runar, it may be possible for Lasheal and Vera to bond again, and return to their roles as Broodmother and host safely. Vlana has vowed not to interfere in this new bonding, but only time will tell if the desperate gamble will work, or if the xio of The Dungeon have already lost their way.

Alien Personalities

As a whole, Xio are a symbiotic and mutualistic race. However, their morality is often strange and alien to outsiders, based not on the concepts of good and evil, but on what is most advantageous to their hive and host. To a Xio, the needs of the whole is more important than the needs of the individual, and Xio are more than content to put themselves in danger for a cause they believe in - be it the survival of their colony, the wellbeing of their host, or something much more abstract. As a rule, Xio often seem detached or aloof, and tend frame the world around them in terms of logical calculations, rather than emotions.

Fun and other subjective concepts like love or friendship can be difficult for a Xio to understand at first, and the passionate emotions of most humanoids are unfamiliar and sometimes even startling them. They generally see the world in terms of what is useful or not useful, and this logical efficiency can make them seem cold, or even dangerous to other races. At their core, however, Xio are loyal protectors, and rarely have anything but the best interest of their community and companions at heart.

Individually, Xio have a tendency to pick up personality traits from their host, albeit not always traits visible on the surface. Its not uncommon for a Xio to reflect more repressed parts of their hosts mind, or to express thoughts and feelings that their host would normally keep hidden. While they may be coldly objective by nature, a host's passions and emotional state have much more impact on a Xio than most would willingly admit. That said, Xio are unique individuals, and their personalities are informed, not dependent on that of their host. Just because their host feels of believes something, does not mean a Xio will feel the same.

Hive Structure

Xio society is hive-like and insectoid, with large colonies of specialized workers all operating under the instruction of a large queen or broodmother. These colonies usually locate themselves in or near large population centers, such as cities, kobold dens, or goblin mines. A broodmother will seek out societies or cultures who are receptive to the symbiotic nature of the Xio, and the colony as a whole will work in close cooperation with their host city to help ensure they remain welcome.

Much Like a hive of insects, Xio follow a biological caste system, composed of sentinels, drones, seekers, and above all others, a reproductive broodmother, capable of producing hundreds or even thousands of offspring a year -given the right conditions. This biological caste is defined for a Xio at birth, based on the needs of the hive, or the society with whom they cohabitate, and each caste serves a particular role for the hive, and tends toward certain personality traits.

Drones are the basic workers of a hive, and make up a majority of the population. They adhere strictly to a set of beliefs or morals - usually those of the broodmother - and are often zealous in their adherence to law or tradition. Drones are also the least individualistic of the castes, fiercely loyal to the whole, as opposed to the self, prioritizeing the needs of the colony above the interests of the individual. This can sometimes put them at odds with more individualistic societies, or even their own host.

Sentinels are the defenders of the hive, and serve as elite soldiers or generals within the combined host society. They are most decisive and prone to snap decisions, and can be quite bullheaded once they set their mind to things. They enjoy violence and rough sex more than other castes, but are get fiercely defensive of those they protect, and consider themselves servants rather than rulers

Seekers more flexible than the other castes, and the most impacted by the nature and psychology of their hosts. A seeker's role in the hive is both that of the diplomat, investigator, and to some extent, scientist. Often sent out into the world as scouts or spies, they value information, and are better at functioning outside the hive than most other Xio. Because of this, seekers are allowed to be more individualistic and experimental than their brethren, often forming unique opinions or approaching complex tasks with creative problem solving. What seekers learn through their exploits, they bring back to the hive and add to the collective knowledge of their colony, allowing it to grow and adapt generation after generation.

An outlier among the Xio are Deviants - Individuals who have abandoned their hive altogether, and taken on a more parasitic nature. These Xio generally treat their hosts more as slaves or property, seeing them purely as sources of energy to be used and disposed of once they have outlived their usefulness. This drastic departure from the mutualistic nature of the colony means that Deviants are almost universally hated by other Xio, and are considered enemies of the hive. Deviant Xio no longer fit into any particular caste, and there personalities can vary widely, but they generally value independence and ambition - frequently seeking personal power in pursuit of these ideals.

Feeding and Biology

Runar's early studies theorized that Xio fed on psionic energy, as opposed to arcane, based on the way Xio respond to heightened emotion in their host. This was later proven false, but not before many Xio were paired with hollowers or other mentally unstable individuals, who would presumably have been "balanced out" by the Xio's feeding. While Xio do have some stabilizing effect on these individuals, it is mostly due to their nature as constant, stable companions, and their ability to help regulate the host's natural hormone production.

In reality, Xio feed primarily on Arcane energy and excess stress hormones like adrenaline. They absorb a little bit of additional nutrients from the food their host consumes, and in the case of Dungeon Xio, from sexual fluids like semen, but mostly they feed off of magical energy that has been processed by the host's body. This means they are ideally suited to bond with spellcasters, but unfortunately incompatible with their Qual'Auth creators, and other races who have an aversion or intolerance for magic.

Because arcane energies tend to manifest most powerfully during states of heightened stress and emotion, Xio require hosts who regularly experiences these states. In the Dungeon, that usually means that a Xio is constantly keeping their host on at least a low level edge, but the rush of combat or other highly charged states works just as well. The benefit of arousal is that it can be constantly maintained at a low level, with far less damage to the host than other potent emotional states. Broodmother Xio are, however, an exception to this rule.

Broodmother Queens

A Xio colony cannot exist without a Broodmother, and larger hives sometimes contain as many as six such individuals. Broodmothers are former drones who have undergone a radical metamorphosis, growing in size to be several times larger than their host. This transformation can take several weeks and results in an enormous creature more visually similar to a drider or spider-drake than a suit of living armor

Much like an insect queen, a Xio Broodmother serves as the sole reproductive member of it's hive, collecting genetic information from other members of the colony in order to tailor it's offspring to available host races. Broodmothers also serve as living library, containing the collective experiences and genetic history of their hive.

A Xio broodmother requires vast amounts of energy and nutrients to sustain it's larger body and reproductive activity. To achieve this, a broodmother must keep it's host in a state of permanent overstimulation, drawing on the constant overflow of orgasmic release to sustain itself. This can be quite damaging to the host's psyche, and most broodhosts eventually enter a sort of coma in which their conscious mind is overwhelmed by years or decades of overstimulation, leaving only the subconscious intact. With enough time spent in this state, a broodhost generally loses it's ability to function independently, becoming almost feral, or after enough time, vegetative.

Because of this, Broodhosts are revered, perhaps even above the broodmother itself, for the personal sacrifice they have made. No Xio begins the transformation into a broodmother lightly, and only hosts of the highest station, who understand and choose to make this sacrifice are allowed to bond with a potential broodmother.

Technically speaking a Broodmother can revert back to a drone if necessary, splitting away from it's expanded insectoid body to escape certain danger. However, this is serves as a last resort only if the hive itself is at risk of total destruction. Aside from being incredibly traumatic for both colony and broodmother, reverting back to a drone can result in the loss of decades or centuries of gathered knowledge and genetic information stored within the abandoned tissues.

Experience and level.

Just because a Xio colony contains individuals of great knowledge or skill does not mean that new Xio will be born with the abilities or class levels of a fully fledged adventurer. Only the broodmother can hold and process all the generational knowledge of the colony, and when producing new offspring, it must decide what information is important to pass on to each individual.

A hatchling Xio might start with few levels in a particular class upon it's first bonding, if the broodmother sees the need to sire young with a particular skillset, but knowledge alone does not make a class. New members of the colony should never start with more than 4-5 levels total, between any classes they might have. Xio do not gain any particular bonuses to skill or knowledge checks compared to other characters of their level.

Newborn Xio

While not exactly a true hivemind, as most individuals aren't psionically linked in any direct way, Xio do operate as a hive, and the broodmother can read the thoughts and gain access to the knowledge and experience of any individual Xio within several miles. As the hive expands, each member of the colony shares genetic information about potential hosts, and pools their knowledge about the world they live in, allowing the hive to grow and thrive within their environment.

The "Eggs" laid by a Broodmother are actually more along the lines of a chrysalis, and consist of a fully formed and mature Xio, wrapped around a core of stored arcane energy that serves to keep the newborn Xio alive for up to a century in an inactive state, while it waits for it's first bonded host. These arcane cores are normally consumed by the Xio to help fuel their first bonding, but are considered rare and valuable biological resources capable of storing vast amounts of magical energy. As such, a black market for them has developed in certain places, and Xio nurseries are increasingly seen as lucrative targets for unscrupulous poachers - often working in conjunction with Xio deviants.

Unlike many races, Xio are born fully developed, with an adult - if alien - intelligence, and a generational knowledge of the world around them. This doesn't mean that a new Xio knows or remembers everything it's hive has ever experienced, but broodmothers make sure to pass on crucial pieces of information to their young, such as the geography of the land, the value of consent among hosts, and the social customs of common host races.

Tactile Telepaths

While most xio are not telepathic on the level of races like the Illithid or Shardmind, they do possess a limited form of telepathy that allows them to communicate directly with their hosts, or other creatures they are touching. A bonded xio has a strong conection to it's host, not just physically, but mentally as well - allowing it to sense it's hosts emotions and surface thoughts - so long as the host does not take steps to purposefully block out this connection. Even if a host is refusing to speak with their xio, the symbiotic companion can often gain much insight into the mood of their wearer by sampling the hormones and other chemicals in their system.

This tactile telepathy is present among xio even before their first bonding, and it is common practice for xio still in their chrysalis to speak with potential hosts in this way before choosing to form a bond. Placing your hand on such a chrysalis opens a two-way line of communication between yourself and the newborn xio.

A Myriad of Forms

No two xio are truely alike, and their multitude of forms can encompass a breathtaking variety of appearances - even among individuals of the same caste. But there are a few constants that can always be relied upon.

The nature of a Xio's body is generally insectiod, if not in appearance, at least in structure. This is most apparent when a xio is separated from it's host, as it's amorphous pseudopods bind and connect it's armor-like components into an ant or arachnid-like shape. Xio have anywhere from three to six "eyes", which see the world in a hue-shift of alien colors. Located on the portion of their body that serves as the head when they are not bonded, these eyes are not always obvious, but are easy enough to identify with a careful search, and can be blinded just like those of any humanoid. As their most universal feature, all xio have some degree of hard, chitinous, plating - even if that plating appears to be made up of polished metal or resinous oceanic coral.

Sentinels are the most heavily protected of the xio, taking forms reminiscent of heavy armors like plate-mail or splint. Drones have fewer areas of hardened carapace, often appearing to be more akin half-plate, or other medium armors like spiny hide. Seekers have a more leathery tissue, with hard plates sometimes only appearing along the spine, where the xio's central nervous system lies - such xio might be mistaken at first glance for fine cloth garments, or even lingerie. Deviants are more variable than their caste-bound broodkin.

Whatever a xio's role in the colony, it's outer appearance is a reflection of it's personality, and that of it's host. Xio worn by a druid or nature cleric may appear take on the appearance of tree-bark or mycological motifs, while a Xio bonded to a paladin of light is likely to appear more like a suit of shining armor, with strange Iridescent hues. Each host a xio takes has a lingering impact on it's form, even as it bonds to new companions.

Subconscious Shapeshifters

While Xio are by their nature capable taking on all manner of exotic shapes and forms, they are not shapeshifters in any traditional sense. A Xio's form is a response to the biology and subconscious of it's wearer, and while a Xio can shift portions of it's body around to hide or reveal potions of a host's skin, it cannot purposely change it's appearance in any meaningful way. Xio can generally pass for exotic or magical armor, especially to those who have never met their kind before, but they will rarely pass for standard mundane equipment.

Seekers have some amount of greater control over their appearance, with an ability to shift their membranous tissues to resemble different sorts of garments such as leather tunics or fine dresses, but they have little control over their color or general aesthetic. A seeker that has adapted to look like an angelic robe of silvery feathers will look like an angelic assortment of lingerie when adjusting itself for the bedroom.

A xio also cannot lesson it's total size or bulk - meaning that in order to appear as something like lingerie, the living armor must shift it's mass to other parts of the ensemble, like an oversized hat or a pair of decorative wings.

Wildshape and More.

Xio are generally considered immune to any spell or effect that would alter their form, such as polymorph, but if such a spell or effect is applied to their host, the Xio will naturally reconfigure it's body to remain bonded. While it's host is transformed in this way, the xio is limited to actions it's host's body would physically be able to perform.

Xio are not, however, immune to transformation effects they apply to themselves, such as a druid's wildshape, or the shapechange spell - but they are subject to certain limitations: Xio cannot transform into a creature or object of a size category smaller than their host, and as a general rule Xio retain the general nature of their magical or alien appearance, rather than perfectly resembling the creature or object they are transformed into. While a xio is transformed in this way, it's host is bound tightly within the transformed body of the xio, and is restricted to actions the xio's body would physically be able to perform.

Playing a Xio

Xio are perhaps the most alien race to be found in all of Terra, and it is important to consider this when making a Xio character. Not only should you think about what drives your Xio, but what sort of relationship they share with their host, and how both characters relate to the world they live in.

Does your Xio attempt to conceal it's presence or nature as a living creature, or are Xio welcomed and accepted within the world they inhabit? Would the characters consider themselves to be friends? Lovers? Or is their relationship simply one of necessity?

Because most Xio will bond only to a willing host, make sure to think about why your host chose to accept that bond. Is cohabitation with xio a cultural norm for their people? Did they seek out a xio companion for the sake of power or to overcome some great obstacle in their adventures? Or perhaps your Character has been able to give them back something stolen from them by way of great injury or some other disability. There are a myriad of reasons why someone might choose to become the host of a Xio.

If you instead choose to play a deviant xio, consider how they treat their host (or hosts). Are they cruel and uncaring, using their hosts as little more than disposable food sources? Or do they collect hosts like pets, treating them as lesser - but no less beloved - companions? Did they become a deviant by choice? Or by some ill-fated accident which left them tainted and unable to return to their colony?

Xio Names

Xio lack a concept of true individuality, and don't expressly name their young. However most Xio find it useful to adopt names for the purpose of interacting with other races. Xio often adopt names based on powerful concepts within the minds of their hosts, and may even change the name they identify with when moving form one host to another

Xio Names: Armoura, Arachnae Brood, Dominion, Legion, Lasheal, Miracle, Mindcrawler, Zeal

Xio and Consent

Consent is the number one rule here in the dungeon, and with a race as strange and alien as the Xio, the line of consent can sometimes be a little fuzzy. The general rule we enforce and abide by is that whatever the relationship or interaction between a Xio and Host might be, all players involved must consent to the situation. A xio can be bonded to an non-consenting host, only if the player of that character agrees to such.

Similarly, it's important when roleplaying a Xio to be aware of the limits and comfortability of other players who you are exposing to those interactions. If your Xio Bonded to a non-consenting host, or has a less-than-human understanding of what consent means, be sure to take that into account when roleplaying those elements in both public and private spaces. Just because you are not directly talking to someone's character does not mean your RP isn't making them uncomfortable.

Player Dynamics

Because Xio must be bonded to a host in order to be effective, they can be a little trickier to play than other races. The deviant subrace can make this simpler, but also adds some confusion. Here in the dungeon there are four main ways to handle a Xio character:

Shared Custody: Start by looking around for another player who would like to play as their host, or to have one of their existing characters become a host to your Xio. This works well if you want to really experience the unique interplay of two characters living so closely together, but it can be hard to play if you have to wait for your partner to be online. We recommend establishing a sort of "shared custody" so that each of you can play the other's character to at least a limited extent when your partner is not online.

Double Down: If you don't want to deal with another player, but still want your Xio to be bonded to a leveled character, then just... Use two character slots. Both characters belong to you, and you can RP them normally. Just try not to monopolize RP spaces talking to yourself, and be aware that some LKs may not want to run adventures or encounters where a single player is running multiple characters, especially if no one else is involved.

Common Host: If you want full control of both characters, but don't want to use two slots, then you can play a Xio who's host is a non-leveled Commoner. Basically the host is treated like a familiar or attendant, with no real agency of their own, aside from in conversation and RP. Just be aware that this can put you at greater risk in encounters, since your host is much easier to incapacitate.

Deviancy: Deviant Xio are a subrace that use their hosts like batteries or puppets, usually not even allowing them to remain conscious. If you want to play just the Xio, this can be a good option, but be aware that Deviants are generally seen as the bad guys, and may not be welcome in many places. Not to say deviants are alignment locked or anything - just know that your character will have to deal with the stigma against deviants.

Acquiring a Xio

Xio are uniquely tied to the lore of the dungeon, and as such, we want to make sure anyone who chooses to make a xio character understands this lore, how the dungeon itself works.

Healthy, un-bonded Xio Chrysalis can be addopted from Sophie the tentacle witch in #Shophies-Garden. Sophie charges a small adoption fee to help cover the costs of caring for newborns, and helping them find suitable hosts. But she may turn down potential adopters if she feels they are not ready for the relationship or commitment.

Less reputable traders within the #Black-Market will sometimes list Xio Chrysalis for auction, or "acquire" such creatures upon request. These black market xio are expensive, and not always in the best condition. Few merchants in this part of the dungeon will think twice about selling you a suspected deviant.

Otherwise, Xio Chrysalis can sometimes be found as rare loot when adventuring in the dungeon, or given out as rewards by factions who have a strong relationship with the creatures. Many deviants also prowl the #Dangerous-Depths, in search of new hosts to dominate.

Wherever your Xio character comes from, be sure to check in with a Lorekeeper when making your character, just to make sure your character makes sense within the lore and setting of The Dungeon.

Xio Traits

As an intelligent suit of biological armor, you gain the following traits.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 1.

Age. As long as you are able to remain well fed, Your synthetic biology will never expire. You have no maximum life-span, and show no recognizable signs of old age.

Alignment. Xio hold no predisposition towards any particular alignment, however their alien nature can make them seem chaotic or even evil.

Size. Your body adapts to fit tightly to the body of your attuned host. Your size category is determined by that of your host

Speed. Xio are generally reliant on the body of their host for movement. While worn by an attuned host, your movement speed is equal to that of your host. While not worn by an attuned host, your movement speed is instead 20 ft

Engulf. Your ooze-like body allows you to engulf other creatures even while you continue fighting. You do not require a free hand to attempt to grapple a creature.

Engineered Biology. Your amorphous body was specifically designed to counter biological threats and weaknesses, but does poorly against other types of threats. You gain resistance to poison, and have advantage on saving throws against disease, sleep effects, and the poisoned and paralyzed conditions. However you are considered vulnerable to both acid and psychic damage.

Living Armor. Your amorphous form is nevertheless engineered to serve as armor. Your AC equals 10 + your dexterity modifier, + your constitution modifier. While wearing you, an attuned host adds your Constitution modifier to it's AC. When an attack made against your attuned host misses, the attack is repeated against you.

Suspended Animation. During periods of inactivity, you may enter a state of suspended animation, during witch you are fully aware of your surroundings, and may communicate this awareness to your host. Spending at least 4 hours in this sleep-like state grants you the benefits of completing a long rest

Synthetic Symbiote. Your symbiotic nature prevents you from operating without a host. You are considered paralyzed unless worn by a living creature who has attuned to you. While paralyzed in this way, you maintain a movement speed of 20 ft, and may still make use of your Tactile Telepathy trait to communicate. Each day you remain without a living host, you must succeed on a constitution saving throw with a DC of 15, or suffer one level of exhaustion.

Alien Biology. While only Broodmothers are reproductively fertile, all Xio are equipped with an ovipositor, and an array of pseudopods, with which they can stimulate sexual partners - especially their hosts.

Parasitic Lifeform. While attached to an attuned host, you do not require food or drink and cannot be removed from your host unless rendered unconscious. You always occupy the same space as your host. If you or your host take the move action or are moved through any form of forced movement, the other is moved as well, without spending any movement of their own.

Tactile Telepathy. Xio are capable of exchanging thoughts and memories without the need for language. You can telepathically speak to any creature you are currently touching, Including your host. They don't need to share a language to be heard, but creatures who do not know a language may be unable to understand your meaning Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and Deep Speach, As well as any races understood by your current host.

Drone

Making up the Majority of a Xio colony, Drones are equipped with limited chitinous plating, and a pair of flexible tendrils or insect-like arms, which supplement the limbs of their host.

Ability Score Increase. Your Dexterity score increases by 2.
Drone Limbs. A pair of delicate, yet powerful limb-like appendages sprout form your back, assisting you and your host in a variety of tasks. You may take the Use an Object action as a bonus action on your turn or that of your host.
Defensive Reaction. Your engineered reflexes allow you to protect yourself and your host against danger. Once per turn, when you or your attuned host are hit by an attack, you may use your reaction to reduce the damage of the attack by an amount equal to your proficiency bonus

Seeker

Seekers serve a special role within the hive, searching for prospective hosts outside the colony. As such, their forms are less obtrusive, and they are gifted with more potent psionic powers than those of lesser Xio.

Ability Score Increase. Your Intelligence score increases by 2.
Discrete Appearance. Your cloth-like body lacks the chitinous plating characteristic of other Xio, allowing you to be worn beneath other clothing or armor. While worn beneath other armor, your host does not gain the benefit of you Living Armor trait.
Psionic Influence. You know the Calm Emotions and Detect Thoughts spells, and may cast each of them once without expending a spell slot, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again. When cast in this way, these spells have a range of touch. Intelligence is your spellcasting ability for these spells.

Sentinel

Resembling suits of heavy plate armor made up of iridescent chitin, Sentinel Xio are more heavily protected than drones or seekers, and primarily serve to protect the hive or gather important resources for the colony.

Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 2 instead of 1, and your Strength score increases by 1.
Hardened Shell. Your chitinous plating provides additional protection against most basic forms of attack. You and your attuned host gain resistance to bludgeoning, slashing, and piercing damage from non-magical sources.

Variant Rule: Symbiotic Features.
The unique relationship a Xio shares with it's host can create some interesting situations in the advancement of a character. For example, many of an artificer's class features might revolve around modifying it's armor - which might just be a Xio, Or perhaps it would make sense that a Drone's extra limbs could be used by it's spellcasting host to perform the somatic components of a spell. This variant rule represents intense focus on strengthening the bond between Xio and host, teaching each other how to properly make use of the unique abilities of your shared body.

As a variant rule, your DM may allow your Xio or it's host to gain certain class features or racial traits already available to their partner by taking them as feats in place of ability score increases (or at any other point you might gain a feat).

Not all features make sense to be shared in this way, and your DM should have final say on how realistic or viable it is for a particular feature to be gained in this way.

Some features may be too powerful to be learned through a feat alone, and your DM might ask you to fulfil other special requirements before they can be shared - such as spending several months training together, or experiencing some climactic event that strengthens your symbiotic bond

Xio Deviants

Deviants are Xio who have abandoned their symbiotic nature to become sexual parasites, entirely subsuming the free will of their hosts. Unlike other Xio, deviants often see their hosts as disposable vessels more than valued partners - A perspective that puts them distinctly at odds with their communal siblings.

Xio deviants are considered defective by their colonies, and are frequently outcast, or even hunted. This generally serves well for the independent deviants, who value their own identity and individuality over all else.

While deviants are parasites, and do not see their hosts as equals, this doesn't necessarily mean they don't care for these hosts. Many deviants treat their hosts as something akin to beloved pets or possessions, and dote on them incessantly. Some deviants may even seek to form a harem of devoted thralls whom they rotate between.

Deviant Traits

Ability Score Increase. Your Charisma Score increases By 2

Forced Bonding. Deviants care less for the consent of their hosts and are capable of using overwhelming sensation to forcibly bond themselves to both willing and unwilling humanoids. You may use an action on your turn to attempt to forcibly attune with an unconscious beast or humanoid with a CR of 2 or lower.

The target must succeed on an inhibition saving throw with a DC equal to your charisma score, or attune to you as if it were a willing host. Your host may repeat this saving throw as a free action anytime you take damage equal to more than half your hit point maximum, or are knocked unconscious, ending the attunement on a success.

A forcibly bonded host remains restrained and incapacitated while attuned to you, and can only speak as you allow. While bonded to a beast, you can take only actions that beast would be capable of taking. For example while bonded to a wolf, you can move freely and make claw or bite attacks, but cannot wield a sword or cast spells which require verbal components.

Total Encasement. In order to maintain complete control over a host's body, deviants encase their host's completely in their armoured skin. Your host cannot be targeted by attacks or sexual advances unless you allow it or are knocked unconscious.

Parasitic Adaptation The potent control you maintain over your host allows you to draw on their physical reserves as well as your own. As an action on your turn, you may Deal necrotic damage to your host equal to your hit dice + your constitution modifier, and regain hit points equal to the result. You may use this ability a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you can use it again.

Deviant Broods.

While deviants are technically capable of the same broodmother transformation as drones, deviant broodmothers are effectively non-existant. Lacking the innate psionic connection other Xio have to their broodmother, deviants do not feel the same overwhelming urge to be part of a colony, and rarely if ever seek to form their own.

Deviant Xio are by nature more independent and self-serving than their symbiotic kin, and generally see other deviants as competition for hosts more than potential allies. On the rare occasion a deviant chooses to become a broodmother, it will generally only produce a few dozen offspring before reverting to it's more mobile and independent state.

Xiborne

Under normal circumstances, the only reproductive member of a Xio colony is the Broodmother - with lesser members of the colony possessing no functional reproductive system. But with the help of certain kinds of magic, it is possible, if incredibly rare, for a Xio to conceive a humanoid child with it's host. Such children are called "Xiborn" and while generally accepted into the colony as sacred expressions of the Host-Xio bond, their role within the hive-structure of Xio society is uncertain at best.

While not themselves capable of bonding to a host, Xiborne share a psychic connection to the broodmother, and the desire to be part of a larger community. They alos share the symbiotic nature genetically coded into their Xio heritage, and will often devote themselves entirely to a specific individual or group.

Xiborne are strange mixtures of Xio features, and their host-parent's race - often sporting chitinous plates over portions of their body or additional sets of small insectoid limbs along their abdomen. Because of their Xio heritage, a Xiborne's personality reflects visibly in their strange appearance, causing Their outward appearance to shift and change overtime, as they mature and find their identity. Some Xiborne look like teiflings covered in chitinous tree-bark and mushroom like horns, while others bare the oversized dragon-scales seemingly trimmed with golden filigree. Whatever the case, most Xiborne are striking and unusual in appearance.

Xiborne Traits

You are a fusion of both Xio,and your host-parent's race, and many of your Ability Score Increase. Your Constitution score increases by 1, and one ability score favoured by your Host-parent increases by 2.

Age. Xiborne live on average twice as long as their host-parent race

Alignment. Xiborne hold no predisposition towards any particular alignment, however their strong loyalty and sense of community general makes them lean to neutral and good alignments.

Size. Xiborne inherent the size of their non-xio parentage. Your size category is determined by that of your host-parent

Speed. Xiborne Inherent the speed of their host-parent race

Engineered Biology. Your Xio heritage rants you resistance to poison, and advantage on saving throws against disease, poison, and intoxication. However you are considered vulnerable to both acid and psychic damage.

Suspended Animation. You do not truly sleep, but instead enter a dormant state, during witch you are fully aware of your surroundings. Spending at least 4 hours in this state grants you the benefits of completing a long rest

Tactile Telepathy. Xiborne are capable of exchanging thoughts and memories without the need for language. You can telepathically speak to any creature you are currently touching. You do not need to share a language with a creature to be heard, but creatures who do not know a language may be unable to understand your meaning

Dual Heritage. Your Dual heritage grants you a mixture of traits from both your host and Xio parents. You gain one racial trait of your choice from your Host-Parent's race, and one of the following benefits, based on the nature of your Xio-Parent

> Drone. A pair of delicate, yet powerful limb-like appendages sprout form your back, assisting you and your host in a variety of tasks. You may take the Use an Object action as a bonus action on your turn or that of your host.
>
> Seeker. You may communicate telepathically with any creature within 20 ft. This replaces your Tactile Telepathy racial feature
>
> Sentinel. Your chitinous plating provides additional protection against most basic forms of attack. You Add half your proficiency bonus to your AC against nonmagical attacks which deal Bludgeoning, Slashing, or Piercing damage

Infertility. Xiborne themselves are only able to be born through the use of specific forms of magic, and cannot bear children of their own. You are Infertile, and cannot be made fertile or have children by any means short of a Wish spell.

Languages. You can Speak, Read, and Write Common, and Deep Speech, As well as any races understood by your Host-Parent

Xio Broodmother

Each Xio Colony has at least one Broodmother, who's sole purpose within the Hive is to reproduce.

Broodmother hosts reside in a near comatose state of minimal awareness while their Xio counterpart takes full control of locomotive function. Meanwhile, the Broodmother itself drastically overgrows the host, forming an enormous centaur-like insect body, capable of producing vast amounts of Xio young.

Broodmother Traits

Size Category Increase. As a broodmother, your size category increases to huge

Ability Score Increase. Your Strength and Intelligence scores both increase by 2

Overgrown Host. Your host has entered a catatonic state of minimal awareness. You ignore the benefits of your Parasitic Lifeform trait, and are no longer paralyzed while not worn by an attuned host.

Telepathic Echo. You may communicate telepathically with any creature within 120 ft. This replaces your Tactile Telepathy racial feature

Psionic Control You gain access to the Spells Suggestion, Command, and Dominate Person, and may cast these spells a number of times between long rests equal to your proficiency bonus. Intelligence is the ability you use when determining the spell-save DC for this spell.

Separate Creatures, Shared Spaces

While Xio and host may share a body, this hardly means that they are limited by the same pool of actions. Both Xio and Host take their turns separately, and are free to use the full range of actions, reactions, and bonus actions normally available in combat or other time-sensitive situations. As a general rule, any questions regarding how actions or effects apply to a xio-host pair should be handled as if the two characters are entirely separate creatures, who just happen to share a space with each other.

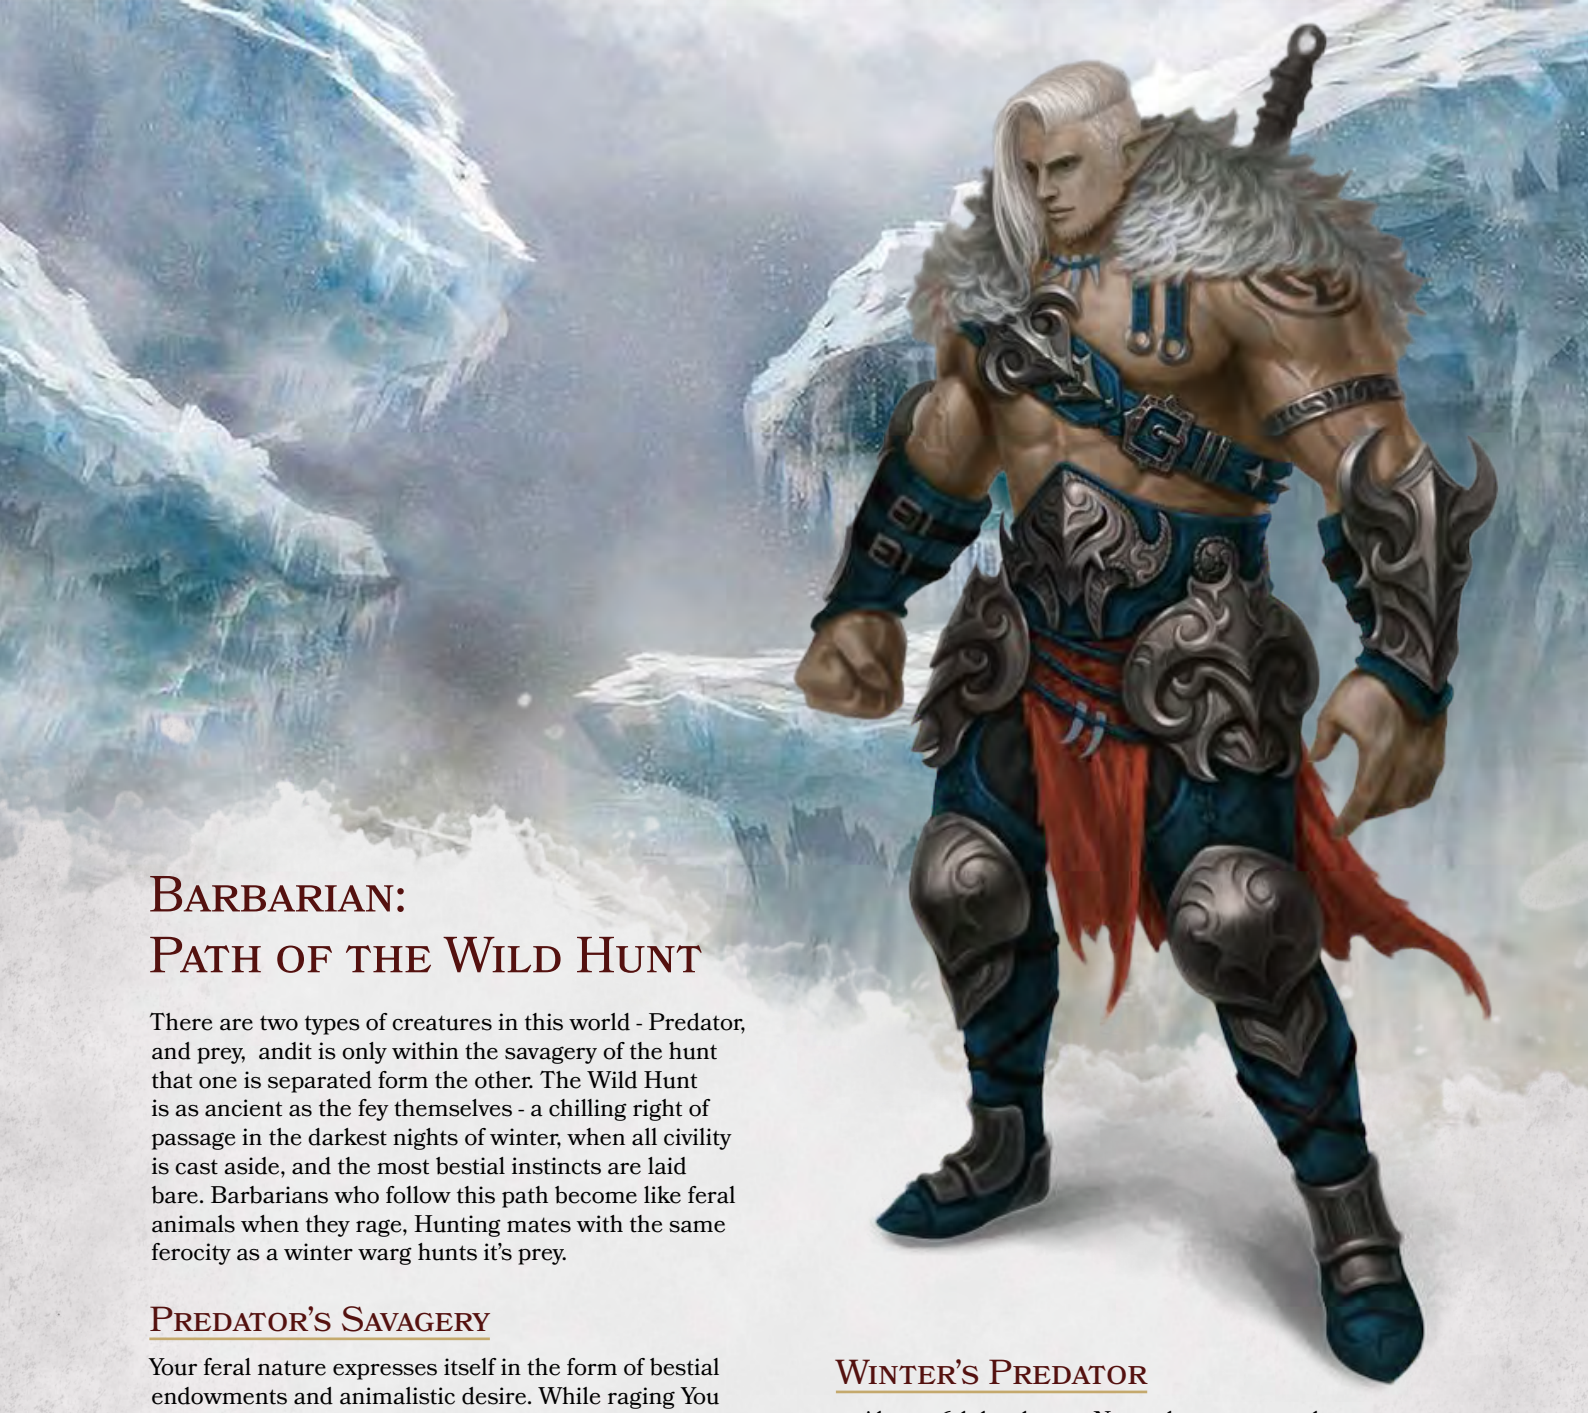

There are, however, times when either host or Xio might disagree with the actions taken by their respective partner, and in these situations, the opposing party may use their reaction to contest the triggering action. When an action is opposed, The triggering creature must make a strength or intelligence saving throw (as chosen by the opposing party) against a DC equal to 8+ the opposing party's proficiency bonus and relevant ability score. On a success, the action is performed as usual. On a failure, the action automatically fails.

Broodmothers in action.

While included as part of this supplement, the Xio Broodmother is not intended as a playable subrace. It's immense size and powerful psionics make it inappropriate for use as a player character, except in extreme situations, and it is better used as a racial template for a powerful NPC.

Broodmother Xio rarely if ever leave the safety of their colony chambers, and are too valuable to the hive to serve as adventurers.

Barbarian: Path of the Wild Hunt

There are two types of creatures in this world - Predator, and prey, andit is only within the savagery of the hunt that one is separated form the other. The Wild Hunt is as ancient as the fey themselves - a chilling right of passage in the darkest nights of winter, when all civility is cast aside, and the most bestial instincts are laid bare. Barbarians who follow this path become like feral animals when they rage, Hunting mates with the same ferocity as a winter warg hunts it's prey.

Predator's Savagery

Your feral nature expresses itself in the form of bestial endowments and animalistic desire. While raging You gain the following additional effects:

- Your inhibition is reduced to 0
- You gain resistance to cold damage, and have advantage on saving throws against the effects of extreme climates
- You are incapacitated, rather than stunned, by the edging condition.
- You may continue to take the attack action and make sexual advances while incapacitated due to edging or climax.
- You gain bestial claws or teeth. These natural weapons deal your choice of 1d10 slashing or piercing damage.
- The stimulation of your natural sexual implements increases to 1d10

Primal Hunger

At 6th level, the primal magic of the hunt fuels the most bestial of your senses. You are instantly aware of the presence of any creatures within 120ft of you who are frightened or hyperaroused, and have advantage to track them. You know the exact location of any frightened or hyperaroused creature within 30 ft of you

Winter's Predator

Also at 6th level, your Natural weapons and implements count as magical for the purpose of overcoming resistances and immunities. When you make a natural weapon attack or advance against a creature, you may choose to deal the damage or stimulation as cold damage or stimulation instead of it's normal damage or stimulation type.

Armor of the Hunt

By 10th level, the icy thrill of the hunt deadens your pain so long as the pursuit continues. You are immune to the effects of extreme climates, and when you take damage while raging, you may use your reaction to reduce the damage by half. If you do so, you gain stimulation equal to the same amount.

Invigorating Climax

Upon reaching level 14, the true fury of the wild hunt pulses chill through your veins, making you every bit as insatiable as an animal. You ignore the effects of exhaustion and overstimulation while raging, and each time you climax, you gain temporary hit points equal to twice your level.

Bard:
College of Romance

Is there any song older than that of tenderness, intimacy, and desire? Any chord of the heart more reverberant and pure than that of love? How many wars have been fought and alliances struck for that immeasurable sensation of the heart? Throughout all of history, tales of romance and passion have shaped the world, and a bard is nothing if not a hopeless romantic.

Bards of the College of Romance excel at the singing of love songs, and the retelling of heartfelt tales. Be it words of exquisite passion, or the story of some star-crossed love, they are coinsures of passion and romance. What's more, such bards are masters of the heartstrings of others - able to sway a heart or excite the loins with only a few words or a single melodic chord.

Language of Love

Love is a universal thing, and needs no written word or spoken tongue. At 3rd level, when you join the College of Romance, you know how to read and deliver subtle cues of emotion that, you can use to communicate with other creatures, even if they do not share a language with you. This communication is two- way, and can take a variety of forms, from the tune of a baliset, to the tone of your voice and the gentle touch of your hands. It is a language of hearts, not minds, however: It serves well for communicating ideas of the heart and emotional concepts such as sexual consent, but not for literal translations or detailed plans, such as the layout of the litch's fortress defences.

Of Love and Lust

By 3rd level, Your performance on in bed is as enthralling a spectacle as any show on stage. Once per round when you make a martial sexual advance, you may expend a use of your bardic inspiration to add your performance skill bonus to the advance roll in place of your proficiency bonus.

Song of the Heart

Beginning at 6th level, Your charming nature makes it simple work to pull at the heartstrings of others. You have advantage on persuasion checks advances against creatures who are not otherwise hostile to you, and spells you cast as part of a sexual advance ignore the target's inhibition.

Ballad of Desire

The chords you strike with your instruments inspire more than just simple luck or confidence. Beginning at 14th level, When making a performance check as an action on your turn, you may expend a use of your bardic inspiration to force those who witness your performance to make a charisma saving throw. On a failure, they become infatuated with you for the next hour, or until they take damage form any source. The number of creatures you can affect in this way at any one time is equal to your proficiency bonus.

Divine Domain:

Perversion Domain

Gods of Lust or Perversion, such as Loviatar, Lady Azeroth, Dionysus, and The Master seek to reveal and revel in the perverse nature of the world, uncovering things that would be kept hidden and bringing them out into plain view of all. Often represented by symbols of sex or eroticism, such gods are often outcast from more prudish patheons, and adopted by those who seek fulfilment in the taboo. Others follow these gods for the freeing honesty they represent: embracing deviancy from the norm and celebrating it's unique and unadulterated beauty.

Perversion Domain Spells

Spell Level	Spells
1st	*Charm Person, Detect Sexuality
2nd	Instant Recovery, Dominae's Desperate Denial
3rd	*Bestow Curse, Incite Lust
4th	*Sexual Thievery *, Serpent's Shaft
5th	*Dream, Dominate Clothes

Vestments of the Sinful

Beginning at 1st level, You have adopted the exotic trappings of your faith, and understand the power they grant you. While naked or wearing only lingerie or other sexually revealing clothing such as fetish armor, your AC equals 10 + your dexterity modifier + your charisma modifier..

Profane Worship

Also at first level, your worship contains unorthodox and profane rights that others might call sinful. You gain proficiency in all sexual implements, and may use any sexual implement, including your natural implements, as a holy symbol.

Channel Divinity: Discover Depravity

Starting at 2nd level, you may call upon your deity for insight into the depravity of others. As an action on your turn, you may touch a creature, forcing it to make a wisdom saving throw. On a failure, you learn one kink, fetish, or other secret that the creature would not willingly share with others. At your DM's discretion, this may include information the creature itself is unaware of.

Corrupting Influence

Starting at 6th level, your ability to deliver pleasure becomes potent enough to corrupt even those who would be otherwise resistant. Stimulation dealt by your cleric spells and Channel Divinity options ignores resistance to all stimulation types, and treats immunity to any stimulation type as resistance instead.

Perverse Healing

When you reach 8th level, you have learned to pervert the restorative magic of your healing spells. When you cast a spell of 1st level or higher that restores hit points, you may chose to deal radiant stimulation to the target equal to the number of hit points restored.

Aura of Perversion

When you reach 17th level, You gain the ability to twist the very nature of arousal. As an action, you may activate an aura of perversion around yourself with a radius of 30 ft. This aura lasts for lasts for 1 minute, or until you dismiss it using another action, and creatures within this aura gain your choice of either the denied or nymphomanic condition.

Alternate Class Features

Not every campaign make consistent use of undead enemies: lewd adventures especially so. With your DM's permission, you may use the following abilities to replace the Turn Undead and Destroy Undead channel divinity features that all clerics have access to.

Corrupt Resistance

(You may use this feature to replace the "Turn Undead" Channel Divinity feature granted by your base class)

As an action, you present your holy symbol and call forth the perverse desires of your enemies. Each Enemy within 30 ft must succeed on a wisdom saving throw or Become hyperaroused for 1 minute, or until it takes damage.

A creature hyperaroused in this way treats any damage of a type it is resistant to as stimulation of the same type.

Command the Defiled

(You may use this feature to replace the "Destroy Undead" Channel Divinity feature granted by your base class)

Starting at 5th level, when a creature fails it's saving throw against your Corrupt Resistance feature, the creature instead becomes infatuated by you for the duration, if it's challenge rating is at or below a certain threshold:

Release The Defiled

Cleric Level	Releases Creatures of CR
5th	1/2 or lower
8th	1 or lower
11th	2 or lower
14th	3 or lower
17th	4 or lower

Druid Circle

Circle of Fertility

Druids of the Circle of Fertility understand that true value of nature is it's ability to bring forth life. These exotic sages serve the role of pollinators; travelling far and wide to spread their wisdom and to sew the seeds of life wherever they find fertile ground. As a Druid of this circle, your magic comes from the fruitful instincts of all living things, and the blooming of sexual energies. You are a walking season of verdant desire, and are at your most powerful within the throws of passion.

Fertile Ground

At 2nd level, when you join this circle, you gain deep insight into where and when is most suitable for new life to grow. When making pregnancy checks or saving throws, you may choose to give yourself either advantage or disadvantage, and may apply the same effect to any sexual partner.

Verdant Form

Also beginning at 2nd level, you may expend a use of your wild shape feature to transform yourself into a Verdant Form. While in this form, you body becomes lush and plantlike, and you gain the following benefits:

- At the start of each of your turns, you regain a number of hit points equal to your proficiency bonus
- You can make grapple checks as a bonus action instead of an action
- You become hermaphroditic, gaining additional sexual implements according to your race.
- You are hyperaroused.

This form lasts for the same duration as your standard wildshape, and ends early if you dismiss it (no action required), are incapacitated, die, or use your wildshape feature again.

Circle Spells

The Circle of Fertility infuses you with the ability to cast certain spells. At 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th level you gain access to circle spells below

Circle of Fertility Spells

Druid Level	Spells
3rd	Enthrall, Prayer of Healing
5th	Incite Lust, Mass Healing Word*
7th	*Aura of Life, Miraculous Milk
9th	Rapid Pregnancy, Mass Cure Wounds

Once you gain access to a circle spell. You always have it prepared, and it doesn't count against the number of spells you can prepare each day. If you gain access to a spell that doesn't appear on the druid spell list, the spell is nonetheless a druid spell for you.

Succulent Tending

As you reach 6th level, your connection to the unadulterated nature of life allows you to channel additional potency into your healing while you or your partner are in heat. When you cast a spell that restores hit points, you restore additional hit points equal to 1d8 + your wisdom modifier if you or the target of the spell is hyperaroused or hyperfertile. The target gains stimulation equal to the same amount.

Pheromone Bloom

Starting at 10th level, your fragrant blooms can channel the arousal of spring into those around you. As an action on your turn, you may release a bloom of powerful pheromones to create an aura of spring within 30 ft of yourself.

Creatures who enter or begin their turn within this aura must succeed on a wisdom saving throw or become hyperaroused until the end of their next turn. Creatures who are immune ot the poisoned condition have advantage on this saving throw.

Lifegiving Seed

At 14th level, your connection to the wellspring of life makes you an ever flowing fountain of life giving seed. You are immune to the effects of overstimulation, and whenever you climax, all allies within 30 ft of you may expend a number of hit dice and regain hit points as if they had completed a short rest.

Druid Circle

Circle of the Shrine

Shrine druids care for sacred structures, drawing wisdom from the spirits of their shrine, and preparing magical talismans to aid those who pay homage to it's sprits. It is rare for such sages to leave the safety of their shrines, but when they do, it is often to purge corrupted spirits or avenge shrines they could not protect.

Warding Talisman

Starting at 2nd level when you chose this subclass, you have learned the art of preparing powerful Ofuda or Paper Talismans, which can be used to store Abjuration spells from the druid spell list.

You can store a druid spell of 5th level or lower in a talisman by casting it as part of 10 minute ritual. The spell consumes a spell slot when cast in this way, but has no immediate effect. As an action, you may adhere the talisman to a target or surface, causing the spell to activate. If the target is a hostile or unwilling creature, you must succeed on an attack roll using your dexterity modifier against the target in order to properly adhere the talisman.

If the spell would affect a target, it affects the same target onto which the talisman is placed. If the spell affects an area, the area is centered on the talisman. If the spell summons hostile creatures or creates harmful objects or traps, they appear as close as possible to the talisman and the creature or object it is applied to. If the spell requires concentration, it lasts until the end of its full duration, or until the talisman is destroyed or removed.

Destroying a talisman requires the use of a dispel magic spell, or damage from a single magical attack greater than your spell save DC. You may remove a talisman using a bonus action on your turn, destroying it's magical properties

The maximum number of talismans you can have at one time using this feature is equal to your proficiency bonus. If you try to exceed your maximum, your oldest talisman immediately loses it's magical properties, and the spell slot used to create it is lost.

Spirit Companion

Also beginning at 2nd level, you have formed a familiar bond with the spirit of your shrine, which you may summon forth to aid you when needed. As an action, you can expend a use of your Wild Shape feature to Summon a shrine spirit, which takes the form of a small or tiny beast, with a CR no higher than that of a beast you could transform into.

The summoned spirit appears faintly translucent and is treated as a fey, instead of a beast. It shares your Intelligence, Wisdom, and Charisma scores, and understands any language you know, but can speak only telepathically to you, within a range of 30 ft. In combat, the spirit acts on your initiative, and is considered your ally, but may disobey or disregard your instructions as it chooses. The spirit disappears if it moves more than 120 ft from you, or after a number of hours equal to half your druid level.

Circle Spells

The spirit of your shrine infuses you with the ability to cast certain spells. At 3rd, 5th, 7th, and 9th level you gain access to circle spells below

Circle of the Shrine Spells

Druid Level	Spells
3rd	Word of Safety, Arcane Lock
5th	Magic Circle, Glyph of Warding
7th	Aura of Purity, Banishment
9th	Dispel Evil and Good, Planar Binding

Once you gain access to a circle spell. You always have it prepared, and it doesn't count against the number of spells you can prepare each day. If you gain access to a spell that doesn't appear on the druid spell list, the spell is nonetheless a druid spell for you.

Studied Scribe

Upon reaching 6th level, you are capable of inscribing a wider variety of magic into the talismans you create. Choose one additional school of magic from the following list: Conjuration, Divination, Enchantment, Evocation, Illusion, Necromancy, Transmutation. You may create talismans of spells from this school of magic in addition to abjuration spells.

In addition, the talismans you create retain their power even in the hands of others. Your talismans may be applied by creatures other than yourself. When applied in this way, the spell uses your spellcasting modifier when determining it's spell attack modifier or spell save DC.

Empowered Spirit

Starting at 10th level, When you expend a use of your Wild Shape feature to summon a shrine spirit, the spirit's size may be medium or greater. In addition, it gains one of the following blessings:

Blessing of Speed: Your shrine spirit's size category increases to large if it is not already, and it may be ridden as a mount. While this blessing is active, your shrine spirit may move up to 2 miles from you before disappearing.

Blessing of Strength. Your shrine spirit gains a bonus to attack and damage rolls equal to your wisdom modifier. While this blessing is active, your shrine spirit gains temporary hit points equal to twice your level.

Blessing of Wisdom. When you cast a spell, your shrine spirit may use it's reaction to deliver the spell when you cast it. While this blessing is active, your familiar may use it's action to maintain concentration on a spell you have cast.

Master Scribe

Upon reaching 18th level, your skill in creating ofuda is that of a powerful master, allowing you to create talismans on a moments notice. You may create a single talisman as a bonus action on your turn.

In addition, you may create ofuda of any druid spell you have prepared, regardless of it's school of magic.

Fighter Archetype

Dominator

Not all combat is to the death, and no martial combatant better understands that than the Dominator. Whether the goal is pacifying and unruly brat, capturing slaves for sale on the black market, or just sport and entertainment, dominators excel at restraining and dominating their opponent without the need for lethal force.

Tools of the Trade

Beginning at 3rd level when you choose this archetype, you gain proficiency with whips, Floggers, Paddles, and all other sturdy sexual implements, and add your proficiency bonus to the escape DC of any restraints or bondage equipment you apply to another creature.

Additionally, when you make an attack or sexual advance using an implement that also serves as a weapon, you deal an additional 1d6 damage or stimulation.

Restraining Grasp

Also starting at 3rd level, you have an innate talent for quickly restraining your targets in combat. Creatures Grappled by you are also considered restrained, and when you make a sexual advance against a restrained creature, you deal additional stimulation equal to your charisma modifier.

Forceful Presence

By 7th level, you have learned to project a powerful aura of dominance that excites and arouses those around you. As a bonus action on your turn, you may force a creature who can see or hear you to make a wisdom saving throw opposed by your intimidation check. On a failure, the creature becomes infatuated by you until the start of it's next turn, and has disadvantage on wisdom saving throws while it remains infatuated in this way.

Expert Binding

Upon reaching 10th level, you have become an expert in restraints and bindings, able to perfectly secure a creature without leaving even the slightest room for unwanted movement. Creatures restrained by you, or by restraints applied by you, have disadvantage on saving throws and checks made to escape their restraints.

Dominant's Wrath

Your aura of dominance is more than just forceful presence. Starting at 15th level, when a creature succeeds on a saving throw against your forceful presence feature, you gain advantage on attack rolls against that target until the end of your next turn.

Additionally, when a creature within 5 ft attempts to escape from a grapple or restraint, you may use your reaction to make an opportunity attack against the triggering target, negating the attempt on a hit (in addition to the damage of the opportunity attack).

Commanding Presence

By the time you reach 18th level, your shear presence is often enough to drop others to their knees in supplication. And you have learned to channel this force of personality to great effect. You learn the Command and Hold Person spells and may cast them each once, at a level equal to your charisma modifier, after which you must complete a short rest before you may do so again. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.`

Additional "Fighting" Styles

Sometimes, the fight is nothing more than foreplay. The following fighting styles are available to any character with access to fighting styles.

Groper

When you make an attack or sexual advance against a creature and hit, you may make a grapple check against the same target as a bonus action.

Heavy Impact

When you make a sexual advance using and implement with the sturdy property, you may use your bonus action to make an attack with the same implement.

Oil Wrestler

You can use a bonus action to automatically escape from nonmagical restraints, such as manacles or a creature that has you grappled.

Orgasm Denial

When a creature within 5 ft of you would make a climax saving throw, you may use your reaction to impose the denied condition on the triggering target until the start of it's next turn

Ruiner

When a creature within 5 ft of you would make a climax saving throw, you may use your reaction to affect the target as if by the ruin orgasm spell.

Seductive Fighting

When you hit with an unarmed or weapon attack, you may use a reaction to gain advantage on the next sexual advance you make.

Hollower Manifestation:

Mindless Doll

When overwhelmed by the psychic stresses within, some Hollowers choose to escape their inner madness by letting go of thought entirely. As your insanity takes hold, you regress into a mindless doll, forgoing the responsibility of intelligence to eagerly serve your companions.

Surrender Intellect

Beginning at 2nd level when you choose this manifestation,, you have come to realize that the best way to endure your madness is trade your mental faculties for the pleasure of obedience

As a bonus action on your turn, you may choose to reduce your intelligence score by an amount equal to your proficiency bonus until the end of your next turn. If you do so, your insanity level is reduced by the same amount.

While your intelligence is reduced in this way, you become infatuated by the nearest ally, and have advantage on checks and saving throws made to follow any command or suggestions given to you by the target of your infatuation.

Erotic Nightmares

Starting at 5th level, you have learned to turn dreadful nightmares into erotic fantasies by simply letting go. Creatures who fail their saving throw against your zone of nightmares become intoxicated and hyperaroused rather than frightened.

Spreading Servitude

By 11th level, you have learned to spread the bliss of mindless servitude

While under the effects of your surrender intellect feature, you know the Command, Suggestion, Incite Lust, and Ruby's Mindfuck spells, and may cast them without expending spell slots or material components. Charisma is your Spellcasting Ability for these spells.

You may use this feature three times, after which you must complete long rest before you can do so again.

Thoughtless Action

Upon reaching 17th level, you have chosen to give yourself over entirely to pleasure, allowing you to act without need for thought

While under the effects of your Surrender intellect feature, you may use your reaction to gain the Nymphomanic condition. While affected in this way, you are affected as if by the haste spell for a number of rounds equal to your proficiency bonus, and the targets of your sexual advances may be determined by your allies, rather than by proximity.

Insanity Effects

Result	Effect
1	You find yourself reflexively speaking in the third person, as if telling your own story, rather than living it.

Whenever you enter a new area, you must succeed on a dc 15 charisma save or be under the effects of the hallucinatory terrain spell as controlled by the DM. On a natural 1, you also gain the nymphomanic condition until you are brought to climax.*

Mutophage Affliction:

The Corruption

Within the dark recesses of abyssal desire and eldritch lust, there are creatures and forces that seek to corrupt our world to reflect their own perversions. Mutophages born of this corruption are specially suited to carnal acts of desire - feeding upon the sexual energies of others to further empower their own twisted bodies.

Form of the Seducer

Beginning at 3rd level, your warped body is no longer bound by the limits of a single sexual form. You gain proficiency in all Sexual Implements, and may create these implements or alter your body's sexual traits (such as breast or penis size) as a bonus action on your turn. Sexual implements created in this way cannot be more than one size category above or below you own.

Additionally, you ignore any adverse effects of size category when penetrating or being penetrated.

Fuel of Desire

By 7th level you can feel the passions of others flowing through your veins, and have begun to feed on their arousal. Once per turn when you deal stimulation to a creature within 5ft, you may use your reaction to feed on their arousal. When you do so, their arousal maximum decreases by the amount of stimulation dealt, and your hit point maximum increases by the same amount. Both maximums return to normal when you complete a short or long rest.

You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may use it again

Captivating Form

By the time you reach 10th level, the strangeness of your form is enough to inspire an uncanny source of desire in others. When you make a performance check as part of a sexual advance, creatures who can see you have disadvantage on saving throws and skill checks made to resist your performance.

Consume Climax

Beginning at 15th level, you have learned to harness the power of sexual release. When a creature other than yourself within 5 ft of you climaxes, you may use a reaction to force the creature to make a constitution saving throw against your mutation save DC. On a failure, the creature gains one level of overstimulation, and you regain a number of hit dice equal to your proficiency bonus.

You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may use it again

Corrupting Release

Upon reaching 18th level, the true power of your sinful mutations becomes clear. You are never incapacitated, stunned, or paralysed as the result of failing a climax saving throw.

Additionally, when you climax, each creature within 15 ft of you must immediately succeed on a constitution saving throw against your mutation save DC or become Hyperaroused and Intoxicated for a number of rounds equal to your constitution modifier.

Mutophage Affliction:

The Endless Hunger

Not all mutations are purely physical in nature. Vampirism is, in many ways, a mutation of the soul, transmitted through blood. The hunger of this affliction drives it's victims to consume the very essence of living creatures, draining them of blood in an attempt to sustain their mutated soul.

Vampiric Hunger

Beginning at 3rd level, your vampiric mutations allow you to drain vitality from those you strike. Once per turn when make a natural weapon attack against a living creature and hit, you may use your reaction to feed on the life-essence of your target. When you do so, the target's hit point maximum decreases by the amount of damage dealt, and your hit point maximum increases by the same amount. This does not increase or restore your current hit points. Both maximums return to normal when you complete a short or long rest.

You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may use it again

Blood Frenzy

By 7th level the hunger that dives you has grown, empowering you with unnatural speed and stamina for a short time after feeding. Immediately after using your Vampiric Hunger feature, you enter a violent frenzied state, which provides the following effects:

- You gain an additional number of reactions each round equal to half your proficiency bonus. These reactions can only be used to make opportunity attacks.
- Your Speed increases by 10 ft.
- You have advantage on strength checks and saving throws.
- Each time you take damage from any source, you gain temporary hit points equal to half the damage taken.

While frenzied, you treat all creatures as hostile for the purpose of opportunity attacks, and must make an opportunity attack against any creature that provokes one. If you are able to cast spells, you can't cast them or concentrate on them while frenzied.

This frenzy lasts for 1 minute. It ends early if you are knocked unconscious or if your turn ends and you haven't attacked a hostile creature since your last turn or taken damage since then. You cannot choose to end this frenzy

Vampiric Half-Life

By the time you reach 10th level, your soul has mutated into something not yet dead, but not quite living. You no longer age, and don't need to eat or drink.

Additionally, you gain resistance to necrotic damage, and treat exhaustion as if it were one level less.

Soul Feast

Beginning at 15th level, you have learned to truly harness the power of your hunger. When a creature within 5 ft of you dies, you may spend a reaction to regain a number of hit dice equal to your proficiency bonus, and activate a or increase the tier of a single mutation. You may use this feature a number of times equal to your constitution modifier, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may use it again

Corrupting Hunger

Upon reaching 18th level, your hunger corrupts those you feed upon, when you use your vampiric hunger feature to increase your maximum hit points, you may force the target to make on a constitution saving throw, on a failure the target gains one mutation of your choice from among the list of mutations you know. This mutation becomes active at it's lowest tier, and lasts until the target completes a long or short rest.

Monastic Tradition:

The Way of the Sensate

All monks are masters of their bodies, and the energies which flow within, but only Sensates, trained in the tantric art of pleasure and sensation, can truly harness the flow of such life energies in the form of sex.

Tantric Control

Beginning at 3rd level when you choose this tradition, intense training has made you a master of the sexual arts. Your natural sexual implements count as monk implements. In addition, you have advantage on saving throws against the following conditions: hyperaroused, denied, hyperfertile, and infertile.

Sexual Healing

Also at 3rd level, you have unlocked the healing potential of sexual energies. When you make a direct sexual advance against a willing creature, you may expend 1 ki to awaken the tantric energies within it. The creature may immediately expend a number of hit dice up to half your proficiency bonus. For each hit die spent in this way, the target rolls the die and adds your wisdom modifier to it, regaining hit points equal to the total

Focused Arousal

By 6th level, You have learned to focus your own tantric energies into a state of perfect sexual awareness. As a bonus action on your turn, you may choose to enter a state of tantric meditation. You gain the following effects while in this state.

- You are Hyperaroused
- You know the exact hit points and arousal of all creatures within 30 ft that you can see
- You regain hit points equal to half your level each time you bring a creature to climax
- When you restore hit points using your sexual healing feature, you can also end either one disease or one of the following conditions afflicting the target: blinded, deafened, paralyzed, or poisoned.

This state lasts for 1 minute. It ends early if you are knocked unconscious or if your turn ends and you haven't dealt gained stimulation since your last turn. You can also end your rage on your turn as a bonus action.

Sexual Empowerment

Beginning at 11th level, you have learned to harness the tantric energies of not just your own your own climaxes, but of those around you. You are immune to the negative effects of the edging condition, and cannot be incapacitated due to climax. Additionally, you regain 1 ki point each time a creature with in 5 ft of you fails a climax saving throw.

Tantric Restoration

By the time you reach 17th level, your Tantric Healing can do more than stimulate a creature's natural healing. When you use your sexual healing feature to restore hit points, you may expend an additional 3 ki points to cast the greater restoration spell as part of the same action, without expending a spell slot or material components.

Paladin Oath:

Oath of Aftercare

The oath of aftercare holds a sacred place among all those who practice such pleasures in a safe and consensual way. Those who swear this oath are often some of the most deviant and perverted lovers, but are universally concerned with the care and safety of their partners. Such paladins look after those who have been subjected to the extremes of sex, and punish those who take sexual advantage of others.

Oath of Aftercare Spells

Spell Level	Spells
1st	*Healing Word, Affirm Gender
2nd	*Calm Emotions, Word of Safety
3rd	Create food and Water, Tongues
4th	Private Sanctum, Freedom of Movement
5th	Greater Restoration, Telepathic Bond

Tenets

The tenets of the Oath of Aftercare are simple and straightforward, drawing from the heart and the natural care of one creature for another.

Consent is Sacred. Hold sacred the bond of consent, and understand that it can be revoked at any time. Protect the sanctity of this bond with your life.

Communication is Key. Even in the absence of words, open communication is necessary for all things. Do not keep secrets, and be on the lookout for signs of both distress and pleasure in others.

Abandon No One. No mater the roles we may play in life, or in scene, all creatures are equally deserving of aftercare. An encounter cannot conclude until all parties have been tended to in equal measure.

3rd Channel Divinity:

Beginning at 1st level, when you select this domain, Your deity grants you blessing while wearing things others would find perverse.

Consent Check. As a reaction when you or a creature you can see is targeted by an attack or sexual advance, you may use your Channel Divinity to speak a sacred word, interrupting the triggering action. All creatures that can see or hear you within 30 feet must succeed on a wisdom saving throw, or be affected as if by the calm emotions spell for one minute, or until they take damage.

Vow of Support. As a bonus action, you can utter a vow of support towards a creature you can see within 10 ft of you, using your Channel Divinity. For the next minute, that creature gains advantage on death saving throws, and when you restore hit points to that creature through any means, they regain additional hit points equal to your level.

Restorative Embrace

Beginning at 7th level, your caring embrace is enough to heal more than just superficial wounds. When you use your lay on hands class feature to restore hit points to a creature, that creature may immediately make a saving throw against a single condition affecting it.

Shared Healing

Starting at 15th level, you have learned that healing is best done together. When you or an ally spends hit dice to regain hit points, you may use your reaction to restore an equal amount of hit points to another creature you can see.

Safe Space

As you reach 20th level, the true power of your calming aura becomes apparent. When a creature fails it's saving throw against your Word of Safety Channel Divinity, it also becomes charmed by all other creatures that failed this saving throw. This effect lasts for 1 minute, or until the creature takes damage or stimulation from any source.

Paladin Oath:

Oath of the Penitent

The Oath of the Penitent is sworn by those who feel the need to repent for their sins, and be punished for their transgressions. Paladins who take this oath have found themselves lacking in some core virtue, or unworthy of the favour they have been granted in life. They seek to make right this imbalance through intense personal discipline and self denial, often inflicting punishments upon themselves as a means of atoning for their sins. Such acts are not always sexual, but often become so, as the penitent learns to experience pleasure of the soul from the torment of their body.

Oath of the Penitent Spells

Spell Level	Spells
1st	Armor of Agthys , Arms of Hadar
2nd	Dominae's Desperate Denial, Warding Bond*
3rd	Incite Lust, Life Transference*
4th	Aura of Purity, Stoneskin
5th	Dominate Clothes, Geas*

Tenets

The tenets of the Oath of the Penitent are strict and self disciplinary, drawn from the inner turmoil of those who swear them, and their belief that they can become better

I am unworthy. Only perfection is truly worthy, and no creature, mortal or immortal, is truly perfect.

I must be punished. Punishment reminds us of our failings, and our duty to become better. Without punishment we lose our way.

I can become better. Every creature is capable of improvement, from the lowest peasant, to the mightiest god. No one is perfect, so we must all be better.

No one is beyond penance. The measure of a person is no in their flaws or their sins, but in their willingness to repent for those transgressions and serve their penance to become better.

Channel Divinity:

Beginning at 1st level, when you select this domain, Your deity grants you blessing while wearing things others would find perverse.

Vow of Penance. As an action you can claim the pain of your allies as your personal punishment instead, using your Channel Divinity. Until the start of your next turn, all damage dealt to allies within 30 ft of you is instead dealt to you as stimulation.

Abjure the Self. As an action on your turn, you can renounce yourself for your failings, using your Channel Divinity, to empower the more worthy. You gain the Denied and Paralyzed condition until the end of your next turn, while you are paralyzed in this way, all allies within 30 ft of you may add your inhibition to their attack rolls and saving throws.

Lash of Penance

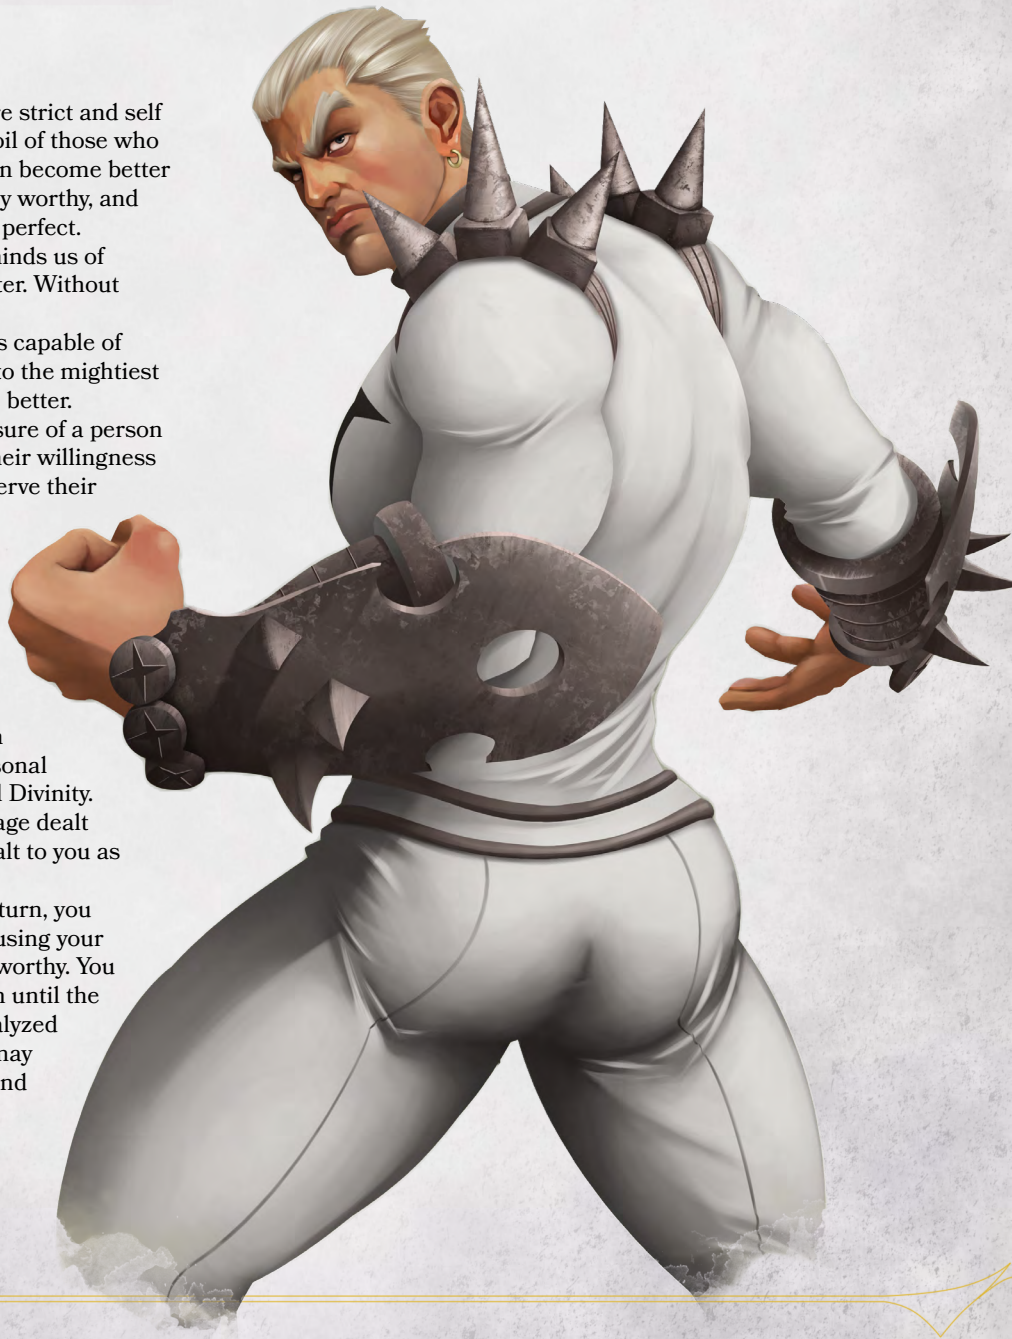

Beginning at 7th level, when you are targeted by a weapon attack, you may use your reaction to grant the attacker advantage on their attack roll. If you do so, the damage of the attack is instead treated as a sexual advance, and it's damage is dealt to you as stimulation. Your next attack against the triggering target deals additional damage equal to the stimulation gained.

Safe in Denial

By 15th level, you have learned to deny yourself even within the raptures of ecstasy. You may use a bonus action on your turn to gain the denied condition until the start of your next turn. While denied in this way, you gain temporary hit points equal to any stimulation you take.

Wrath of the Penitent

At 20th level, you have learned to forge your own pain into a weapon against the unrepentant. After your Vow of Penance Channel Divinity ends, the next attack you make using your Lash of Penance feature instead deals additional damage equal to the total stimulation gained from your Vow of Penance

Ranger Conclave:

Monsterfucker

Most rangers are expert hunters, serving as trackers and guides, or using their skills to take down dangerous prey. The Monsterfuckers are hunters in their own way, Seeking out rare and exotic partners as opposed to deadly prey.

Favored Partner

1st-level feature, replaces either your Natural Explorer or Farvored Enemy feature

Monsterfuckers seek out rare and exotic creatures for the challenge of killing them, but for the unique experience of seducing them. As such, your turned your talent of studying foes towards better understanding your monstrous partners.

Choose a type of favored partner: aberrations, beasts, celestials, constructs, dragons, elementals, fey, fiends, giants, monstrosities, oozes, plants, or undead. Alternatively, you may choose two races of humanoids other than your own (such as gnolls and orcs) as favored partners. You have advantage on Wisdom (Insight) checks to communicate or understand the intentions and desires of your favored partners, as well as on Charisma checks made to seduce them.

When you gain this feature, you also learn one language of your choice that is spoken by your favored partners, if they speak one at all.

You choose one additional favored partner, as well as an associated language, at 6th and 14th level.

Fuck Like an Animal

Beginning at 3rd level, you have learned how to more effectively pleasure your nonhuman partners. You have advantage on sexual advances made against willing partners with at least one creature type other than humanoid.

Monster Between the Sheets

At 7th level, you learn to create salves and tonics that help you satisfy even the most extreme lovers. As an action on your turn, you my use one of these poultices to gain the following effects for the next hour:

- The Size category of your natural implements increases by one, up to a maximum of huge.
- You count as one size category larger for the purpose of sexual penetration.

Bruises and Bitemarks

By 11th level, you have become accustomed to the dangers of having sex with more monstrous creatures, and have even learned to enjoy the feeling of sharp teeth and claws tearing into your skin.

When you take damage from a natural weapon or implement, you may use your reaction to treat damage from the triggering creature as stimulation until the start of your next turn.

Love is a Deathwish

A true Monsterfucker is never afraid to put their life on the line for sex. Beginning at 15th level, you have advantage on death saving throws.

Additionally, if you are reduced to 0 hit points while your arousal score is above half your arousal maximum, you remain conscious and may continue to take actions as normal until you die or fail a climax saving throw.

Rogueish Archetype:

Escort

Sex Sells. Any rogue worth their salt understands the value of a well-placed bit of seduction, but few specialize in it the way you do. Prostitution is one of the oldest professions in the world, and you see no reason to fix what isn't broken. You have honed your skills in the arts of pleasure and seduction, combining flawless sexual technique with a charming personality.

Turning Tricks

When you choose this Archetype at 3rd level, you gain proficiency with the disguise kit if you are not already proficient. Additionally, you have advantage on investigation checks made while in densely populated areas, and on persuasion checks to haggle or determine the value of goods.

Seductive Cunning

Starting at 3rd level, you have learned how to draw the eye and ensure all attention is on you. You can use the bonus action granted by your Cunning Action to attempt to distract or seduce a single target. The target must make an inhibition saving throw with a DC equal to 8+ your Charisma Modifier + Your Proficiency Bonus. On a failure, the creature has disadvantage to notice creatures other than you until the end of it's next turn, and attacks or sexual advances against it are made with advantage.

Read the Mark

At 9th level you have become an expert in reading those around you, And can easily determine what will most capture their attention.

If you spend at least 1 minute observing a creature, you can determine the insightful information about it's current mood or emotional state, personal interests, sexual orientation or proclivities, and sexual experience or history. You gain advantage on insight checks against this creature for the next hour, and sexual advances you make against it deal additional stimulation equal to your proficiency bonus.

Stunning Seduction

Beginning at 13th level, your seductive charms are nothing less than stunning. When a creature fails is saving throw against your Cunning Seduction feature by 5 or more, it becomes incapacitated until the end of it's next turn. If it fails by 10 or more, it is instead stunned until the end of it's next turn

All Eyes on Me

By 17th level, you have learned to make yourself irresistible to the entire room. When you use your Cunning Seduction feature, you may choose to target all creature that can see you.

Once you use this feature, you must complete a long rest before you can use it again.

Rogueish Archetype:

Mesmerist

Mesmerists specialize in subtle manipulations and hypnotic techniques, allowing them to beguile the minds and senses of those around them. Through careful observation and tailored tricks of the mind, they recreate effects that the uninitiated can only mistake for magic.

Mesmerism

Beginning at 3rd level you have learned to harness subtle cues of light, movement, and sound to draw the attention of those around you, and place spell-like suggestions in their mind.

As an action on your turn, you may attempt to mesmerize nearby creatures who can see or hear you. Choose a number of creatures up to your proficiency bonus. Each creature must make a Wisdom saving throw. Any creature that can't be charmed succeeds on this saving throw automatically, and if you or your companions are fighting a creature, it has advantage on the save. A sleeping or unconscious creature automatically fails this saving throw.

On a failed save, the target is charmed by you, and has disadvantage on Wisdom (Perception) checks made to perceive any creature other than you. This effect requires concentration to maintain, and ends automatically if you are incapacitated or fall unconscious. If a creature takes damage from any source, it may repeat it's saving throw against the effects of your mesmerism, ending these effects on it on a success. A creature who succeeds on its saving throw against this ability is immune to it's effects for the next minute.

Mesmeric Ability

You use a mixture of Charismatic charm and force of will to manipulate the minds and senses of others. You use your Charisma modifier when setting the saving throw DC for your mesmerist spells and abilities, and when making an attack roll with a mesmerist spell. In addition, You use your Charisma whenever an ability or spell refers to your spellcasting ability.

Mesmeric save DC = 8 + your proficiency bonus + your Charisma modifier

Mesmeric attack modifier = your proficiency bonus + your Charisma modifier

Mesmeric Foci

Mesmerist often use items such as swinging pocket watches or glittering gemstone pendants to hold the attention of their target. If a spell or ability would require you to expend material components, you must instead use a mesmeric focus. The form of this focus is up to you, and can be as simple as a swaying pendant, or as complex as a clockwork device, but it must be a physical object, and requires a hand free to use.

Using a mundane focus provides no bonus to the effects of your mesmeric abilities. But enchanted items such as magic rings, or enchanted crystals can add their enchantment bonus to your Mesmeric Save DC

Mesmeric Casting

Also at third level 3rd level, you have mastered a technique for Hypnotically implanting powerful suggestions into the minds of others, Allowing you to afflict them with spell-like effects

The Spells and Cantrips you can cast in this way are listed on the mesmeric spell list at the end of this subclass, and can only affect creatures who are mesmerized when they are cast. Mesmerist spells and cantrips that require material components cannot be cast without a mesmeric focus.

Implantation. The spell or cantrip being implanted has no immediate effect when cast using this feature. Instead, you define a specific trigger condition, such as a spoken phrase or the snap of the fingers. The next time this condition is met, the spell is cast, and the suggestion ends. If the spell requires concentration, it lasts until the end of its full duration. A creature automatically fails it's first saving throw against spells you cast in this way.

The maximum number suggestions you can implant in the mind of a single creature each day is equal to your proficiency bonus, and the maximum number of suggestions a creature's mind can retain at one time is equal to it's intelligence modifier plus your proficiency bonus. If you attempt to implant more than this maximum number of suggestions, the oldest suggestion immediately ends, having no effect.

Cantrips. You know a number of cantrips as shown on the hypnotic spellcasting table. Each time you complete a long rest, you may choose one of the mesmeric cantrips you know, and replace it with another cantrip form the mesmeric spell list.

Spells Slots. The spells you cast using this feature do not consume spell slots, but instead require additional time to cast as shown on the table below. To cast a spell at a higher level, you spend additional time as if the spell were the level you are casting it at.

Spell Level	Time
1	1 minute
2	2 minutes
3	5 minutes
4	8 minutes
5	10 minutes

Affected Creatures. If a spell or cantrip has a casting time longer than 1 action, a creature must remain mesmerized for the entire casting time in order to experience the spell's effect, regardless of the spells' normal target or targets. For example if you cast Minor Illusion, only creatures who were mesmerized while you cast the spell will see the illusion; if you cast Zone of Truth, only targets within the zone who were mesmerized for it's full casting time will be affected.

Spells of 1st Level and Higher. The Spell Level column of the Mesmeric Casting table shows the maximum level of spells you can cast. You prepare the list of mesmerist spells that are available for you to cast, choosing from the mesmerist spell list. When you do so, choose a number of mesmerist spells as shown on the hypnotic spellcasting table. The spells must be of a level for which you have spell slots.

You can also change your list of prepared spells when you finish a long rest. Preparing a new list of mesmerist spells requires time spent in planning and contemplation: at least 1 minute per spell level for each spell on your list.

Dispelling Mesmeric Spells. Because the effects you create are not truly magical, they are unaffected by zones of antimagic, or spells such as Dispell Magic or Remove Curse. Instead, If a creature takes damage from a single source equal to or greater than your Mesmeric Save DC, it may attempt a wisdom saving throw against the effects of your hypnosis, ending the spell on a success.

Growing Hysteria

Starting at 9th level, the extent of your mesmeric powers have grown, allowing you to extend your illusions even to ever increasing crowds. The number of creatures you can affect at one time using your Mesmerism feature is equal to twice your proficiency bonus.

In addition When you use your Mesmeric Casting feature to cast a spell which would target an area, or create illusions visible to multiple creatures, additional creatures who enter the area or would witness the illusionary effects are affected as normal, even if they were not mesmerized when you cast the spell.

Hypnotic Control

By 13th level, you are prepared to take near complete control of specific individuals. If you spend at least 1 hour mesmerising a single creature, the target becomes infatuated by you for the next 24 hours. While a creature is affected in this way, it has disadvantage on saving throws against your Mesmerism feature and Mesmerist.

Deep Suggestion

Upon reaching 17th level, you have learned to implant your suggestions so deeply that they remain long after they should have faded. You add twice your proficiency bonus when determining the number of suggestions a creature's mind can retain at one time.

In addition, when a suggestion you have implanted into a creature's mind is triggered, the creature must make a wisdom saving throw. On a failure, the suggestion remains in place, and may be triggered again.

Sorcerous Origin:

Succubus Bloodline

Your innate magic comes from one such thread - the awakened blood of a succubus (or incubus) provides you with a supernatural charm and beauty, and urges you to feed on the desires of others.

Aura of Sin

Beginning 1st level, the carnal magic suffusing your body as a visible effect on those around you. Creatures who begin their turn within 5 ft of you must succeed on a wisdom saving throw against your spell save DC, or become hyperaroused and charmed until the start of their next turn. A creature who succeeds on this saving throw is immune to the effects if this ability for the next 24 hours

Succubus Insight

By also at 1st level, you have learned to channel your enchanting powers into revealing the secrets of those around you. As an action on your turn, you may to touch a creature and learn one of the following pieces of information about the target

- One Fetish, Kink, or Sexual fantasy the target has.
- One damage or stimulation type the target is vulnerable to.
- The name and appearance of the creature the target is most attracted to.
- The name and appearance of the last creature the target had sex with.

At the DM's Discretion, this may allow you to learn things about the target which they do not know themselves. Beginning at 2nd level, when you use this feature, you may spend sorcery points to learn one additional piece of information for each sorcery point spent.

Visions of Desire

Beginning at 6th level, you learn the Alter Self spell if you do not know it already, and may cast it without expending a spell slot a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

While transformed in this way, you have advantage on checks made to seduce creatures who have been targeted by your Succubus Insight feature

Infatuating Desire

As your power increases, your abyssal charms become exponentially more potent. Starting at 14th level, any creature charmed by you is also infatuated.

Delicious Climax

Upon reaching 18th level, the true nature of your demonic heritage becomes clear. When a creature within 5 ft of you fails a climax saving throw, you may use your reaction feed on the triggering target. If you do so, the creature must make constitution saving throw against your spell save DC. On a failure, the target gains one level of overstimulation, and you regain 1d4 sorcery points.

Sorcerous Metamagics

Lewd adventurers have learned how to use a variety of new, and often obscene tactics in their adventures, and sorcerers are no exception:

Spiked Spell

When you cast a spell that forces a creature to make a saving throw to resist its effects, you may spend 2 sorcery points to "spike" your spell as if you were spiking a drink. A creature that fails their saving throw against this spell becomes intoxicated for the duration of the spell or until the end of it's next turn, whichever is longest.

Erotic Spell

Your inborm magic is seductive and arousing, and so are your spells. When you cast a spell as part of a sexual advance, you may expend 3 sorcery points to ignore the target's inhibition.

Wild and Lustful Magic

Result	Effect
1	Roll on this table at the start of each of your turns for the next minute, ignoring this result on subsequent rolls
2	Your arousal increases to it's maximum value and you immediately begin making climax saving throws.
3	Your clothes and armor disappear for until you complete a long rest. You are unaware of this fact, and utterly deny any suggestions to the contrary, or attempts to make you wear clothes.
4	Your body begins to compulsively masturbate. For the next minute, you must succeed on a DC 15 strength check at the start of each of your turns, or spend the turn pleasuring yourself to the best of your ability.
5	You cast Enlarge/Reduce on your genitals or other sexual traits. Roll 1d6: on a roll of 1-3, you enlarge these parts of your body; on a roll of 4-6 you reduce these parts of your body.
6	For the next hour whenever you open your mouth to speak, you experience the sensation and of a phantom cock in your mouth.
7	The last creature you had sexual intercourse with immediately climaxes, and is aware of the source of their climax.
8	You are petrified for 1d6 hours. While petrified in this way, your erogenous zones remain soft and fleshy, and you experience stimulation as normal.
9	You immediately grow a 12 inch cock if you do not already have one. If you already have a cock, ignore this result and roll again. This effect lasts until you climax.
10	For the next 1d6 hours, you can see the genitals and sexual characteristics of other creatures through their clothes.
11	For the next hour, anytime you climax, all other creatures within 30 ft must also make a climax saving throw, regardless of their current arousal, immediately climaxing on a failure.
12	You gain a powerful fetish for a random body part. For the next 24 hours, sexual acts or advances using that body part are made against you with advantage.
13	You lose any and all sexual characteristics, including genitals, until you complete a long rest. While transformed in this way, you may gain arousal, but automatically succeed on climax saving throws
14	You pubic hair grows to a length of 12 inches, and is silky soft. It cannot be cut until you complete a long rest, after which it falls out and returns to it's natural state.
15	Your erogenous zones become fully and almost painfully erect for the next 4 hours.
16	You are infatuated by the next creature you see for 1 hour, or until you climax.
17	A tiny fey appears on your shoulder and proceeds to kink-shame you for the next 24 hours.
18	A tiny imp appears on your shoulder and verbally encourages your most perverted sexual appetites for the next 24 hours.
19	Your breasts increase in size by one size category and begin lactating at high volume and pressure for the next 1d4 hours.
20	For next 1d4 hours, an etherial squirrel proceeds to whisper your darkest sexual fantasies into the ear of any creature within 20 ft of you. If the squirrel is killed, 2 more take it's place.
21	For the next 24 hours, you find yourself aroused by the silliest of things. Each time you hear a joke, pun, or other comedic retort, you gain 1d4 psychic arousal.
22	An illusionary of you appears within 5 ft of your current position, and lasts for 1d8 hours. The duplicate shares your appearance, but none of your ingame statistics, and is only interested in helping you get laid.

Warlock Patrons

The Dollmind

It is not know exactly what The Dollmind truly is - whether it is some great intelligence overseeing the Dollhouse; the simple expression of clockwork synchronicity between dolls en mass; or perhaps even an expression of The Mistress, echoed through the Orichalcum components that make the Pleasure Dolls so unique. Whatever the truth, the inexplicable pull of The Dollmind holds a power far beyond it's component dolls.

Those who bind themselves to The Dollmind do so for a number of reasons - but they are rarely the reasons that inspire other such pacts. The Dollhouse has no need of those who seek power, and no place for those unwilling to serve. Instead, The dolls form rare pacts with those who seek purpose above all else. Such contracts, forged with the mysterious nature of The Dollmind itself, entwine a person forever within the intricate mechanisms of The Dollhouse, making them as much a part of the collective as any doll - albeit with an autonomy not otherwise found within it's perfectly synchronous parts.

Even those warlocks who are not Dolls know their purpose. As a part of the collective, their role is to serve, and their obedience is to be absolute. This is not expressed as much in words as it is felt within the core of their being. They are no longer only themselves - they are a part of the greater whole, and their actions are dictated by a simple yet inexplicable sense of purpose. They also know the risks of denying this purpose - components that fulfil not purpose will be replaced.

Expanded Spell List

The Dollhouse lets you choose from an expanded list of spells when you learn a warlock spell. The following spells are added to the warlock spell list for you

The Dollmind Epanded Spell List

Spell Level	Spells
1st	Cure Wounds, Sanctuary
2nd	Aid, Tantalizing Treat
3rd	Create food and Water, Tiny Servant
4th	Fabricate, Private Sanctum
5th	Animate Object, Greater Restoration

Mechanical Precision

Also at first level, your patron grants you an intrinsic understanding of complex mechanisms. You gain proficiency in tinkers tools if you are not already proficient, Additionally, you know the Mending cantrip and may cast it as a warlock cantrip.

Pleasures of Service

Starting at 6th level You have begun to understand the true pleasure that comes from serving others. When an ally within 5ft of you would fail an attack roll, skill check, or saving throw, you may use your reaction to grant your ally advantage on the triggering roll.

Once you use this feature, you can't use it again until you finish a short or long rest.

Perfect Purpose

The sense of purpose granted by your patron gives you clarity even when your mind would be otherwise muddled. Beginning at 10th level, you have advantage on saving throws against spells and effects that would cloud your mind, such as confusion, charm person, or fear.

When you fail a saving throw against one of these effects, you are immediately aware that you are being influenced, regardless of the source or nature of the effect

Synchronicity

As you reach 14th level, the uncanny perfection of a doll suffuses your movements and actions as you fall perfectly in sync with the world around you. Everyday inconveniences cease to exist for you. There is always a room at the inn, you always arrive exactly in the moment you are most needed, and even when lost, you somehow inevitably wind up exactly where you are meant to be.

You ignore disadvantage caused by mundane sources, such as difficult terrain or nonmagical darkness. This does not affect disadvantage caused by the abilities or class features of other creatures.

As a bonus action on your turn, you can focus the sense of synchronicity to grant yourself advantage one attack roll, skill check, or saving throw. Once you use this feature, you must complete a short rest before you may use it again.

The Eternal Cure

Not all eldritch forces seek dark and twisted aims. The Eternal Cure is a strange and mysterious being, who's true nature can never be known - but its purpose is clear. The Cure heals the wounded treats the ailing, and eases the suffering of all those it touches, feeding on their pain by exchanging it for pleasure.

Aspects of The Eternal Cure can be found among the battlefields of horrific wars, and the streets of the most plague wracked kingdoms. It sustains itself by consuming the sickness of the world, and it is either incapable or unwilling to cause pain itself. Warlocks of The Eternal Cure are similarly bound, sworn to inflict pain only where it would prevent greater harm.

Despite this seeming altruism, the Eternal Cure is itself no more a force of good than of evil. It takes no sides, and turns away no patient, devouring the sickness of both good and evil alike, growing stronger with each wound it heals. So long as the world is plagued by pain and disease, The Cure will continue to exist - and continue to grow stronger.

Expanded Spell List

The Eternal Cure lets you choose from an expanded list of spells when you learn a warlock spell. The following spells are added to the warlock spell list for you

Medical Secrets

At 1st level, your patron grants you understanding of unknowable medical secrets, by which you may heal the wounded. You gain proficiency in the medicine skill if you are not already proficient, and may use your charisma bonus in place of your wisdom bonus when making medicine checks.

The Eternal Cure Expanded Spell List

Spell Level	Spells
1st	Cure Wounds, Numbing Sensation
2nd	Aid, Lesser Restoration
3rd	Beacon of Hope, Remove Curse
4th	Death Ward, Miraculous Milk
5th	Angel's Embrace, Greater Restoration

Eldritch Nursing

Also at 1st level, as an action on your turn, you may expend one use of a healer's kit to attempt to restore hit points to a creature within 5ft. Make a medicine check with a DC equal to the target's constitution score. On a success, the creature expends a number of hit dice up to your proficiency bonus, regaining hit points as if it had completed a short rest.

Pain Eater

Starting at 6th level, when a creature within 10 ft, other than yourself, would take damage from any source, you may use your reaction to consume the painful wounds. The triggering target takes no damage, and you instead gain psychic stimulation equal to the same amount. This stimulation cannot be reduced by any means. You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long or short rest before you may use it again.

Shared Mercy

Beginning at 10th level, you are capable of extending the blessings of your patron to others as well as yourself. When you use your Pain Eater feature to negate damage to a creature, you may bestow the pleasure granted by your patron onto another creature. Choose a single creature within 30 ft. This creature must make a charisma saving throw against your spell save DC. On a failure, the target gains the stimulation that would have been applied to you. On a failure you gain the stimulation as normal

Exchange of Suffering

As you reach 14th level, you are able to exchange the suffering of those around you for pleasures granted by your patron. When you use your Eldritch Nursing feature to restore hit points to a creature, your may also choose to remove one condition or curse from the target, up to 5th level. If you do so, the target becomes hyperaroused for the remaining duration of the removed condition, or for one minute - whichever is shorter. While affected in this way, the target is infatuated by you. Both effects end immediately if you or one of your allies harms the creature in any way.

The Mistress

Deep within the heart of the lost realm of Paradisium, there sleeps a being manifest of the deepest desires of mortal and immortal kind a like. Sealed within her lustful chambers, The Mistress is a force too ancient and powerful to properly describe with words - instead, she is a being of sensation, of pleasure, and of yearning

The Mistress' rules over the forgotten birthplace of the gods, imprisoned there on the day she born. Her presence alone has turned the ancient Eden into an infinite dungeon of arousal and eroticism, and within it's cavernous chambers, her thirst for pleasure is echoed in every living being. Few adventurers who enter Paradisium ever return from it's depths, but those who do are changed forever; twisted into lewd reflections of their former selves, and released back into the world to spread The Mistress' lustful will.

Your Patron is a being of primal lust and pleasure - of arousal and desire so deep that mere sanity bends in her wake. Unlike other patrons, The Mistress bares no secret motivations. She exists to spread desire through the world, weakening the bars of her prison with every lewd act committed. When the day comes, the entire world shall climax in her presence, and pain will be replaced with endless pleasure.

Expanded Spell List

The Master lets you choose from an expanded list of spells when you learn a warlock spell. The following spells are added to the warlock spell list for you

The Master' Epanded Spell List

Spell Level	Spells
1st	Affirm Gender, Detect Sexuality
2nd	Heatwave, Detect Thoughts*
3rd	*Hypnotic Pattern, Incite Lust
4th	*Evards Black Tentacles, Sexual Theivery
5th	Geas, Dominate Person

Protections of the Lustful

At first level when you choose this pact, The Mistress takes steps to ensure you can always fulfill your pact. You are immune to sexually transmitted disease, and cannot become pregnant unless you choose to do so, even through non-traditional pregnancy.

Gifts of Desire

Also at first level, the will of The Mistress infuses you with an otherworldly and sensual grace. You gain proficiency in all sexual implements, and may add twice your proficiency bonus to persuasion (charisma) checks against non-hostile creatures.

Lewd Offering

Starting at 6th level The Mistress has taught you how to harness the arcane power of unbridled passion. When you bring a creature other than yourself to climax, you may use a reaction to offer their pleasure to your patron, gaining an additional warlock spell slot, which lasts until expended. You may have only one additional spell slot at a time. Once you use this feature, you can't use it again until you finish a short or long rest.

Inured to Arousal

Your pact with The Master has exposed you to Arousal far beyond anything this world has to offer. Beginning at 10th level, you are immune to the charmed and infatuated conditions, and have resistance to stimulation from non-magical sources.

Additionally, you suffer the effects of overstimulation as if it were one level less.

Overwhelming Climax

As you reach 14th level, the lewd gifts of your mistress are nothing less than mind-shattering to those unprepared. Each time a creature fails a Climax saving throw as the result of one of your warlock spells or class features, it gains a level of overstimulation, regardless of the number of climaxes it has experienced.

Pact Boons

While The Master is not the only patron who might seal pacts in the following way, the options below represent some of the most common pacts among her chosen

Pact of the Collar

The Pact of the Collar is bestowed upon supplicants who promise themselves not for power or for personal gain, but for the fulfilment of serving. Such servants are gifted with a Pact Collar, which symbolizes their unwavering love and devotion to their patron.

Your pact collar cannot be removed or destroyed by any means although you may, transform one Magic Collar into your pact collar by spending 8 hours in ritual supplication to your patron. You can't affect an artifact or a sentient item in this way.

The collar ceases being your pact collar if you die, if you perform the 8-hour ritual on a different collar, or if you use an 8-hour ritual to break your bond to it. The collar is destroyed when it ceases being your pact collar.

While wearing your Eldritch Collar, you may use an action on your turn to peer into the heart of any creature you are touching. The target must make a charisma saving throw. On a failed save, you learn the creature's alignment, current emotional state, and any kinks, fetishes, or repressed desires. The target has. You learn only that these desires exist in the target, not if they have been acted upon. On a successful save, the target is immune to the effects of this feature for the next 24 hours

You have advantage on Persuasion (charisma) and Insight (wisdom) checks made against any target who has failed their saving throw against this feature within the past 24 hours.

Pact of the Mirror

Mortals have chosen to sell themselves away for beauty and influence since before the first stars twinkled in the sky. The Pact of the Mirror bestows upon the pact maker a mirror of unseemly beauty, which may be used as a spellcasting focus for your warlock spells

If your pact mirror is lost or destroyed, you may have it restored by spending 8 hours and 100 gp in supplication to your patron.

While your Pact Mirror is on your person, you remain in or return to the prime of your life, and are considered supernaturally beautiful or attractive. You cannot be aged by any means, non-magical or otherwise, and are immune to any spell or effect that would alter your form.

Your unnatural beauty gives you advantage on Persuasion (charisma) checks made against humanoids and creatures with an intelligence of 8 or higher

Pact of the Name

The pact of Names is made by those who wish to disappear, leaving no trace of their former self. Those who make this pact, you surrender their very name and identity to their patron magically erasing their memory from all who knew them.

From this point forward, you assume a new identity and new form. You decide what you look like, including your height, weight, facial features, sound of your voice, hair length, coloration, and distinguishing characteristics, if any. You cannot alter your race, although you may alter your gender, sex and sexual characteristics within the natural limits for your race.

You may change your name and identity in this way again by spending 8 hours and at least 100gp worth of gold or other valuable commodity in supplication to your patron. Changing your identity in this way does not erase your former identity from memory, however you cannot return to the same identity for a year an a day.

Pact of the Needle

A pact of the needle is formed by warlocks who make their deals to save the life of another. Signers of this pact gain a pact needle in the form of an ornate syringe, decorated in a fashion befitting their patron. This needle deals 1d6 piercing damage, and has the finesse property. The syringe may be filled with any potion or liquid poison as an action on your turn, allowing you to deliver the potion or poison as a special melee attack.

Your pact needle may also be used as a spellcasting focus for your warlock spells, and if it is lost or destroyed, you may have it restored by spending 8 hours and 100 gp in supplication to your patron.

Additionally, when you deal damage to a living creature using your pact needle, you may use your reaction to draw a portion of their life essence into the needle, reducing the target's remaining hit dice by one, and storing it within your syringe.

As a bonus action on any subsequent turn, you may use the needle to inject this essence into another creature within 5ft of you, expending the stored hit dice and restoring hit points to the target as if part of a short rest. Your syringe can store a number of hit dice at one time equal to your proficiency bonus.

Pact of the Smuggler

Some pacts are sworn not for great power or out of painful desperation, but in simple moments of pragmatic need. The pact of the smuggler is common among thieves and criminals, or anyone for whom the threat of being discovered is worth the arcane price.

Upon signing this pact, your body itself becomes like a bag of holding, with an interior space considerably larger that would seem possible. Any object which can be fit through the openings of your natural implements may be stored in this space, up to a number of pounds equal to 100 times your charisma modifier.

Items stored within this space cannot be detected or retrieved by any creature other than yourself. Each time you attempt to store or retrieve an item from this space, You must succeed on a constitution saving throw against your own spell save DC, or gain stimulation equal to your proficiency bonus.

Pact of the Whip

The pact of the whip is granted to those warlocks who seek dominion and domination of other creatures. With it is given a pact implement, which may take the form of a whip, a crop, or any other tool of domination, as decided by your patron.

Your pact implement may also be used as a spellcasting focus for your warlock spells, and if it is lost or destroyed, you may have it restored by spending 8 hours and 100 gp in supplication to your patron. While your pact implement is in your possession, You have advantage on intimidation (charisma) checks made against creatures of size category medium or smaller.

Additionally, you have advantage on skill checks and sexual advances made against creatures who are frightened of you, and Creatures charmed by you have advantage on sexual advances made to please you

Warlock Invocations

The following warlock invocations expand on the power that can be granted by your patron, and the pact boons listed above.

Arcane Injection

Prerequisite: Pact of the Needle feature

When you cast a spell using your pact needle as a spellcasting focus, you may choose to cast it with a range of touch, regardless of the spell's normal range. If you do so, the target has disadvantage on it's first saving throw against the spell's effects.

Brand of Perversion

Prerequisite: 17th level, Access to the Branding Lust spell.

When casting the Branding Desire spell, The spell is cast as if using a spell slot one level higher.

Denial of Release

Prerequisite: Pact of the Whip feature, 15th level

When you impose the denied condition on a creature, it gains one level of overstimulation for each long rest it completes while still denied.

Denied Supplication

Prerequisite: Pact of the Collar feature, 11th level

Upon completing long rest you may choose to gain the Denied condition until you complete another long rest. If you do so, you gain an additional use of your Mystic Arcanum class feature

Eldritch Fingers

Prerequisite: Pact of the Smuggler feature

Once per round as a free action, you may stow or retrieve a single item from within your body. If this item is a nonmagical weapon or sexual implement, it gains an enchantment bonus equal to half your proficiency bonus until the end of your next turn.

Empowering Domination

Prerequisite: Pact of the Whip feature

When you instruct, command, or suggest a course of action to a creature using a warlock spell, that creature has advantage on attack rolls and ability check made to perform that action.

Hunger of the Void

Prerequisite: Pact of the Smuggler feature

When you use an action on your turn to stow a nonmagical item or object within your body, you may instead choose for the object to be destroyed. If you do so, you may immediately expend a single hit dice, regaining hit points as if during a short rest.

Language of Love

You may communicate telepathically with creatures you are in physical contact with. You do not need to share a language with the creature for it to understand you, but the creature must be able to understand at least one language

Lustful Sacrifice

When you would make a Climax saving throw, you may instead choose to climax immediately, in exchange for regaining a warlock spell slot. You must complete a short or long rest before you may use this feature again.

Lustful Assistance

Prerequisite: Pact of the Collar feature

You may take the help action as a bonus action on your turn, targeting an ally within 15 ft. If you do so, the target's inhibition is reduced to 0 until the beginning of it's next turn

Persuasive Binding

Prerequisite: Pact of the Whip feature

You have advantage on persuasion (charisma) checks against restrained creatures.

Seductive Beauty

Prerequisite: Pact of the Mirror feature. 9th level

You may cast Enthrall without expending a spell slot. Creatures enthralled by you perceive you as the most beautiful and arousing creature they have ever encountered.

Servant's Aid

Prerequisite: Pact of the Collar feature

When an ally within 30 ft of you casts a spell, you may use your reaction to expend a spell slot and add the your warlock spell slot level to the level of the spell being cast.

Slight of Magehand

Prerequisite: Pact of the Smuggler feature, Access to the Magehand cantrip

When you use your magehand to stow or retrieve an item, You may stow or retrieve the item from within your body, regardless of the location of your magehand.

Spell Swallower

Prerequisite: Pact of the Smuggler feature, 11th level

When you succeed on a saving throw against a spell which targets only a single creature, you may choose to store this spell inside your body. The stored spell cannot be of a level higher than your warlock spell slot level. As an action on your turn, you may expend the stored spell, casting it at the same level without expending a spell slots or component. Once you use this feature, you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

Succubi's Charm

Prerequisite: 15th level

Creatures Charmed by you must make a charisma saving throw at the start of each of their turns or become Infatuated by you until the start of their next turn.

Surrender to Desire

Prerequisite: Pact of the Collar feature

As a free action on your turn, you can choose to submit to the desires of those around you. Until the start of your next turn, You gain the nymphomanic condition.

In return, your sexual advances ignore resistances until the start of your next turn.

Tainted Transfusion

Prerequisite: Pact of the needle feature, access to the Greater Restoration or Lesser Restoration spell.

When you use you pact needle to cast the Greater Restoration or Lesser Restoration spell, you may choose to store the removed effect or condition within your pact needle. You may have only one effect or condition stored within your pact needle at a time. As an action on your turn, you may make a melee spell attack against a creature within 5 ft, applying the stored effect or condition to the target.

Twisted Reflection

Prerequisite: Pact of the Mirror feature, 15th level

When you succeed on a saving throw against a spell which applies a condition, you may use a reaction to store the condition within your pact mirror. When you cast a warlock spell with a single target, you may choose to add this condition to the effect of your spell. You must choose to do so before the spell is cast, and doing so removes the condition from your mirror. You may have only 1 condition stored in your mirror at a time

Un-scarred Visage

Prerequisite: Pact of the Mirror feature

You may cast Cure Wounds on yourself without expending a spell slot. You may use this feature a number of time between long rests equal to your proficiency bonus.

Unending Brand

Prerequisite: 15th level, Access to the Branding Lust spell.

When casting the Branding Desire spell, maintaining the spell no longer requires counteraction. At 18th level, the spell's maximum duration increases to a year and a day.

Voracious Smuggler

Prerequisite: Pact of the Smuggler feature, Access to the Swallow Spell

When you cast the Swallow spell, you may engulf twice the normal number of creatures, and the spell's duration becomes 1 hour.

Wizard School:

School of Bimbomancy

"Bimbomancy," or more accurately named Vapidomancy, is a unique school of wizardry first developed during the Illithid wars as a way to more effectively counter the intellect draining powers of the mind-flayer armies. The founder of the school, Vitalia Bimbeaux, realized that despite their potential as easy prey, many less intelligent races and creatures were almost entirely ignored by the Illithid invaders. After years of studying these patterns, she was inspired by the trance-like states used by Githzerai monks, and set about adapting the same principals to form a school of wizardry which could turn the Illithid's greatest strength against them.

Spelltrance

Beginning at 2nd level, when you begin your training in this subclass, you learn to set aside your analytical mind and enter a thoughtless trance, from which you can more effectively channel the magic around you. As a bonus action on your turn, you may set aside all thought to enter a meditative Spelltrance, which grants you the following effects.

- Your intelligence and wisdom scores are reduced to an amount equal to your proficiency bonus.
- Your spell attack modifier and spell save DC remain unchanged.
- You can speak only in simple words and phrases
- Any psychic damage dealt to you is instead dealt as psychic stimulation.
- You have advantage on saving throws against any effect that would sense your emotions or read your thoughts.
- When targeted by an effect that would force you to make a wisdom or intelligence check or saving throw, you roll a number of d6 up to, but no more than, your remaining recovery dice, the result to your check.
- If a spell or effect would reduce your intelligence or wisdom scores to 0 or below, the score is instead reduced to 1, and you gain the intoxicated condition until the end of your next turn.

Your Trance lasts for 1 minute. It ends early if you are knocked unconscious, or if you climax. You can also end your trance on your turn as a bonus action.

You may enter this trance a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must finish a long rest before you can do so again.

Willing Surrender

By 6th level, You have mastered the art of surrendering your mind, allowing you to twist that surrender into something you are intimately familiar with.
When a creature targets you with a spell or effect which would alter or manipulate your mind in some way, you may choose to automatically fail your saving throw against it. If you do so, it has no effect. Instead, choose a spell you know of a level equal to or greater than that of the triggering spell or effect. The chosen spell must target a single creature who is not an ally.

You are subject to this spell's effects as if you had cast it on yourself, regardless of the spell's normal target. The spell lasts for it's full duration, and you automatically fail all saving throws against this spell.

Uninhibited Release

Upon reaching 10th level, you have learned to harness orgasm to free yourself of all inhibitions and afflictions.

Once per round, when you would make a climax saving throw, you may instead choose to give yourself fully into orgasm, climaxing immediately and ending all other effects or conditions affecting you. If you do so, you gain the nymphomanic condition in place of incapacitated after climaxing.

Lustful Backlash

Finally, at 14th level, you are able to harness the true potential of your erotic spell trance. You use your willing surrender feature to replace the effect of a spell or effect with a spell of your choice, you may use your reaction to force the triggering creature to make a charisma saving throw. On a failure, the target takes 6d6 psychic stimulation, and is subject to the triggering spell or effect.

Wizard School:

School of Obscenities

The first rights of magic were not taught by scholarly wizards in high towers, or powerful archmages in university lectures. Long before the days of wizarding schools, magic was the domain of the occult and outcast, and spells were things of passion as much as study.

Those who study the School of Obscenities remember the old ways, and the powerful rites and rituals now forbidden by formal institutions. Woven with sex, desire, and arousal, the obscene magic they practice is empowered by the lustful energies of life itself.

Orgasmic Empowerment

Beginning at 2nd level when you choose this school, you have learned to harness your orgasms to empower the magic of your spells. You have advantage on concentrating checks triggered by stimulation, climax, or other lewd conditions.

Additionally, once per round when you climax, you may immediately use a free action to cast one wizard spell which would normally require an action. When you do so, the spell is cast as if it were 1 level higher than the spell slot used to cast it.

Lustful Ingredients

By 6th level, you know how to make use of components forbidden by more formal schools of magic. When casting a spell that targets a single creature, you may expend a vial of that creature's cum or other sexual fluids to extend the range of the spell to 1 mile, ignoring line of sight.

The target hears the verbal components of your spell as a faint whisper in their ear, and feels any direct somatic components as a gentle phantom touch. A successful arcana check against your spell save DC allows the to recognize they have been targeted by a spell, even if they cannot determine the source.

Profane Ritual

Starting at 10th level, you have learned obscene rites, which allow you to transform almost any spell into a ritual. When casting a spell of 5th level or lower, you may instead choose to cast the spell as a profane ritual, even if it does not have the ritual tag.

Profane Rituals function in exactly the same way as other rituals, but require continuous sexual activity with at least one partner for the full duration of the ritual. The number of partners requires is equal to the spell's level, minus one. For the ritual to succeed, each creature involved must climax at least once.

Sexual Bonding

Upon reaching 14th level, the you have learned to use the magic of sex to bind creatures together in powerful arcane bonds. When using your Profane Ritual feature to cast a spell which targets at least one ally, you may instead target all creatures participating in the profane ritual.

Sexual Equipment

Since the beginning of time, both mortals and immortals have sought ways to expand the pleasures of sex. This chapter details some of the many forms of equipment that you might encounter as part of a sexually charged adventure.

Natural Implements

Implements that are a part of a creature's anatomy, such as A cock, Pussy, or Tentacle, are considered Natural Implements. Most creatures of reproductive maturity are considered proficient with their natural implements. Natural Implements are always treated as having the finesse property, and do not require a free hand to use.

Artificial Implements

Artificial Implements are tools designed to apply stimulation to a target. They are more diverse than natural implements, with a wider variety of properties. Most Artificial implements have the finesse property, but not all of them.

Unarmed Advances and Improvised Implements

Humanoids excel at finding erotic uses for anything and everything. Weather it is a Thighjob from an especially thicc goblin, A hand job from a drow in a back alley, or a Country Girl making due with the handle of her broom, Improvised implements are any object or body part not normally used for sexual stimulation. The stimulation applied by these implements is determined by your DM.

Implement Properties

Most implements are used to be provide pleasure in a specific way, or deal stimulation through specific means. The following properties help describe how a sexual implement is used, and any special characteristics it might have.

Enveloping

Implements with the Enveloping property apply stimulation by wrapping tightly around phallic erogenous zones.

Persistent

Persistent implements are designed for long-term play and can be safely "worn" inside a creature for extended periods. While inserted inside a creature, a persistent implement deals half it's stimulation (minimum of 1) each time the creature gains stimulation from another source.

Phallic

Implements with the Phallic property are penetrative, and generally used to provide simulation from the inside.

Precise

Precise implements are best used to apply careful stimulation to specific locations. When making a Martial Advance with advantage, these implements apply the stimulation listed in parenthesis, rather than their normal stimulation.

Reciprocal

Many natural implements are also erogenous zones, and thus have the Reciprocal property. When dealing stimulation using a reciprocal implement, a creature must succeed on a dc 18 constitution saving throw or gain stimulation equal to the same amount.

Reproductive

Natural implements capable of causing pregnancy have the Reproductive property. Traditional pregnancy can only result from compatible reproductive implements on both the paternal and maternal side, but nontraditional pregnancies can often result from a reproductive implement on only one side.

Sturdy

Sturdy implements are hefty or rigid enough to be used as effective weapons in combat. When used as a weapon, a sturdy implement deals damage as shown in parenthesis.

Unobtrusive:

Unobtrusive implements are small enough to be easily hidden or difficult to recognize as sexual implements. Checks made to hide unobtrusive items are made at advantage, and checks made to search for them are made at disadvantage.

Size and Penetration

Unless otherwise stated, the size category of a creature's natural implement(s) is assumed to be the same as size category of the creature itself, unless otherwise stated. Size is hardly everything in a sexual encounter, but it can certainly have an impact! When using a sexual implement of a different size category than your target, the following rules apply.

- Phallic Implements deal +1 stimulation for each size category above the target's size, and -1 stimulation for each size category below the target's size.
- Enveloping Implements deal +1 stimulation for each size category below the target's size, and -1 stimulation for each size category above the target's size.
- A creature cannot withstand penetration from an implement more than one size category larger than their own. Martial Advances made using Implements more than one size category larger than the target are treated as attack rolls instead, and deal damage equal to their stimulation dice in addition to the stimulation they would normally provide.
- Implements more than two size categories smaller than the creature they are penetrating have disadvantage on Martial Advance Rolls.

Implement Descriptions

Ass
Anal sex isn't for everyone, but it can be deeply pleasurable. Just be sure to have plenty of lube on hand.

Breasts
Breasts are a supposedly mammalian trait that nevertheless seem to frequently appear in all manner of species. Breasts are treated as an enveloping implement for the purpose of spells and effects, but not when determining stimulation or damage. Instead, breasts always apply +1 stimulation for each size category above the target's

Cock
A phallic reproductive implement generally considered the "male" reproductive implement among most races. Cocks come in all variety of shapes and sizes, depending on race or species, and have the reciprocative property.

Cock Sleeve
A soft tube of flexible material designed to slip around an erect phallus and provide sexual stimulation. Most cock sleeves are elastic enough to fit around multiple phalluses at once.

Choke Pear
An tiny, pear shaped device made up of 3 -4 metal leaves. A small brass handle can be turned to push the leaves of the pear apart, expanding the device while it is inside the target. As an action, a creature can turn the handle of the device to increase it's implement size by one, and it's stimulation dice by 1d6, up to 6d6

Each time it's size category increases while within a target, the target must succeed on a dc 15 constitution saving throw or gain bludgeoning stimulation equal to the pear's new stimulation dice.

Dildo
A semi-flexible phallus usually made to resemble the cock of a creature. Most dildos are sized for medium creatures, but small and tiny variants can be found as well.

Dildo (Oversized)
A an oversized phallus, usually modelled after the cock of especially large or endowed creatures.

Dildo (Double-Sided)
An extra long dildo with a phallus at each end. A double sided dildo can be used to make a second martial advance against the same target or an adjacent target (including yourself) as a bonus action.

Fleshlight
Generally consisting of a tube lined with some soft, flexible material, fleshlights are designed to simulate the sensation of sexually penetrating another creature.

Flogger
A short hilt ending in a collection of leather or braided rattan strips, sometimes tipped with metal studs. Used to whip or lash the body for sexual stimulation, but capable of inflicting enough pain to be used as a weapon

Mouth
Oral sex is one of most popular forms of sexual stimulation, and something almost every creature is capable of, if not proficient in.

Needle Roller
A metal rod with one or more spurred wheels at one end, used to deliver precise sensation during a sexual encounter.

Ovipositor
Not unlike a cock, ovipositors are generally larger, and designed for depositing soft, squishy eggs inside a sexual partner.

Paddle
A wooden paddle with a broad flat end. Used for spanking, and sturdy enough for basic combat.

Phallic Shaft
A hard phallus sculpted from stone or glass, and adorned with additional nodules, bumps, or ridges to increase it's stimulation. High Value Phallic shafts are sometimes even carved from precious metals or even gemstones.

Pseudopod
Amorphous appendages like the pseudopods of an ooze or slime excel at both enveloping and penetrating erogenous zones, and can shape themselves perfectly to match the body of their target.

Pleasure Beads
A string of hard beads ranging in size from that of a marble up to as large as a tightly balled fist. Pleasure beads are designed to be worn internally, and can be removed as a bonus action. If inserted for an hour or more, pleasure beads apply additional bludgeoning stimulation when removed equal to 1d6 times the number of hours since they were inserted.*

Plug
Plugs are roughly acorn shaped objects made of the same flexible materials as dildos. Plugs are generally designed for anal play, and have a flared base that allows them to remain safely inserted for extended periods of time.

Pussy
A warm wet hole designed for sex, generally considered the "female" reproductive implement. Pussies are incredibly sensitive erogenous zones, and have the reciprocal property

Riding Crop
A traditional leather riding crop used for equestrian activities and favoured perhaps even more by dominants and mistresses. As a sexual implement, Riding crops are used to elicit stimulation through pain.

Talon Claws
A set of metal talons worn on the tips of fingers like the rings. Similarly effective in both combat and sexual encounters, and easy to hide if needed.

Tail
Most tails are not exactly designed for sexual use, but prehensile tails such as those of some fiends are often quite skilled at providing stimulation

Tentacle
While not all tentacles are designed for sexual reproduction, even those that aren't excel at providing sexual stimulation Reproductive tentacles also generally have the Reciprocal property.

Whip
While not necessarily the most effective weapons, whips serve far better as sexual implements, eliciting stimulation through their sharp stinging lash.

Lewd Gear

Dildos and sex toys are not the only way to bring a bit of spice to the bedroom. The items below represent some of the erotic equipment and gear that might be available for sale at trade-posts, sex shops, or from shady back-ally dealers.

Arm Binder

A leather sleeve designed to fit over a creature's arms, binding them tightly behind the back. While wearing an arm binder, a creature cannot use it's arms. Escaping the binder requires a successful DC 20 Dexterity check. Breaking it requires a successful DC 20 Strength check.

Belly Harness

Sometimes called a "reverse saddle", belly harnesses are designed restrain a smaller creature onto the sexual implement of a larger creature, usually along the belly. A belly harness works much like a saddle, With the following additions and changes.

A creature mounted using a belly harness is restrained, and has no ability to control it's mount. While being ridden in this way, any sexual advances the mount makes against it's rider automatically succeed, and the mount may make one martial advance against it's rider as a free action on it's turn. Many belly harnesses also include cuffs or other restraints, to further limit the rider's movement.

Blindfold

Cloth blindfolds are simple to improvise, but purpose made blindfolds are usually made from leather or silk. A creature wearing a blindfold is blinded.

Bitchsuit

This unorthodox array of straps and leather bindings is designed to bind a creature's limbs in place so that it must crawl around on it's knees and elbows. While wearing a bitchsuit, a creature cannot use it's arms or legs, and it's speed is reduced to 5 ft. Escaping a bitchsuit requires a successful DC 25 Dexterity check, and breaking the bitchsuit requires a successful DC 25 Strength check.

Body Clamps:

A pair of small metal clamps secured either by a spring or a set of nobs and used to pinch or clamp erogenous zones on the body. A creature wearing body clamps has disadvantage to resist indirect and skilled Advances, and Martial Advances against the creature are made with advantage.

Many body clamps have attachment points for chains, bindings, or weights. A creature can tug sharply on the clamps or their attached bindings as a bonus action. If the clamps are attached to an erogenous zone, The wearer must succeed on a DC 16 constitution saving throw or gain 1d4 bludgeoning stimulation

Body Piercing:

Body piercings come in all shapes and sized and can be applied to just about any location on a creature's body, but Erogenous zones such as the nipples and clitoris are common

Many body piercings have attachment points for chains, bindings, or weights. A creature can tug sharply on the clamps or their attached bindings as a bonus action. If the piercing is attached to an erogenous zone, The wearer must succeed on a DC 18 constitution saving throw or gain 1d4 piercing stimulation

Chastity Device:

A lockable metal cage or belt designed to fit around a creature's genitals. These devices are used to prevent access to a creature's genitals, and is often to impose the denied condition on submissive partners. Each device comes with one key. Without the key, a creature proficient with Thieves' Tools can pick the cock cage's lock with a successful DC 18 slight of hand check. A Cock Cage has 15 Hit Points, but destroying one while worn is a delicate operation.

Cock Ring:

A metal or leather ring designed to fit tightly around a creature's balls and penis. While wearing a cock ring, a creature's cock is treated as one size category larger for the purpose of calculating stimulation.

Corset:

A boned corset designed to tighten the waist and accentuate curves. While wearing a Corset, a creature has disadvantage on constitution saving throws, and advantage on checks made to seduce other creatures.

Fetish Armor:

Fetish Armor is effectively lingerie designed to vaguely resemble a set of armor. While it provides no mechanical bonus to a creature's armor class and does not count as armor for the purposes of features like a barbarian's Unarmored Defense, it does provide advantage on checks made to seduce other creatures, and can be enchanted with any magic that would normally be applied to armor.

Gag (ball):
A simple leather strap with a clasp and round ball or cylinder of some sort threaded along it's length which fits snugly inside the wearer's mouth. A ball gag prevents it's wearer form speaking, eating or using their mouth. A creature wearing a ball gag is silenced

Gag (Cock):
A pair of leather straps attached to a small dildo that fits securely in the mouth. A cock gag prevents it's wearer from speaking, and provides sexual stimulation while worn. A creature wearing a cock gag is silenced, and has disadvantage on saving throws made to resist Sexual Advances.

Gag (Ring):
A pair of leather straps attached to a metal ring which fits securely inside the mouth. A ring gag prevents it's wearer form speaking, but holds the mouth open so that they can be orally penetrated. A creature wearing a ring gag cannot speak or perform the vocal components of a spell, but can still vocalize to moan or scream.

Harem Robes:
A fine set of robes made from shear fabrics and designed to obscure only so much of the body to be enticing, Harem robes are perfectly suited for seduction.

Leather Cuffs:
A pair of leather cuffs with metal attachment points for chains and other bindings. These leather restraints can bind a Small or Medium creature. Escaping the cuffs requires a successful DC 15 Dexterity check. Breaking them requires a successful DC 15 Strength check.

Each set of cuffs comes with one key. Without the key, a creature proficient with Thieves' Tools can pick the manacles' lock with a successful DC 15 Dexterity check. Cuffs have 10 Hit Points.

Leather Hood:
A simple hood of dark leather, crafted to reveal only the wearer's eyes. While wearing a leather hood, a creature has advantage on checks made to conceal it's identity from others.

Lingerie:
A set of expensive undergarments consisting of fine silks and shear fabrics, trimmed with lace. Wearing only lingerie and no other clothing provides advantage on checks made to seduce other creatures

Manacles:
These metal restraints can bind a Small or Medium creature. Escaping the manacles requires a successful DC 20 Dexterity check. Breaking them requires a successful DC 20 Strength check.

Each set of manacles comes with one key. Without the key, a creature proficient with Thieves' Tools can pick the manacles' lock with a successful DC 15 Dexterity check. Manacles have 15 Hit Points.

Shibari Harness:
A complex harness made of intricate knot work and ties.. A Shibari Harness contains as much as 50 ft of silk rope, and can be easily hidden under other clothes.

Slave Collar:
A simple collar made of leather or metal, a slave collar is ideal for keeping pets or property close by. Each collar comes with a matching 5 ft leash.

When a creature holding the leash moves more than 5 ft from the wearer of the collar, The holder of the leash may force the wearer to move as if they were grappled. Breaking the leash requires a successful DC 17 Strength check.

Slave Harness:
A harness consisting of supple leather straps and metal rings and fittings. Includes a variety of attachment points for chains and other bindings.

Spreader Bar:
A telescoping metal bar with a metal ring on each end for attaching to a set of cuffs or manacles. A spreader bar keeps a creatures arms or legs spread apart, limiting their movements. A spreader bar can be used to restrain a bound creature in a vulnerable position for sexual penetration.

Strap-on Harness:
A leather belt and straps with a slot to safely secure a Dildo as if it were the wearer's own cock. A dildo attached to a Strap-on harness does not require a free hand to use.

Suction Glass
A gnomish device consisting of a set of glass bulbs connected to a small mechanical pump. The bulbs place onto various erogenous zones, such as the nipple or cock, used to encourage blood flow in erogenous zones and increase sensitivity. Using a suction glass on a creature takes 1 minute, and reduces their inhibition by 2 for the next hour.

Common Consumables

Some Items carried by lewd adventurers are good for only one or two uses. The following items are consumable items you are likely to come across as part of your journey

Low Temp Candles:

Candles made of soft paraffin wax, which melts at a relatively low temperature. They come in a variety of shapes and colours, and can be safely used for wax play without the risk of severe burns or damage. Low Temp Candles in a 5-foot radius and dim light for an additional 5 feet. Each candle can remain lit for up to an hour. They are sold in bundles of 6.

As an action, you may hold a lit candle over a creature to drip hot wax onto their exposed skin. The target must succeed on a constitution saving throw with a DC equal to 12 + your dexterity modifier, or gain 1d4 fire stimulation

Personal Lubricant

A bottle of lubricating oils used to make penetration easier. As an action, a creature may apply a coat of personal lubricant to any sexual implement. For the next minute, stimulation rolls made with that implement may be re-rolled on a roll of 1, and may be safely used with implements one size category smaller or larger, ignoring the negative effects of oversized penetration. A bottle contains enough personal lubricant for 3 applications.

Massage Oil

A bottle of fragrant oil used to help soothe sore muscles. You may apply a coat of massage oil to a willing creature as part of a short rest. The target may re-roll any 1s on hit dice spent to regain hit points as part of this rest. A bottle contains enough massage oil for 3 applications.

Sensitizing Oil

A bottle of specialized massage oil used to increase sensitivity. You may apply a coat of sensitizing oil to a willing or restrained creature during a long or short rest. For the next hour, Martial advances made against the target are made with advantage. A bottle contains enough sensitizing oil for 3 applications.

Desensitizing Oil

A bottle of specialized massage oil used to increase sensitivity. You may apply a coat of sensitizing oil to a willing or restrained creature during a long or short rest. For the next hour, the target gains 1d6 numbing at the start of each of it's turn's. A bottle contains enough desensitizing oil for 3 applications.

Condom

A translucent sleeve of material used to prevent pregnancy. As an action before penetration, a creature may apply a condom to the cock of a willing or restrained creature. For the next 10 minutes, The DC for any impregnation check made using the cock becomes 25. After 10 minutes of use, the condom ceases to be effective for this purpose.

Condoms also make for useful survival gear. A condom can hold up to 2 litters of water or other liquid without bursting.

An intimidatingly well-crafted collar fitted with a series of syringes. Each syringe can be filled with different a potion, poison, or aphrodisiac.

Once attuned to this collar, you can place it on any creature of your choice. A new creature cannot attune to the collar until you us an action to end your attunement. As a bonus action once per round, an attuned creature can activate one of these syringes, injecting one of these substances of it's choice into it's wearer. The wearer has disadvantage on saving throws against the effects of potions and poisons applied in this way.

Arcane Spreader Bar
Wondrous Item, Common

An ornately crafted rod of clear dwarven make, perfect for keeping a sub in tight confinement, or preventing a begging slave from closing her legs. Honestly, the possibilities are endless.

This rod is about a foot long and capped on each end with an adamantine ring for securely attaching manacles, cuffs, or really anything with suitable hardware. Speaking the command phrase "open sesame" causes the rod to expand to roughly three times its length, forcing the two endpoints apart.

Argonain Maid's Uniform
Wondrous Item (Lingerie), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A finely tailored maid's uniform, sewn from the finest silks and lace, and embroidered with all manner of subtle arcane markings. It expressly does not include panties.

While attuned to this fine lingerie, you may use the help action as a bonus action on your turn.

Curse: This lingerie is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times, and cannot willingly remove the lingerie unless commanded to by another creature.

Additionally, each time an you obey a command or complete a task assigned to you by another creature, you gain 1d10 psychic stimulation.

Armor of Binding
Fetish Armor, Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

An overly form-fitting set of leather armor, clearly designed more for displaying your assets than for protecting them.

While wearing these imposing black leathers, you may cast the Planar Binding spell at its lowest level once between long rests without expending a spell slot. Charisma is the casting ability used for this spell

Curse: While attuned to this armor, whenever a creature succeeds on it's saving throw against your planar binding spell, the spell is turned back upon you, and you instead become bound to the target for the full duration of the spell.

Armor of The Hungry Mimic
Armor (Leather or Hide), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

The iridescent hues of this armor shift and swirl with changes in light, and it's surface seems to be ever slick and cool to the touch. If you watch long enough, you swear you can see the armor breathing.

While wearing this armor, you may use an action on your turn to change your form, blending seamlessly into your environment, becoming indistinguishable from ordinary objects and furnishings so long as you remain motionless.

Curse: While magically concealed by this armor, you gain 1d8 acid stimulation each turn, as the living armor gropes and caresses your body with its slimy inner tendrils.

Asps' Kiss
Consumable (Lipstick), Rare

A deep shade of burgundy red, this silky liquid is sealed in a small crystalline bottle enwrapped by two silver serpents. The bottle contains enough lipstick for three applications, and it's contents are prised among assassins and poisoners.

Applying this lipstick properly takes roughly a minute and must be done in front of a mirror or reflective surface. Once applied, the lipstick provides it's wearer with an hour of immunity from ingested and contact type poisons, allowing a sensual assassin to safely apply the "kiss of death" upon their target by means of any poison brushed upon their lips or body.

Awakened Rope
Wondrous Item (Silk Rope), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

50 feet of Drowsilk rope, available in just about any color or hue, but predominantly black, silver or white. Drowsilk is far and away the most luxurious binding one could be tied up in, but more than that makes this rope special.

The soft silk is enchanted to behave like a living creature, following the commands of the creature it is attuned to. It is capable of moving on its own and tying complex and intricate knots under its own power. The rope has 10 hit points and can be burst with a DC 21 Strength check.

Bag of Binding
Wondrous item (Bag), rare

This beautifully couture version of a bag of holding is made of the finest imported leathers, and adds a level of fashion to any outfit - especially when it's magical properties are revealed.

This bag functions exactly as a bag of holding, except for the following curse:

Curse: This bag is cursed to bind and restrain it's wearer whenever a specific word or phrase is spoken.

As an action on it's turn a creature within 5 feet of you can speak the word or phrase sewn into the lining of this bag, causing it to turn inside out transforming into an equally couture bondage harness, complete with arm and leg binders.

You must succeed on a dc 21 dexterity saving throw or be restrained by the bag. While restrained in this way, your arms are bound tightly behind your back, preventing you from making melee or ranged attacks, or performing the somatic components of spells.

This effect lasts until the creature who triggered the transformation speaks the trigger phrase a second time, or until you break free of the restraints using a DC 24 strength check, at which point the bag returns to it's normal state.

Balm of Lactation
Consumable (Ointment), Rare

Spreading this thick, milky cream across a creature's breasts causes them to swell up to three sizes, and begin lactating heavily.

As an action, you may apply this cream to the breasts of a willing creature (including yourself) Increasing the size of their breasts by one implement size for the next 4 hours. While affected in this way, the target gains vulnerability to all stimulation dealt to their breasts, including stimulation dealt by the reciprocal property. A jar contains enough for three uses.

Balm of Tiger's Virility
Consumable (Ointment), Uncommon

This pungent cream burns ferociously when first applied, but can be used to drastically increase muscle mass.

Applying this cream to a creature requires 10 minutes, and causes their size category to increase by 1 for the next hour. While affected in this way the target also has advantage on Strength checks and Strength saving throws. The target's natural implements also grow to match its new size.

When applied to a reciprocal implement, the cream deals 1d6 acid damage, and doubles all stimulation resulting from the reciprocal property of the implement for the duration.

Bands of Breath
Wondrous item (Collar and Bracelet), Uncommon (requires attunement)

This leather collar is adorned with pattern of golden chain links, who's purpose becomes quite clear the first time it's wearer disobeys the wearer of the matching bracelet.

This collar comes with a matching bracelet, which must be attuned by a separate creature for the collar's magical effects to function.

While wearing this collar, The amount of time you can hold your breath is doubled, and you add your inhibition to the number of rounds you can survive while suffocating.

Curse: This collar is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the collar, keeping it within reach at all times.

While cursed by this collar, disobeying a direct order or command from the wearer of the matching bracelet causes you to begin suffocating. This effect lasts until you fall unconscious, or the wearer of the bracelet chooses to end it as a free action. A creature reduced to 0 hit points in this way automatically succeeds on their first death saving throw.

Basket of Exotic Oils
Consumable (Massage Oil), common

A gift basket containing a wide sampling of sexual lubricants and massage oils, each claiming to provide different sensations or even tastes.

As an action on your turn, you may apply one of these samples to yourself or your partner. When you do, roll 1d20. On a result of 1, the target takes 1d8 acid damage. On any other result, the target gains 2d6 acid stimulation. The basket contains enough small samples for 10 uses.

Bath Bomb of Reversal

Wondrous Item (soap), Uncommon

This pleasantly fizzy soap causes the water to bubble with pink and blue swirls, and allows one to experience a whole new take on their own body.

Bathing in water treated by this soap replicates the effects of the Sexual Reversal curse for 24 hours, after which, your body magically returns to normal.

Beads of Prevention

Wondrous item (Bracelet), common (Requires Attunement)

A string of expensive enchanted beads meant to be worn or kept nearby during sex. So long as at least one of these beads maintains it's lustrous glow, the attuned creature is protected from the risk of unwanted pregnancy.

When an attuned creature within 5 ft of the beads would be impregnated, the pregnancy instead fails, and one of the beads cracks and turns grey. When all beads have turned grey, the item ceases to function. A string contains 10 beads.

Bell of Bovine Abundance

Wondrous Item (Bell), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A golden cowbell inscribed with powerful sigil draconic magic, wearing it grants your milk miraculous properties, but trains you to be increasingly dull and docile.

While wearing bell around your neck, you may cast the Miraculous Milk spell once between long rests without expending a spell slot or material components.

Curse: This bell is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the bell, keeping it within reach at all times.

While cursed by this bell, you gain an addiction to casting the Miraculous Milk spell, as if it were a vice. The base addiction save DC for this Vice is 18. Each time you fail an addiction saving throw against this Vice you gain one of the following traits:

- Your breasts increase in size by one implement size, or you gain breasts if you do not have breasts already.
- You become docile and eager to please. You have disadvantage on persuasion checks.
- You become suggestible and easily controlled. You have disadvantage on saving throws against the charmed and infatuated conditions.
- While affected in this way, you gain vulnerability to all stimulation dealt to their breasts, including stimulation dealt by the reciprocal property.
- Each time you cast the Miraculous Milk spell, you gain 3d8 bludgeoning stimulation

If at any point you critically fail an addiction saving throw against this vice, you are instead affected as if by the Mindbreak spell.

Bestial Armor

Fetish Armor, Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

A scant collection of furs and animal hides designed to cover only your most sensitive bits. It provides little to no protection against the elements, but that's not exactly it's purpose.

While attuned to this armor, your passive perception becomes 24, and you gain advantage on perception checks and wisdom saving throws.

Curse: The first time you attune to this armor, you must succeed on a DC 18 constitution saving throw, or become afflicted with bestiathropy, and gain the Mark of the Beast racial background, as associated with the animal whose hide it is made from. Once attuned to the armor, a creature retains this curse even if the armor is removed or unattuned.

The Bimbonomicon

+3 Tome, Legendary (Requires Attunement by a spellcaster)

This glittery pink spellbook is written in a colorful script that dots every I with a little heart, and often meanders off into lewd scribblings and blissfully airheaded comments in the margins. It holds powerful enchantments for those willing to pay the price

While attuned to this spellbook, you add all spells from this handbook to your spell lest, and may use charisma as the casting ability for any spell, regardless of your class or subclass.

Curse: This tome is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, keeping it within reach at all times.

Additionally, Each Time you casts a spell using this spellbook, you must roll a d20. On a roll of 1, your Intelligence score is reduced by 1, to a minimum of 8. On a roll of 20, your charisma score is increased by one, to a maximum of 20. While your Intelligence score is 10 or lower, you become permanently intoxicated and treat Sex as a vice to which you are permanently addicted.

Binder of Groping

Wondrous Item (Binder), Uncommon

This eldritch knock-off is visually identical to a common binder of holding. And is frequently sold as such by less than reputable salesfolk. The Binder of Groping functions identically to a binder of holding, except for it's lecherous curse, and identifying it as a fake requires a DC 15 arcana check.

Curse: Immediately upon donning this cursed binder, you must succeed on a DC 18 dexterity saving throw, or be unable to remove it without the help of a remove curse spell, or similar magic.

The pocket dimension of this otherwise harmless binder is home to an array of phantom hands and hungry tentacles. While wearing a binder of groping, you must succeed on a DC 15 dexterity saving throw at the beginning of each of your turns, or gain 1d4 bludgeoning stimulation as your breasts are groped and fondled by the creatures within.

Binder of Holding

Wondrous Item (Binder), Common

A tight Silk binder spun by Drow hands, and embroidered with attractive lace. The inside surface functions much like a bag of holding, keeping the Wearer's breasts securely out of the way while engaging in combat or other activities.

While wearing a binder of holding, your breasts are inaccessible and cannot be used as a sexual implement or targeted by sexual advances.

Placing a binder of holding inside an extradimensional space created by a Bag of Holding, Portable Hole, or similar item instantly destroys both items and opens a gate to the Astral Plane. The gate originates where the one item was placed inside the other. Any creature within 10 feet of the gate is sucked through it to a random Location on the Location on the Plane of Perversion. The gate then closes. The gate is one-way only and can't be reopened.

Bindings of Shandor

Wondrous item (manacles or other binding), Rare

Forged of pure selenium, and imbued with the power of four great sages, these bindings can be used to restrain spooks, spectres and ghosts, and render them fully corporeal.

When placed upon a creature, these bindings disable any incorporeal traits or abilities of the creature, as well as any and all forms of incorporeal or extra-planar movement, such as the Blink or Etherealness spells.

Bitchbreaker Harness

Wondrous Item (Belly Harness), Very Rare (requires Attunement)

This leather belly harness is emblazoned with vile runes, and studded along its straps tiny barbs which conduct pain from one creature into another.

While attuned to this harness, and wearing it as a mount, a portion of your pain can be channelled directly into your rider as pleasure. As a reaction when you would take damage from any source, you may force your rider to make a DC 25 constitution saving throw. On a failure the damage you take from the triggering source is reduced by half, and your rider gains necrotic stimulation equal to the same amount.

Blade of Bloody Illusions

+1 Weapon (Dagger), uncommon (requires attunement)

The blade of this cruel-looking knife shimmers as if not fully real. However, The pain - and stimulation - it inflicts, very much is.

This enchanted blade may be used as a +1 sexual implement in addition to a weapon. Any damage dealt by this exquisite dagger is dealt as nonlethal psychic damage, and the targeted creature gains psychic stimulation equal to the same amount.

Wounds made by this weapon are considered illusionary, and fade without trace within an hour, despite looking and feeling entirely real.

Blade of Dismemberment

Weapon (Any bladed Weapon), Very Rare

The blade of this weapon seems to be made of iridescent moonlight, and is entirely intangible. While poorly suited for battle It is far from useless.

You gain a +3 bonus to attack rolls made with this magic weapon, but deal no damage on hit. Instead the target gains numbing points equal to any damage that would have been dealt.

When you attack a creature with this weapon and score a critical hit, you cut off one feature of the creature's anatomy, such as a head, limb, or natural implement. The creature takes no damage from this dismemberment, and the severed body part continues to function as normal, despite being disconnected from the creature's body, and any damage or stimulation applied to the severed body part is applied to it's owner, regardless of distance, so long as both are on the same plane of existence.

A body part severed using this blade may be reattached at any point by pressing it firmly to the point it was severed from, and holding it in place for one minute.

Blanket of Restoration
Wondrous Item (Blanket), Rare

This soft fleece blanket is slightly weighted to provide comforting warmth to those who need it. This blanket may be used as part of a comforting ritual, carefully attending to the needs of a creature to ensure a safe and healthy recovery.

While attuned to this item, you may use the blanket of restoration to cast the following spells as listed below:

- Lesser Restoration: The blanket may be used to cast the Lesser Restoration Spell as a 1 hour long ritual
- Greater Restoration: The blanket may be used to cast the Greater Restoration Spell as an 8 hour long ritual. When cast in this way the spell does not require material components.

Blemishing Ointment
Wondrous Item (Ointment), Common

This foul-smelling ointment can be applied to a fresh wound, healing it instantly and restoring 2d4+2 hit points. However, any wound healed in this way permanently scars, no matter how mild or severe. A jar contains enough ointment for three uses.

Blue Vervain Tonic
Consumable (Poison), Very Rare

A thick, sticky, and deceptively sweet substance known to inhibit mental capacity while similarly increasing libido. This elixir is used by certain Caimanine tribes as a way to pacify unruly captives.

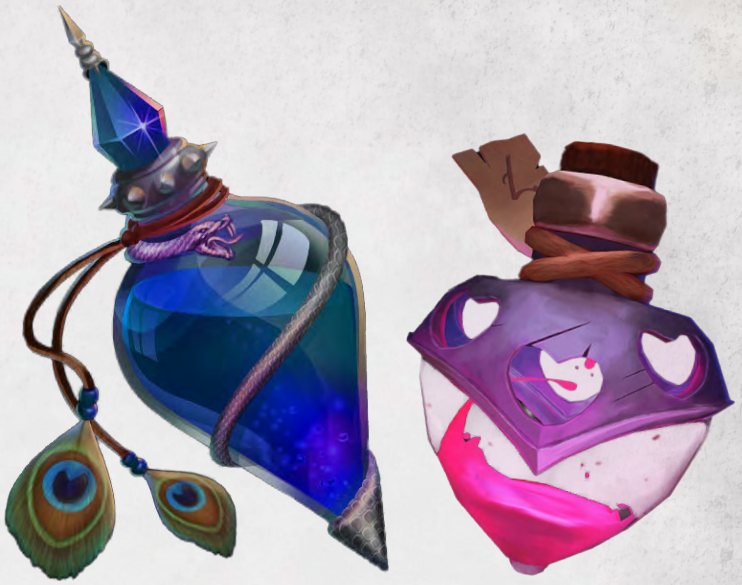

A creature who drinks this poison must succeed on a DC 18 wisdom saving throw, or gain the hyperaroused condition for the next 8 hours. While hyperaroused in this way, the creature's Intelligence and Wisdom scores become 1. The creature can't cast spells, activate magic items, understand language, or communicate beyond pleasured grunts or moans. The creature can, however, identify its friends, follow them, and even protect them.

Body Clamps of Exquisite Pain
Wondrous Item (Body Clamps), Rare

A Set of small Darksteel body clamps connected by a fine chain - clearly of Drow make or similar. The clamps themselves are spring-loaded, but each clamp is adorned with a small gemstone knob that can be turned to fine-tune the exact pressure applied.

While wearing these clamps, an attuned creature experienced pain as if it were pleasure. The wearer gains resistance to all damage, but gains stimulation equal to any damage taken.

Breeder's Bitchsuit
Wondrous item (Bitchsuit), rare

This exquisitely made bitchsuit is designed for long-tem wear, with padding in all the right places, and a canine mask in the shape of a muzzle. It's magical effects are... Unique, to say the least

While wearing this bitchsuit, you are affected as if by the Speak with Animals spell, and treat overstimulation as if it were one level less. Additionally, you count as one size category larger for the purpose of being sexually penetrated.

Curse: This collar is cursed, and becoming wearing it extends the curse to you. While wearing this bitchsuit, You become hyperaroused, and can speak only in barks and animal noises, which are perfectly understood by beasts, but cannot be understood by other creatures without the use of a Speak with Animals spell.

Breeder's Tonic
Consumable (Potion), Common

A bone-shaped bottle full of a faintly glowing serum that swirls silvery blue. It is commonly used by goblin tribes to help make their breeding slaves more productive.

A creature who consumes this potion becomes Hyperfertile and Nymphomanic for the next hour.

Broach of Baroness' Bellows
Wondrous item (necklace), Rare (requires attunement)

This glittering gold broach contains a single red gemstone that seems to swirl with the forces of elemental air. While attuned to this broach, You may cast the Featherfall spell at will, and the Fly spell once between long rests.

Curse: This necklace is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. While cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the necklace, and keep it within reach at all times.

Each time you succeed on a bluff or intimidation check while cursed in this way, the implement size of your breasts and ass increases by one, as your body visibly inflates. Failing a bluff or intimidation check while cursed in this way causes your body to deflate, reducing your bust and ass by one implement size. These changes have no effect on your overall weight.

Bringer of Dreams

Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

This faintly glowing phallus is made of some sort of luminescent crystal, and hums with a tune of a soft lullaby. Within it's facets play an endless array of lewd scenes - the erotic dreams of those it has brought to climax.

The Shaft contains 5 charges. As an action on your turn, you may expend one or more charges to cast the Sleep spell at a level equal to the number of charges expended.

Creatures put to sleep using this item cannot be awoken by sexual advances until they have been brought to climax at least once, and while the Shaft holds 3 or more charges, You may shape the dreams these creatures, as per the Dream spell.

The Shaft regains a single charge each time a sleeping creature fails a climax saving throw while within 5 ft of it.

Cage of Contradictions

Wondrous Item (Chastity Device), Uncommon

This strange device is made of fine elvish silver, and forever remains slightly cool to the touch. It wraps firmly around the waist and genitals like a chastity belt, but ironically enough provides openings for accessing the wearer's genitals.

While wearing this device, a creature is immune to the reciprocal property of it's own sexual implements, and gains numbing points at the start of each of it's turns equal to the total stimulation dealt to it the previous round.

The Device also includes a socket for attaching a dildo or phallic shaft. While wearing this device, a creature experiences any stimulation applied to an attached implement, as if it were applied to the creature itself, but is incapable of climaxing as a result of this stimulation. If such stimulation would force the creature to make a climax saving throw, it instead does not.

Cask of Tentacles

Wondrous Item (Barrel), Rare

This otherwise unassuming barrel contains an array of lecherous tentacles, eager to grope, fondle and fuck anyone foolish enough to climb inside

A creature who opens this barrel or moves within 5 ft of it while it is open must succeed on a DC 21 Dexterity saving throw, or gain 3d6 bludgeoning stimulation and be restrained, as the tentacles pull it inside the barrel to sexually molest. A creature inside the barrel gains 3d6 bludgeoning stimulation at the start of each of it's turns.

A creature Restrained by the Tentacles can use its Action to make a DC 21 Strength or Dexterity check (its choice). On a success, it frees itself, and climbs out of the barrel.

The barrel is only large enough to contain a single creature at a time, and if a creature is already inside the barrel, other creatures moving within 5 ft of the barrel are unaffected.

Catsuit of Displacement

Wondrous Item (Bodysuit), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A tight leather catsuit, with the addition of two tentacle accessories attached to the fur black shawl. Wearing the set turns you into a playful beast of the fey.

While wearing this bodysuit,you may cast the Blur spell once per day without expending a spell slot. Charisma is the casting ability used for this spell.

Curse: This bodysuit is cursed and possessed by a spirit of bestial lust, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you become hyperaroused while wearing the catsuit, and are unwilling to part with the bodysuit, keeping it within reach at all times.

Ceremonial Blades

Weapon (any bladed weapon), uncommon (requires attunement)

These twinned blades come in many forms, and are used by many cultures to swear bonds of deep loyalty or marriage. Each of these blades must be wielded by a separate creature, and the magic of the blades manifests only when all wielders have sworn a ceremonial vow to each other, such as marriage or friendship.

While wielding these blades, each creature gains a +2 bonus to AC while they are within 30 feet of each other.

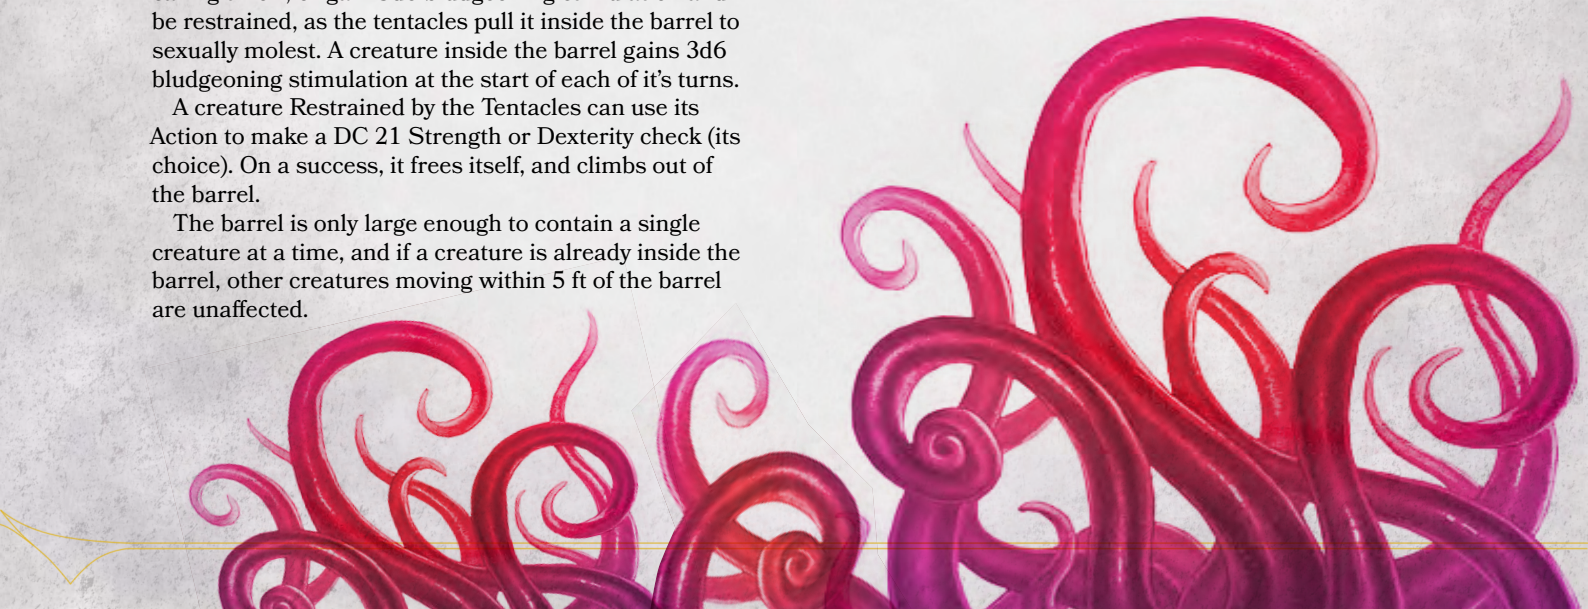

Curse: Breaking a vow sworn by these blades places a powerful curse to the wielder. While curse in this way, you are unwilling to part with the blade, keeping it within reach at all times. Your AC is reduced by 2, and you have disadvantage on persuasion checks, or checks made to gain the trust of another creature.

Charm of Extension

Wondrous Item, Rare (requires attunement)

This small phallic charm can be worn on a chain, bracelet, or anywhere else that seems fitting, and glows with a small trace of The Master's magic while active.

This holds three Charges. While wearing this charm, when you Cast a Spell that has a Duration of 1 minute or longer as part of a Sexual Act, you may expend a charge to extend this duration up to 1 hour. This extended duration ends early if you or a creature affected by the spell takes damage. The Charm Regains a single charge each time a creature within 5 ft of it fails a climax saving throw.

Chastity Seal
Consumable (paper seal), Common

These enchanted paper seals are reminiscent of those found in eastern shrines, and were first created as a means of protecting virtue against unwanted intrusion. Such seals have since found use for both pleasure and punishment.

As an action on your turn, you may apply this seal to the genitals of a willing or incapacitated creature, magically preventing access to the creatures genitals until the seal is removed.

Once applied, a chastity Seal can only be removed by the creature who applied it, or by way of a Dispel Magic spell or similar magic.

Chimeric Lingerie
Wondrous Item (Lingerie), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A seemly mismatched set of bestial lingerie, including goat-like horns, feline ears, and a serpent's tail – Even the lace teddy and garters are a different colors. It all makes much more sense when the set is worn together, and each element begins to feel real.

While wearing this lingerie, anytime you would take acid, fire, lightening, or poison damage, roll a d4. On a result of 4, you gain resistance to that damage type until the end of your next turn.

Wondrous Item (Belly Harness), Very Rare (requires Attunement)

An elegant array of straps and harness, enchanted to give a mounted creature unparalleled control over the creature it rides. While attuned to this belly harness, you may use a free action on your turn to make an animal handling check, contested by your mount's charisma saving throw. On a success, you force the creature to make a sexual advance against you, and the creature becomes dominated by you until the start of your next turn, as per the dominate monster spell.

Cock-ring of Lubrication
Wondrous Item (Cock-ring), common

I gilded ring inlaid with a single band of milky white gemstone. While attuned to this ring, you learn the Lubrication and Cumshot cantrips, and may cast them using constitution as your spellcasting ability.

Cock Ring of Verdant Harvest
Wondrous Item (Cock-ring), uncommon (Requires Attunement)

This woven and braided cock ring fits snugly along the base of the shaft whilst perpetually wafting off the scent of bread and musk.

While wearing this cock-ring, your cock and balls increase in size by one size category, and a few drops of your cum provide enough nourishment to sustain a creature for one day.

Additionally, each time you climax, you may cast the Plant Growth Spell as a free action.

Coin of Mesmer

Wondrous item (coin), rare (requires attunement by a spellcaster)

A shimmering golden coin that almost seems to glow in the light around it. The longer you stare, the harder it becomes to look away.

This coin glitters with five charges, which recharge each full moon. Once per day, as an action on your turn, you may use this coin to cast the Hypnotic Pattern spell, centered on the coin, without expending spell slots or material components. Creatures charmed by you become heavily suggestible, and can be instructed in the following ways

- You may expend a number of charges to cast the Sleep spell at a level equal to the number of charges spent.
- You may expend a number of charges to cast the Command spell at a level equal to the number of charges spent.
- You may expend 3 charges charge to cast the Suggestion spell, without requiring concentration.

Spells cast in this way can only target creatures already affected by the Hypnotic Pattern spell.

Collar of Crusader's Geas

Wondrous item (Collar), Rare (requires attunement)

This polished metal collar bears the sigil of a Gilded Eye, and encourages the wearer to smite evil through any means necessary. While wearing this collar, your melee attacks deal a number of d4 of radiant damage equal to half your proficiency bonus, in addition to their normal damage.

Curse: This collar is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. While cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the collar, and cannot remove it by any means.

While wearing the collar, you become bound to the moral code of the creature who placed the collar upon you. You have advantage on attack rolls against any creature this moral code would deem "evil", and gain 1d4 radiant stimulation whenever you act in direct accordance with it.

Once per round, when you purposefully fail to take action in accordance with this moral code, or act in a manner directly counter to it, you take radiant damage as if from your own melee attack.

Collar of Cuckolding

Wondrous Item (Chastity Belt), Uncommon

A fine leather collar, inscribed with a very specific array of hidden arcane glyphs and sigils, and adorned with a silver bell. Once placed upon a creature, an arcane lock seals, binding the collar permanently in place until unlocked by the same creature who locked it. If you place the collar upon yourself, it instead becomes permanently locked until unlocked using a Dispel Magic spell or similar magic.

While wearing a cuckold's collar, a creature becomes immune to stimulation from martial or indirect sexual advances, and experiences no sensation of any kind from sexual intercourse, although it can still become physically and visibly aroused.

Collar of the Dullahan

Wondrous item (Collar) Rare (requires attunement)

Infernal Crop of Command
Sexual Implement (Riding Crop), Rare (Requires Attunement)

Crafted from boiled nightmare hide and infernal iron, this crop holds a fiery sting that encourages obedience even in the most disobedient slaves. All damage and stimulation dealt by this crop is dealt as fire stimulation or damage, instead of it's normal type.

This crop contains three charges, represented by a series of glowing infernal runes along it’s hilt. As a reaction when making a sexual advance using this crop, you may expend a single charge to cast the Command Spell, targeting the same creature. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell. The Crop regains a single charge each time an attack or martial advance made using the crop scores a critical hit.

Inkwell of Truth
Wondrous Item (Inkwell), Very Rare

This enchanted inkwell never runs dry, and can be used only to write the truth - but perhaps not in the way you would expect.

This ink may be used to alter a creature's body as if by the Alter Self or Alter Genitals spells, by writing descriptions of the desired features or changes upon the target's skin. These changes last until the ink is removed Curse: This ink is cursed and permanently stains the skin of any creature who uses it. While cursed in this way, speaking an outright lie causes your hands to move on their own, making a martial advance against yourself.

When used to write on any surface other than skin, this magic ink will shift across the page to reveal the most intimate secrets and perversions of the author.

Insomniac’s Dust
Consumable (Powder), Common

Inhaling this fine silvery powder causes almost instantaneous drowsiness and sleep.

As an action you may blow a puff of Insomniac’s Dust into the face of a creature within 5 ft. The target must immediately succeed one a dc 18 constitution saving throw or become intoxicated for the next minute.

While intoxicated in this way, a creature must repeat the saving throw at the end of each of it’s turns. If a creature fails three or more of these saving throws, it immediately falls unconscious, and remains so for the next hour, or until an ally uses an action to wake it up. Each pouch contains enough for a single use.

Instant tentacle Seeds
Consumable (Seeds?), Rare

These oily black seeds shimmer with an otherworld iridescence, and seem to squirm in your hand as if eager for the change to grow.

As an action, you may throw these seeds into puddle or water source, causing them to spring to life as per the Black Tentacles spell. When cast in this way, the tentacles last for 10 minutes, and cannot be dispelled by Dispel Magic or similar spells. Any damage dealt by these tentacles is instead dealt as stimulation.

Jar of 1,000 Tongues
Fleshlight, uncommon

This unassuming clay pot is actually a portal deep into the far realm, where thousands of wet alien tongues wait eagerly to taste mortal flesh.

Holding the opening of this jar to the bare skin of a living creature causes a variety of wet tentacles to extend from the jar, attempting to pleasure whatever is in front of them. The creature must make on a DC 18 Dexterity or Strength saving throw, and can choose to fail this saving throw if it wishes. On a failure the target is grappled and takes 6d6 bludgeoning stimulation. On a success, the tentacles instead become frantic, and repeat this sexual advance against the nearest creature - usually the person holding the pot.

While grappled in this way, a creature takes 6d6 bludgeoning stimulation at the start of each of it's turns. A creature may repeat it's saving throw at the end of each of it's turns, ending the effect on a success. The tentacles continue to seek out targets for their sexual advances until they have brought at least one creature to climax, at which point, they recede peacefully into the jar.

Jealous Bed
Wondrous Item (Bed), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A beautiful four-poster bed, fit for any noble or person of status. It's soft bedding and luxurious silk sheets make any other bed seem pitiful by comparison

Sleeping in this magnificent bed allows you to complete a long rest in half the time it would normally take you, so long as you begin your rest by masturbating or otherwise being brought to climax.

Curse: This bed is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you find the idea of sleeping in any other bed to be loathsome, and will go out of your way to sleep in this bed whenever possible.

Each time you attempt to complete a long rest while not sleeping in this bed, roll 1d100. On a roll of 20 or lower, you gain no benefits from this rest. On a roll of 1, you are magically teleported to this bed upon awaking, regardless of the location you fell asleep. Only clothing and equipment worn while sleeping is teleported with you.

Jessalyn's Miraculous Cleanse-All
Wondrous Item (Soap), Common

This magical soap can be used to remove nonmagical blemishes, scars, or tattoos from a creature's skin, no matter how permanent, or to clean nonmagical marks and stains from fabric or surfaces. Each bar is enough to fully cleanse a medium humanoid.

Jockstrap of Adornment
Wondrous Item (undergarment), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

This tightly fitting leather undergarment covers only the barest of essentials, but enhances them considerably while worn. Much to the disappointment of any who remove them.

While wearing this undergarment, Your cock and ass both increase in size by one size category, and exude a powerful and intoxicating musk. Creatures who enter or start their turn within 5 ft of you must succeed on a DC 15 constitution saving throw, or become intoxicated until the end of their next turn

Curse: This lingerie is cursed and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times. While cursed in this way, the natural size of your ass and cock are reduced by 1 implement size.

Jorogumo's Corset
Wondrous Item (Corset), Rare (Requires Attunement)

The boning of this Elegant Cloaker-Hide corset is made from the chitinous exoskeleton of a phase-spider, and the inside is lined with the finest of silks.

Corsets such as these are sought after by drider, centaurs, naga, and other monstrous creatures looking to disguise their inhuman forms. They also make for a very effective binder.

While wearing this corset, you may displace as much or as little of your physical form as you choose into an astral demi-plane, similar to that of a bag of holding. When you do so, you may also create an illusory glamour around yourself, disguising the missing portions of your body in any way you see fit.

Kidnapper's Trunk
Wondrous Item (Chest), Rare

This otherwise unassuming chest is large enough to easily (if not quite comfortably) fit a medium humanoid inside, and is outfitted with an array of enchantments to ensure the creature within can remain there for as long as necessary without drawing attention.

A creature sealed within this chest is awake and aware of it's surroundings, but otherwise falls into a state of suspended animation for as long as the chest remains sealed. The creature does not need to eat, breath, or perform other bodily functions, but still experiences sensations such as stimulation or pain as normal. While within this chest, a creature gains the denied condition, and cannot be targeted by divination magic or perceived through magical sensors. Sounds or other vibrations originating within the chest cannot be perceived from outside the chest.

Kraken's Cock-ring
Wondrous Item (Cock-ring), Rare (Requires Attunement)

An imposing ring of dark blue obsidian, carved into the likeness of several entwined tentacles, this ornament seems to echo with the ancient power of the deeps

While attuned to this cock-ring, your may us a bonus action on your turn to transform your cock into a tentacle. This tentacle serves as a +1 sexual implement, and may be used to make or maintain a grapple check as a bonus action on your turn.

Curse: This cock-ring is actually a living creature from the deep reaches of the far realm, and becoming attuned to it grants the creature a curse-like influence over you.

Each time you make a climax saving throw while transformed by this wring, the tentacle splits, creating an identical duplicate of itself, up to a maximum of 8 tentacles. These tentacles have a mind of their own and act on your initiative order, attempting to grapple or make a sexual advance against a random creature within their reach, including you. Each tentacle may grapple only a single creature at a time.

Living Lingerie
Wondrous Item (Lingerie), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A lesser cousin to common mimic, these seemingly silken undergarments are much more than they appear, with an inner lining of hungry cilia and taste for the wetness of arousal.

While wearing this lingerie, you may cast the Detect Thoughts spell once between long rests without expending a spell slot or material components. Intelligence is the casting ability used for this spell

Curse: This lingerie is actually a living creature from the deep reaches of the far realm, and becoming attuned to it grants the creature a curse-like influence over you. As long as you remain under the creature's influence, you are infatuated by the creature, and are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times. While attuned to the lingerie, You are subjected to the creature's telepathic commands and suggestions as per the infatuated condition.

Lotion of Enlargement
Wondrous Item (Ointment), Common

This soothing lotion promises to increase your size and pleasure, guaranteed!

Applying this cream to a creature's natural implement deals 2d4 acid stimulation, and increases the size category of the implement by one for the next 2 hours. While affected in this way, the implement gains the reciprocal property, and the target gains vulnerability to all stimulation dealt to this implement, including stimulation dealt by the reciprocal property.. Each jar contains enough for three applications

Love Potion No 69.
Consumable (Potion), Rare

This ornate, heart-shaped flask contains enough glowing liquid for two people, and allows two parties to share their sensations of pleasure for a limited Time. Multiple flasks may be combined together to experience its effect with more partners.

This potion must be consumed by two or more creatures at the same time, and requires a separate action for each creature. For one hour after consuming this potion, all stimulation applied to any of these creatures is split evenly among all other creatures who consumed the same potion.

Lustful Bedroll
Wondrous Item (Bedroll), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

This otherworldly comfortable bedroll ensures that you always get a good night's sleep - at a price, of course.

Sleeping in this strangely alluring bedroll during a long rest allows you to complete a long rest in half the time it would normally take you.

Curse: This Bedroll is actually a living creature from the deep reaches of the far realm, and becoming attuned to it grants the creature a curse-like influence over you. As long as you remain under the creature's influence, you are infatuated by the creature, and are unwilling to part with the bedroll, keeping it within reach at all times.

While sleeping within this bedroll, you are unconscious and unaware of your surroundings, regardless of any racial traits or class features. You cannot be woken from this state until you have slept at least 4 hours within the bedroll, during which time you become completely encased by it's sensuous membranes while it gropes and molests you, bringing you to repeated climax.

While Attuned this bedroll, You are subjected to the creature's telepathic commands and suggestions as per the infatuated condition. Each time you complete a long rest using this bedroll, roll a 1d20. On a result of 1, your inhibition is permanently reduced by 1

Maidservant's Cube
Wondrous Item, common

A friendly little slime about the size of a human fist, this lesser cousin of the gelatinous cube enjoys nothing more than squiggling it's way around the room, eating up dirt, dust and other everyday messes to leave your home (and body, if you allow it) spotlessly clean. They are prized by homemakers for a variety of additional reasons as well.

The cube cleans roughly 120 square feet of area an hour, allowing it to easily clean it's owner or one of their companions of dirt and grime in a little less than 10 minutes.

A housekeeper's cube may be used to "clean" a willing creature, applying 1d10 acid stimulation each round, until removed from the creature's skin as a bonus action.

Manacles of Binding
Wondrous Item (Manacles), uncommon

A sturdy pair of Dwarf-Forged manacles, with fine golden inlay and padded with soft rabbit leather.

When touched together, a spectral chain connects the two cuffs, and can be similarly attached to any solid object or mounting point, despite having no mass of its own. The chain can be as short as 6 inches, or as long as 6 ft, and is resistant to all forms of non-magical damage. It is always exactly as long as it needs to be for its current application - no more and no less.

To deactivate the spectral chains, the creature who applied the manacles must purposefully touch them back together and say the words "you are free, my friend" in Dwarvish.

Mark of Ownership
Wondrous Item (Tattoo), Uncommon (requires attunement)

An Owner's Mark is a tattoo of enchanted script encircling the neck like a collar, complete with the name or brand of the chosen "Owner".

When this tattoo is applied, you choose one creature whom you trust to be your "Owner". Until removed by way of "Dispel Magic" or similar magic, your designated Owner may cast "Locate Creature" on you without expending a spell slot, and can sense when you take damage or are in immediate danger.

Mark of Phallic Penetration
Wondrous item (Tattoo), Uncommon (requires attunement)

A glyph of subtle transmutation magic which wraps around the base of the cock, this magic tattoo allows for some... Interesting intercourse.

While attuned to this tattoo your cock increases in size category by one, and may be treated as an enveloping implement by phallic implements with a size category equal to or less than it's own. When used in this way, your cock deals bludgeoning stimulation in place of piercing.

Mark of the Scorekeeper
Wondrous item (Tattoo), common

This magical tattoo usually takes the form of an ornate frame or plaque, within which a number is displayed in stylized fonts or hash-marks. A mark of the scorekeeper can be used to magically display a variety of personal statistics ranging from number of sexual partners to current hit points or arousal score.

When this mark is applied, you may choose up to three statistics for the tattoo to track. The tattoo can display only one of these statistics at a time, and you can change which of these statistics are displayed each time you complete a long rest. The value displayed by this tattoo is always accurate.

Mark of the Succubus
Wondrous item (Tattoo), Rare (requires attunement)

An erotic crest designed to mimic the regenerative power of an infernal seducer, but without the debilitating hunger. While attuned to this tattoo, each time a partner climaxes inside of you, that creature must expend a number of Hit Dice equal to your proficiency bonus (or it's maximum number of hit dice, whichever is lower). For each Hit Die spent in this way, the creature rolls the die and adds it's Constitution modifier to it. You regain hit points equal to the result.

Curse: This tattoo bears some of the same cursed magic that afflicts it's namesake, and becoming attuned to it passes that curse onto you. While cursed in this way, you treat sex as a Vice with a Base Addiction DC of 13.

Mark of the Virgin Mother
Wondrous Item (Tattoo), Rare (requires attunement)

Also called the "Sow's Mark", or the "Mark of Male Fertility", this arcane tattoo is a womb-tattoo in the most literal sense - generally consisting of some artistic representation of the female reproductive system.

While attuned to this tattoo, you can be impregnated using any orifice, rather than just vaginal intercourse. This impregnation is treated as a traditional pregnancy, and carried to term as would be expected for your race. If you have no womb, this sigil magically creates one; although spells, curses, and mundane contraceptives may still be used to prevent pregnancy.

Mascara of Ruin
Wondrous Item (Mascara), Very Rare

This cursed mascara is said to be bottled from the tears of a fallen angel, and forever runs in oily smears down the face of the wearer. While wearing this mascara, you gain proficiency in religion, if you do not have it. If you are already proficient in religion, you instead add twice your proficiency bonus to religion checks made to recall relevant information.

In addition, you learn the Thaumaturgy Cantrip, and the Destructive Wave Spell. You may cast this spell once without expending a spell slot, after which you must spend 8 hours in supplication and deep reflection before you may do so again. Time spent in this manner cannot be counted towards a long or short rest. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Curse: This mascara is cursed and applying it to yourself extends the curse to you. While cursed in this way, tears constantly stream from your eyes, and the mascara cannot be removed by any means. Additional, any time you would make a climax saving throw, you are instead affected as if by the Ruin Orgasm cantrip.

Mask of the Master Doll
Wondrous Item (Mask), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

This shattered mask of white and blue porcelain has been welded back together with fine seams of gold. Eerie, yet beautiful, it's hollow eyes glow with a soft golden light, and sense of deep arcane power

While attuned to this mask, constructs treat you as one of their own, and willingly obey your commands. As an action on your turn, you may issue a single, short command (no more than a sentence or two) to a construct within 60 ft that can hear you. The target must succeed make a wisdom saving throw with a DC equal to 8 + your charisma modifier + your proficiency bonus. On a failed save, it pursues the course of action you commanded to the best of its ability, for up to 10 minute, or until it takes damage from any source. Commanding the target to stab itself, throw itself into acid, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the effect automatically.

Curse: This mask is cursed and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. While cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the mask and cannot remove it by any means. While attuned to the mask, each time you climax, the gold and porcelain of the mask extends further along your body, giving you the same doll-like appearance of the mask itself.

Upon gaining 1 or more levels of overstimulation, You transform completely, and you gain the Pleasure Doll racial template. This transformation lasts for a number of weeks equal to the level of overstimulation you experience, and gaining new levels of overstimulation while transformed in this way extends the duration similarly. If you remain transformed for 6 weeks or more, the transformation becomes permanent and cannot be reversed by any means short of a Wish spell.

While transformed in this way, when given a command or instruction by a non-hostile creature, you must succeed on DC 18 wisdom saving throw, or pursue the course of action commanded to the best of your ability. Commands to stab yourself, throw yourself into acid, or do some other obviously harmful act have no effect. If you take damage from any source while performing this course of action, you may repeat this saving throw, ending the effect on a success.

Masochists's Heels
Wondrous Item (Shoes), uncommon (requires attunement)

These painful shoes are worn only by the most pious adherents to the order of penance who walk with effortless poise in the steps of their martyr. While Wearing these heels, you are immune to the prone condition, and ignore all forms of difficult terrain

Curse: These heels are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the heels, wearing them whenever possible.

While cursed in this way, anytime you take the dash action on your turn, you take 1d6 piercing damage, as the heels drive painfully into your own feet. This damage cannot be reduced in any way.

Mirror of Bondage
Wondrous Item (Mirror), Rare

This ornate floor-length mirror is far more than it seems, and Gazing into it reveals the devious nature of it's enchantment.

A creature who looks into this mirror must make a DC 21 dexterity saving throw. On a failed save the target is affected as if by the Spectral Stockade spell, and the mirror casts the Magecock spell at 5th level, targeting the same creature with direct sexual advances for the duration of the spell, or until the spells are dismissed by speaking the command word inscribed on the back of the mirror. The Mirror's spellcasting ability modifier is +6. On a successful save, a creature is immune to the effects of the mirror for the next 24 hours.

Mistwoven Rope
Wondrous Item (Rope), common.

This ethereal rope is woven from the mists of the feywild, and cannot be broken or cut except by a silvered weapon. A creature restrained by this rope remains in whatever form it holds for as long as it remains bound, even if the spell or magic which transformed it would end.

Needeled Maiden
Wondrous Item (???), Variable Rarity

A series of tubes and diaphragms connects each of the hundreds of needles inside this strange device to an alchemical tank, Which seems to process pure arousal into healing. A creature held inside this device regains a number of hit points each round as shown on the table below:

Rarity	Hit points restored
Common	1d4
Uncommon	2d4
Rare	4d4
Very Rare	8d4

Curse: A creature held within this device is both paralysed and hyperaroused. Hitpoints regained using this device are subtracted from the creature's hit point maximum until it completes a long rest.

The Nekomnomicon

+2 Tome, Very Rare (Requires Attunement by a spellcaster)

This pristine black spellbook is styled after the trappings of a french maid, and bears a large cat's-eye gemstone on its cover. Within it are contained a myriad of delicious and magical recipes

While attuned to this spellbook, you add the following spells to your spell list, and always have them prepared: Spike Food and Drink, Purify Food and Drink, Lustful Treat, Create Food and Water, and Hero's Feast.

Curse: This tome is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the tome, keeping it within reach at all times. Each time you use this tome to cast one of it's granted spells, you must roll a d20. On a roll of 1, you gain one of the following traits:

- You grow a pair of cat ears which are highly sensitive to touch.
- You grow a feline tail, which functions as an erogenous zone.
- Your hands and feet become paw-like, giving you disadvantage on slight of hand checks
- Your eyes become catlike, granting you darkvision out to a range of 60 ft.
- You grow a set of feline whiskers
- Your voice becomes feminine and adorable

If you roll a 1 and already have each of these traits, Your speech becomes obnoxiously cute and childish, and you cannot speak without making cat-related puns or ending your sentences with meows or other stereotypical feline noises.

Paddle of Phantom Pains

Sexual Implement (Paddle), Common (Requires Attunement)

This wooden paddle is hewn from a wood so dark in color it might be mistaken as obsidian from afar. It is Embellished along the edges with decorative silver scrollwork, and a large, faintly glowing emerald is set into the hilt. Upon it is inscribed "Only the dead are ever truly penitent."

Martial Advances made using this paddle deal necrotic stimulation instead of their normal damage type. Additionally, when an you succeed on an attack or sexual advance using this paddle, all attack and stimulation roles against the same target are made at advantage until end of the creature's next turn.

Paddle of Standing

Sexual Implement (Paddle), Uncommon (requires attunement)

An otherwise ordinary paddle crafted from rare bloodwood, and carved with the Orcish word for pain on one side, and pleasure on the other. It delivers exactly what it promises

When you use this paddle to deal stimulation to a creature, the target must succeed on a DC 17 constitution saving throw, or take damage equal to the same amount, and be unable to sit down for 1d4 hours.

Pavlovian Bell

Wondrous Item (bell), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A seemingly ordinary golden bell. The only indication it may be magical is a faint inscription that reads "Salivation experiment 369" in Gnomish.

While attuned to this bell, you may use an bonus action on your turn to ring it, forcing all creatures within 30 ft that can hear it to make a DC 15 wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, a creature becomes hyperaroused for the next minute, and begins salivating heavily, increasing the stimulation dice of their mouth from 1d4 to 1d6 for the duration.

On a successful save, a creature experiences a sudden craving for raw meat.

Pearls of Arcane Reserve

Sexual Implement (Pleasure Beads), Legendary (requires attunement by a spellcaster)

Supposedly crafted by the arcane Goddess Hecate to empower her most loyal worshippers. This silver chain contains 9 crystal beads of progressively larger sizes, each inscribed with an arcane glyph that glows when filled with sufficient magic.

As part of a short or long rest, you may imbue one of the gemstone beads with a spell of a level you may cast. To do so, you cast the spell while holding the bead. The spell is stored in the gem instead of having any effect. Each of the 9 gemstones can store a single spell, but no more than one spell of each level can be stored in the beads.

As a bonus action on their turn, you or a creature within 5ft of you may remove one of the beads from inside you, allowing you to cast one of the spells stored within as a reaction. When the beads are removed in this way, you must succeed on an inhibition saving throw against your own spell save DC, or gain 1d10 force stimulation for each level of the spell you cast.

It is unclear if the erotic use of these beads was intended by the Goddess, or if their nature was warped by the lustful desires of those they were gifted to.

Pearl of The Petulant Princess

Sexual Implement (Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A round, pearlescent plug with an enormous gemstone sparkling at its base. While it may not look like much, this implement was created as a means of controlling unruly maidens. It hardly had the Intended effect.

Sexual advances made using this plug gain a +1 bonus to Sexual Advance and Stimulation Rolls.

Curse: This Plug is cursed, and inserting it into a creature forces them to make a DC 17 constitution saving throw. On a failure, the target becomes attuned to the plug, extending the curse to them. While cursed in this way, a creature experiences a jolt of 1d4 lightning stimulation each time they wilfully disobey or verbally disrespect an authority figure.

Pendant of Mesmerism

Wondrous item (necklace) Very Rare (requires attunement)

This crystal pendant seems to shimmer with an ever-changing array of colors and hues, which make it increasingly difficult to look away the longer you stare.

Once between long rests, as an action on your turn, you may use this pendant to cast the Hypnotic Pattern spell without expending a spell slot. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

A creature who fails it's saving throw against this spell becomes infatuated for the duration of the spell. The spell ends for a creature if the pendant leave it's line of sight.

Penetrater

+1 Dagger, uncommom (Requires Attunement)

An interesting dagger who's hilt is made to resemble a cock and balls. It holds a surprising secret that can bring as much pleasure as it can pain.
As a bonus action on your turn, you may speak a command word to transform the blade of this dagger into +1 dildo (oversized). Speaking the command word again reverses the transformation. This transformation fails if the Penetrater is currently inside a creature.

Pherodrake Whip

Weapon (Whip), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

This bullwhip is woven out of strands of drake-leather treated with a powerful aphrodisiac, and is tipped with a metal barb reminiscent of a drake's stinging tail. Despite it's fierce appearance, it's painful sting has an uncanny ability to leave it's victim wanting more

When you hit with an attack using this whip, you may use your reaction to force the target to make a DC 16 constitution saving throw. On a failure, the target becomes intoxicated until the start of your next turn, and gains poison stimulation equal to the damage dealt.

While intoxicated in this way, a creature gains poison stimulation equal to any damage dealt to it by a melee weapon attack.

Pixiedust Plug

Sexual Implement (Small Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

This small plug appears to be made of glass, and is filled with iridescent glittering pixie-dust.

While attuned to this plug, you learn the Faerie Fire, Enlarge/Reduce, and Fly spells, and may cast them once between long rests without expending spell slots or material components. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.

Curse: This plug is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the plug, wearing it whenever possible. While cursed in this way, your size category is reduced by 1, to a minimum of tiny, and you float roughly 2ft off the ground at all times, giggling hopelessly at the strangest things.

Pixie Saddle

Wondrous Item (Belly Harness), Rare (requires Attunement)

This seemingly mundane harness holds a special trick, which is often used to great and humorous effect by the small folk of the forest.

While mounted using this harness, an attuned rider may use an action on its turn to swap places, and size categories, with it's mount. Both creatures change size as per the enlarge/reduce spell even if the change in size would require multiple castings. This effect lasts until the attuned creature removes the harness.

Plague-Doctor's Protective Mask

Wondrous Item (Mask), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

This wyvern leather plague-mask contains many secrets, including a large phallic gag through which the wearer can still somehow breath. While wearing this mask you gain Proficiency in the medicine skill if you are not already proficient, and are immune the effects of poison and disease. As an action on your turn, you may expend a single use of a healer's kit to allow a creature within 5 ft to expend a number of hit dice up to your proficiency bonus, and regain hit points as if completing a short rest.

Curse: This mask is cursed and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unable to remove the mask, and become permanently hyperaroused. While wearing this mask, your speech is muffled and can only be deciphered with a DC 12 insight check

Plate of the Martyr
Armor (Plate), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

A set of battle worn plate-mail that doesn't look like it should ever have been worn into battle. Clearly designed to accentuate the body's curves more than protect against harm, this suit of armor leaves more skin exposed than metal. Somehow it is still capable of a unique sort of protection.

As a bonus action on your turn, you may specify a single creature that you can see can see, and declare that creature under your protection. For the next minute, whenever your chosen creature is targeted by an attack or spell, you use your reaction to shield them from the effects.

If you do so, you become the target of the spell or attack instead, regardless of the normal range of the spell or attack. Any damage dealt to you in this way is instead treated as stimulation of the same type.

Plug of Draconic Resistance
Sexual Implement (Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

An enormous plug carved to resemble the egg of a dragon, these intimidating toys may just hold the secret of a dragon's elemental resistance.

While wearing this plug, you gain resistance to one of the following damage types, based on the color of the plug: Red (fire), Black (acid), Green (poison), Blue (lightning), or White (cold).

Curse: Whenever you take damage of the type associated with the plug's color, you gain stimulation of the same type equal to the same amount.

Plug of Revealing
Sexual Implement (Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

The crystal of this modest plug is exceptionally clear and expertly polished. It's unique enchantment excels at revealing that which is hidden.

While attuned to this plug, you learn the Detect Magic, Identify, and See Invisibility spells, and may cast them once between long rests without expending spell slots or material components. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.

Curse: This plug is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the plug, wearing it whenever possible. While cursed in this way, creatures within 30ft of you automatically become aware of any kinks, fetishes, and sexual desires you poses - weather or not they want to.

Plug of Eager Obedience
Wondrous item (Plug), Very Rare (requires attunement)

A beautiful plug carved from fine aetherian amethyst, and marked by glyphs of enchanted spellwork

While attuned to this plug, you learn the Comand, Suggestion, and Geas spells, and may cast them each once between long rests without expending spell slots or material components. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for these spells.

Curse: This plug is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the plug, wearing it whenever possible.

While cursed in this way, each time a creature succeeds on a saving throw against one of the spells granted by this plug, it may use its reaction to cast the same spell using you as the target. If it does so, it uses your charisma as the spellcasting ability for this spell.

Plug of Enthralling Charisma
Sexual Implement (Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

This crystalline plug contains a swirling vortex within its facets that draws you deeper and deeper.

While wearing this plug, you may use an action on your turn to cast the enthrall spell without expending spell slots of material components. Charisma is the spellcasting ability for this spell.

Curse: This plug is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the plug, and wear it whenever possible.

You gain the denied condition whenever you are not wearing it. Each time you climax while wearing this plug, your intelligence and wisdom scores are both reduced by 1, to a minimum of 8, and your charisma score increases by 2, up to a maximum of 20.

Poppet of Arousal
Wondrous Item (doll), Rare (Requires Attunement)*

This intricately crafted doll serves as a +2 arcane focus, but that is hardly it's true purpose.

As a 10 minute ritual, an attuned creature may provide the doll with a lock of hair, a few drops of fresh blood, or similar taglok from a target within 120 ft. The target must succeed on a DC 18 wisdom saving throw, or the doll binds itself to that creature, taking on it's appearance. This binding is separate from your attunement to the doll, and lasts only so long as the doll remains with 120 ft of the target .

While the doll is bound to a creature in this way, any stimulation applied to the doll is also applied to the target. Each time the target climaxes, it may repeat it's wisdom saving throw, ending it's the doll's binding to it on a success

Poppet of Dominion
Wondrous Item (doll), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)*

This intricately crafted doll serves as a +3 arcane focus, but that is hardly it's true purpose.

As a 10 minute ritual, an attuned creature may provide the doll with a lock of hair, a few drops of fresh blood, or similar taglok from a target within 120 ft. The target must succeed on a DC 18 wisdom saving throw, or the doll binds itself to that creature, taking on it's appearance. This binding is separate from your attunement to the doll, and lasts only so long as the doll remains with 120 ft of the target.

While the doll is bound to a creature in this way, the attuned wielder may use an action on their turn to take total and precise control of the target, as per the dominate person spell. Forcing the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the doll's attunement to it.

Each time the target climaxes, it may repeat it's wisdom saving throw, ending it's the doll's binding to it on a success

Portal of the Distant Lover
Sexual Implement (Fleshlight), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

At first glance, this golden tube seems to be the empty housing for what might have been an exquisitely crafted fleshlight. By upon tracing the delicate arcane script inlaid along it's length, the open end of the device becomes a portal to something wonderful.

Once between long rests, you may use this device to cast the Scrying spell without expending a spell slot. Wisdom is your spellcasting ability for this spell. If the target fails its saving throw against the spell, the device creates an open portal to the target's mouth or genitals (your choice), through which both creatures may perform sexual advances. A creature can choose to fail its saving throw against this spell.

While attuned to this lingerie, you may cast the spell plant growth once per day without expending a spell slot.

Curse: This lingerie is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times. While wearing this lingerie, you become hyperaroused and hyperfertile while within the presence of naturally growing flowers or plant-like creatures.

Queerflame Blade
Weapon (Any Sword), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

An iridescent blade of Elven make, this sword blazes bright with flames in every color of the rainbow, and was forged to strike down the enemies of Queerfolk. This blade serves as a +3 magic weapon. When you hit a Homophobe, Transphobe or other enemy of the Queerfolk, that creature takes an extra 2d10 radiant damage.

While you hold the sword drawn, it creates visible aura bright rainbow light in a 10 ft radius around you. While within this aura, Willing Creatures are affected as if by the Affirm Gender spell and Creatures who utter hateful words against Queerfolk burst into rainbow flames. Triggering creatures must make a Dexterity saving throw, taking 2d10 radiant damage on a failed save, or half as much damage on a successful one.

Reigns of the Sun
Wondrous Item, Legendary (Requires Attunement)

This equestrian harness is made of white leather embroidered with golden thread, and bears with gilded findings and a diamond studded bit that sparkles through every color of the rainbow.

This harness contains three charges, and regains a single charge each time you fail a climax saving throw as a result of anal penetration. As an action on your turn, an you may expend a single charge to cast the Daylight spell without expending a spell slot.

Additionally, once per turn when you climax while wearing the harness, you may use a free action to expend a charge, casting Sunbeam at its lowest level without expending a spell slot.

The level these spells are cast at increases by one for each successive climax you have experienced without recovering. Spells cast using this item use charisma as their spellcasting ability.

Rings of Detachment
Wondrous Item (Cock Ring), Rare (Requires Attunement)

This oversized ring is made of interwoven bands of arcane brass. While wearing this ring around the base of your cock and balls, a command word can be spoken to magically detach your genitals from your body. Allowing it to be used as if it were an appropriately sized dildo. You still feel all sensation and stimulation applied to your detached genitals, and any conditions applied to the detached body part are also applied to you.

To re-join the detached cock, simply touch the two rings back together, and speak the command word again. The ring cannot be removed while it's magic is in effect.

Ring of Transparency
Wondrous Item (ring or piercing), Common

A platinum ring bearing an inscription in elvish. To those who know the language, it reads "Let that which is unseen be seen in all it's glory." Ring of Oracular Sensations
Wondrous Item (Ring Gag), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A Dragonsteel ring of Elven make, attached to a pair of jewelled leather straps. The ring itself is about three inches in diameter, and fits snugly within the mouth of a creature while the drake-leather straps hold it securely in place. While wearing this ring gag, the stimulation dice of your mouth increases to 1d8. Additionally, you instantly know the size and taste of any cock within 10 ft of you, and are aware of it's owner's skill in using it.

Curse: This gag is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the gag, and wear it whenever possible. While wearing the gag, your mouth gains the reciprocal property, and you become hyperaroused anytime you are within 10 ft of a cock other than your own.

Robe's of Genie's Power

Wondrous Item (harem robes), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

A set of Impossibly well crafted robes made from silk almost too ethereal to be real.

While attuned to these harem robes, you learn the Wish spell, and may cast it without expending material components or spell slots. After casting the spell in this way three times, you must wait a year and a day before you may do so again.

Curse: These robes are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. While cursed in this way, you become trapped within your Genie's vessel, and may only leave your vessel while it is held by another creature.

As long as you remain cursed, your class changes to Warlock, using the Genie Patron (TCE pg 73), and Pact of the Collar outlined in this handbook. Your level in this class is equal to your total character level in any other classes you had before donning these robes. The type of genie used for these features is determined at random.

Additionally you are infatuated by any creature who holds your Genie's Vessel, and cannot cast the wish spell except at their command. This creature becomes your master, and you cannot willingly disobey them, or act in opposition to their verbal commands. You can only have one master at a time. If a new creature picks up your Genie's Vessel, they become your master instead.

This Curse can only be broken by means of a wish spell, cast at your master's command. If the curse is broken, these robes vanish into the astral plane.

Robes of the Siren Dancer

Wondrous Item (Harem Robes), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A set of expensive undergarments consisting of fine silks and shear fabrics, hemmed with golden threat, and fitted with an array of softly jingling talismans.

While attuned to these harem robes, you gain proficiency in the performance skill if you do not already have it, or expertise if your are already proficient.

Additionally, once per day, you may use the lingerie to make a performance check in place of any other skill check.

Curse: These robes are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times.

While attuned to these robes, you compulsively sway your hips as if dancing to invisible music. Additionally, anytime you make on a performance check, you become hyperaroused for the next minute.

Rod of Asmodeus

Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

This blackened steel phallus is nearly three feet long and studded with a series of glowing stones set along the shaft like piercings.

This implement is sturdy enough to be used as a weapon in battle, and functions as a +3 greatclub. When you hit with a melee weapon attack using this greatclub, you may use a free action to record the damage dealt by the attack in one of the 12 gemstones piercings along the shaft's length - this does not reduce the damage dealt to the target.

When you succeed on a martial advance using with this shaft, you may expend a recorded strike as a reaction to increase the stimulation of the advance by an amount equal to the recorded damage of that strike.

Rose-Thorn Roller
Sexual Implement (Needle Roller), uncommon (Requires Attunement)

Made from the hardened spines of Rose-thorn needle blights, this exquisite wartenberg wheel carries a potent aphrodisiac in it's thorns.

A creature who gains stimulation from this wheel must succeed on a DC 15 constitution saving throw or become hyperaroused until the beginning of it's next turn.

Sexual Implement (Whip), Rare (Requires Attunement)

This elegant whip is braided together from the vines of a shambling mound, and bears a number of brilliant red flowers at it's hilt. It contains three charges, which recharge each morning at dawn, so long as the whip has been exposed to sunlight for at least 8 hours.

As an action on your turn, you may expend a single charge to cast the Charm Person spell at 1st level, or three charges to cast the Incite Lust spell at 3rd level

Runic Slave Bindings
Wondrous Item (Collar, cuffs, or Strapped binding), Uncommon

A these exquisite bindings are made from boiled Wurm-hide and lined with fine drowsilk, the bear a collection of adamantine rings for attachment points.

The bindings are effectively indestructible, and inscribed with arcane runes and enchanted so that only the creature who placed them on a target may undo the clasps and remove them.

Saddle of the Submissive Steed
Wondrous Item (Corset), Rare (requires attunement)

This supple corset of fine Auroch leather is fashioned in the form of a saddle, and comes with stirrups, bridle, and reigns.

While wearing this corset, the amount of weight you can lift, carry, or drag is doubled, and you may traverse as easily on all fours as if you were a horse or other beast of burden. While walking on all fours in this way, your base speed becomes 60 ft, and you may comfortably serve as a mount for any creature with a size category of medium or smaller.

Saint's Flogger
Sexual Implement (Flogger), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

Made of unicorn leather and tipped with golden studs, this flogger supposedly has an angel feather worked into the braid of the hilt, and the pain it inflicts is nothing compared to the release it offers when used well.

As a bonus on your turn, you may deal this implement's damage to yourself, storing this damage for later use, up to a maximum of 150 hit points.

As an action on your turn, you may strike an ally with the flogger, restoring a number of hit points equal to value of the damage stored, and applying radiant stimulation equal to the number of hit points restored. Should attunement be broken, stored damage is reduced to zero.

Sarcophagus of Spell Swallowing
Wondrous Item (Sarcophogus), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

Likely the perverse creation of some eldritch archmage, this chitinous black coffin is lined with wet, pink flesh and seeping aphrodisiacs. The twistedly erotic relief on it's front features two entwined lovers holding a series of 5 gemstones between their alien bodies.

A creature placed inside this device gains the hyperaroused condition, and must succeed on a dc 18 constitution saving throw at the start of each of it's turns, or receive 3d6 acid stimulation, as the supple wet flesh caresses every inch of it's body.. A creature trapped inside the sarcophagus may use it's action to make DC 28 strength check. On a success, the sarcophagus is forced open, allowing the creature to escape.

Each time a creature trapped within the sarcophagus climaxes, it's highest level spell slot is permanently expended, and stored within one of the 5 gemstones adorning the front of the sarcophagus. These gemstones can be removed, and used to cast spells using the stored spell slots, as if thy were cast by the trapped creature.

A creature who's spell slots have been expended in this way may only regain them through the use of a greater restoration spell, or similar magic.

Sarcophagus of Qetesh

Wondrous Item (Sarcophagus), Legendary Artifact

Long ago, in the time of ancient pharaohs, a cruel and devious advisor uncovered a relic capable of preserving the life of his master indefinitely. Seeking the power of the throne for himself, but knowing he would be struck down in anger if he were to hide this miraculous device from the pharaoh, he called for the darkest of magics to bind his own soul into the artifact.

This ancient sarcophagus is made of solid gold, and inlaid with reliefs in the strange and alien language of the precursors. When opened, a dense fog roils out from within, as if made of pure golden light, and creature placed within this sarcophagus can be miraculously healed of any injury, no mater how mortal the wound.

Resting in this golden sarcophagus for one hour allows a creature to gain the full benefits of a long rest, and recreates the effects of the Lesser Restoration spell. Resting in the sarcophagus for 8 hours or more recreates the effects of the Greater Restoration spell Resting in the sarcophagus for 12 hours or more recreates the effects of the Regeneration spell, and restores the creature to the prime of it's youth.

The sarcophagus can also be used to restore life to the dead, so long as at least half the creature's body can be placed inside. The amount of time it takes the sarcophagus to resurrect a dead creature is shown on the table below.

Time Dead	Cause of Death	Time required
1 Month or less	Injury	12 hours
1 Year or less	Injury or Disease	48 hours
1 Century or Less	Injury, Exhaustion, or Disease	1 week
2 centuries Less	Any cause other than old age	1 month
10 centuries or Less	Any cause	1 year

A creature resurrected by the sarcophagus is restored to the prime of it's life, and cured of any injuries or illnesses which plagued it in life.

Curse: This artifact is cursed by powerful dark magics, and contains the undead soul of the ancient litch Qetesh. Resting in the Sarcophagus exposes a creature to the corruptive influence of undead soul it contains.

Each time a creature rests within the sarcophagus, it must succeed on an addiction saving throw with a dc equal to 18 + the number of hours spent within the sarcophagus. On a failure, the creature becomes addicted to the effects of the sarcophagus. While addicted in this way, a creature regains only half the normal hit points from any source of healing other than the sarcophagus.

A creature who spends 4 hours or more resting within the sarcophagus is subject to the Dream spell, as cast by Qetesh. Qetesh will use this spell to tempt the creature with all forms of pleasures and vices, catering to their personal fantasies and fetishes. The target must succeed on a DC 30 wisdom saving throw, or be sexually pursued by the messenger's of Qetesh until they wake, gaining 3d6 psyschic stimulation.

A creature resurrected by the Sarcophagus becomes the unwitting host to the ancient litch's soul. They experience vivid hallucinations of Qetesh, and are infatuated by these hallucinations. As an action, once per day, Qetesh may attempt to control the creature directly, casting the Dominate Person Spell at it's lowest level with a spell save DC of 30. Each time Qetesh Dominates the target in this way, the level at which Qetesh may cast this spell increases by 1. If Qetesh successfully casts this spell at 9th level, the duration becomes permanent, and Qetesh claims the target's body as their own.

Scales of Draconic Vanity
Fetish Armor, Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

The shimmering chromatic scales of this frankly obscene armor shimmer like gemstones in the light. Dunning such scales for the first time is a truly transformative experience.

While wearing this armor, you gain a +2 bonus to AC, and to saving throws against spells and magical effects. Additionally, you gain proficiency in the Draconic language, and have advantage on persuasion checks made against creatures with draconic heritage, such as dragonborn and kobolds.

Curse: Attuning to this Armor permanently transforms your body into a more draconic visage. Your race becomes Dragonborn, and you gain all racial traits associated with your new race, losing the traits of your previous race.

While transformed in this way you gain a powerful compulsion to display your exquisite body, and have disadvantage on stealth checks or checks made to disguise yourself. Additionally, you have disadvantage on attack rolls and skill checks while wearing anything other than this shockingly revealing armor.

Scent of the Same
Consumable (perfume), Rare

Made from mindwitness extract and lustroot powder, this potent perfume is generally mixed with a few drops of your own your own sweat or sexual juices before use. Applying this perfume requires an action, and each bottle contains only enough for 1 use. For one hour after applying this perfume, you are surrounded by a 10 ft aura of homosexual attraction.

A creature of your same sex who enters or starts their turn within 10 ft of you must succeed on a DC 15 constitution saving throw, or become infatuated with you for the remainder of the Zone's duration. A creature may repeat this saving throw at the start of each of it's turns, ending the condition on a success.

A creature who succeeds on their saving throw against this perfume becomes immune to it's effects for the next 24 hours.

Seal of Gynomorphism
Wondrous item (Cloth Seal), rare

A unique form of erogenous seal, this reusable fabric seal is applied over the cock and balls of an andromorphic creature, providing a much more feminine experience.

As an action on your turn, you may apply this seal over the cock and balls of a willing or incapacitated creature, completely hiding these implements within a harmless demiplane, and replacing them with a pussy of equivalent size category. The target experiences all sensation applied to this pussy as if it were their own, including stimulation caused by the reciprocal property of the implement

Once applied, this seal magically holds in place until removed by the same creature who applied it, or until the enchantment is dispelled by way of Dispel Magic or similar magic. The seal can be re-used over and over, but is labeled as "hand wash only" - whatever that means

Seed of Seminal Pleasure
Consumable (seed), Uncommon

This small, unimpressive seed, is plucked from the milkwood tree and holds rather interesting properties. When ingested properly.

Placing this seed inside the rectum of a willing or restrained creature requires an action, and causes the seed to harmlessly take root and swell to roughly the size of a walnut. While rooted in place, the seed causes the following effects to the target:

- The Creature's ass is affected as if by the Lubrication cantrip.
- The Creature's cock (if it has one) is treated as a + 1 sexual implement
- The target gains vulnerability to all stimulation applied to it's ass, and has disadvantage on climax saving throws caused by anal stimulation.
- When the creature fails a climax saving throw, it automatically casts the Cumshot cantrip, without requiring verbal or somatic components

Once rooted, the seed requires a successful DC 15 Nature check to remove.

Sexual Implement, +1, +2, or +3
Sexual Implement (any), Uncommon (+1), Rare (+2), or Very Rare (+3)

You have a bonus to advance and stimulation rolls made with this magic implement. The bonus is determined by the implement's rarity.

Shaft of Angel's Mercy
Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A marble phallus of intricate and exacting detail, With golden wings wrapping around it's base. The tip is adorned with a single pearlescent gemstone.

This shaft functions as both a +1 sexual implement and a +1 spellcasting focus. Direct advances made using this implement deal radiant stimulation in place of their normal stimulation type, and any stimulation dealt using this implement is also added to a pool of hit points, which resets each morning at dawn.

When you use this implement to cast a spell that restores hit points, you may restore a number of additional hit points to that creature, up to the maximum amount remaining in this pool.

Shaft of Detection
Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), common

A hand-worked glass rod, perfectly moulded to resemble an erect phallus, and so clear it as to be nearly invisible. While touching this shaft, you can see a faint aura around any visible creature or construct in the area who's current arousal is greater than 0. The greater the creature's arousal, the more vibrant the aura.

This implement holds a single charge which is restored each time the implement is used to bring a creature to climax. As an action on your turn, you may expend this charge to cast Detect Sexuality without verbal or somatic components.

Shaft of Shattering Vibrations
Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), Rare (Requires Attunement)

The powerful vibrations produced by this gemstone shaft expand outward from within, and hardly care to stop with a single creature.

While penetrated by this Vibrating shaft, you deal an additional 1d8 thunder damage with melee attacks, and an additional 1d8 thunder stimulation with sexual advances.

Additionally, once between long rests, when you climax while penetrated by this shaft, you may use your reaction to cast the Shatter spell at its lowest level, without expending a spell slot. This spell uses charisma as its spellcasting ability.

Shaft of the Olympians
Sexual Implement (Dildo Oversized), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

A massive golden cock, complete with knott and balls carved from Olympian Marble. It is rumoured to have been crafted by Hephaestus himself to help Zeus appease his wife, only for Hera to spurn her husband in favour of the enchanted toy.

This dildo serves as a +3 sexual implement. While attuned to this dildo, the size category of your natural implements increases by 1, and your Inhibition becomes 10. Additionally, you have advantage on saving throws against the effects of overstimulation, and to recover from incapacitation caused by climaxing.

Shared Sensation Piercings
Wondrous Item (Ring), Very Rare (Requires Attunement by Two or more Creatures.)

A set of silver piercings made to resemble lovers embracing. One is crafted of the finest silver, the other of exquisite white gold.

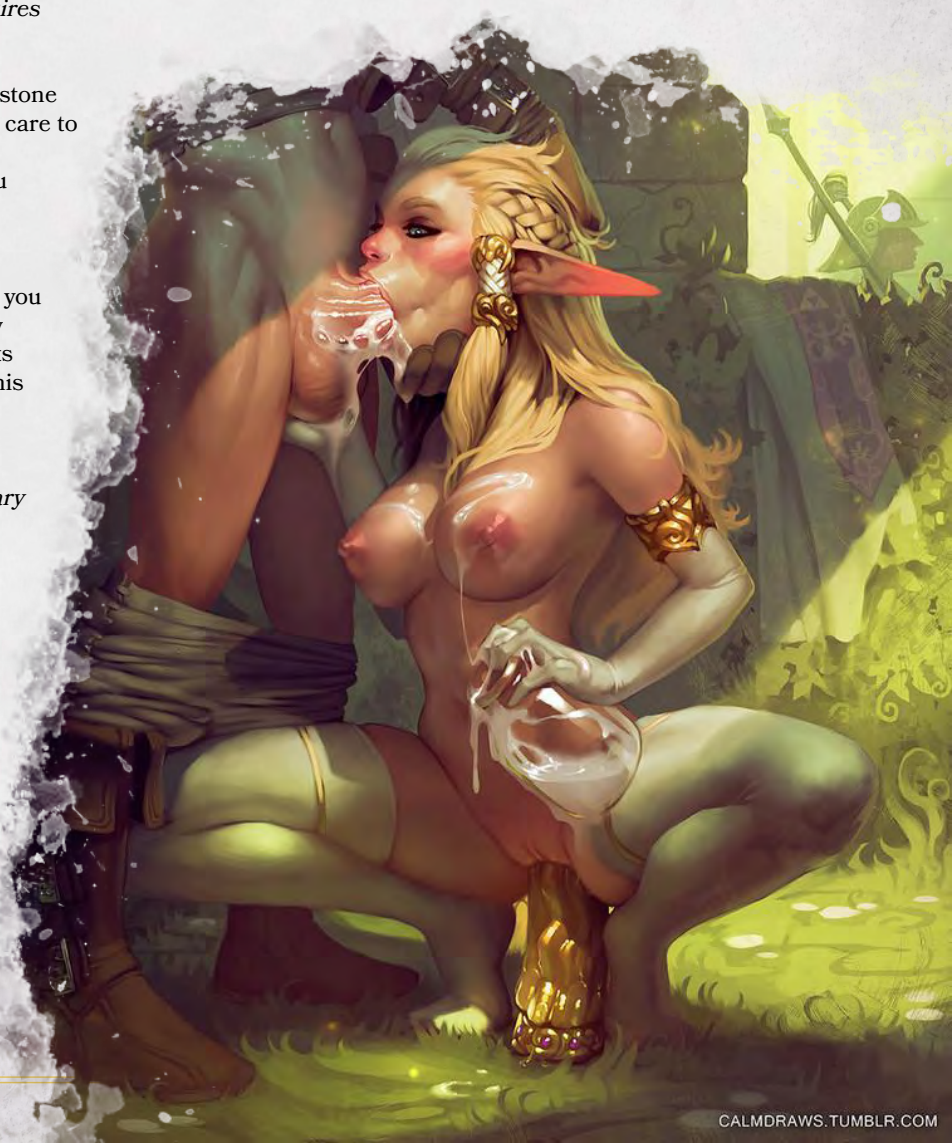

While these Piercings are worn by at least two attuned creatures, all damage and stimulation dealt to one creature is split evenly between all attuned creatures. And all effects applied to one creature are applied to all attuned creatures. Each creature makes saving throws against these effects separately, ending the effect for themselves on a success.

Shield of Edger's Resolve
Shield, Rare (Requires Attunement)

This Stalwart shield provides protection from harm so long as you can handle the pleasure.

While attuned to this shield, whenever a creature within 5 ft of you is targeted by an attack or spell, you may use your reaction to interpose yourself in their place. You immediately swap places with the triggering target, and gain a +3 bonus to AC against the triggering attack. If the attack hits, any damage that would be taken is instead dealt to you as stimulation. If the attack fails, you instead gain the hyperaroused condition until the end of your next turn.

Curse: This shield is cursed, and it's magic functions only so long as you are able to resist climax. If you climax while attuned to this shield, It's magic ceases to function for the next 24 hours.

Sigil of Flavors
Wondrous Item (Tattoo), Common (Requires Attunement)

A popular form of tattoo, usually of a flavourful fruit or candy, "Flavormarks" , as they are often known, are Applied using magic inks and a needle made from the beak of a hummingbird. While attuned to this tattoo, the flavor and scent of your body and sexual juices becomes that of the depicted item.

You may attune to multiple Flavormarks as if they were a single magic item. You or your partner may choose between the various flavors by tracing a finger over the associated tattoo as a free action. Mixing multiple flavors is not recommended.

Sigil of Visibility
Wondrous Item (Tattoo), Common

A faintly glowing sigil of magic, usually tattooed over the womb, or stamped along the base of the spine

Tracing this sigil with your finger causes it to activate, making a portion of your body transparent enough to see any item or implement inside you.

Silks of the Nine-Tailed Trickster
Wondrous Item (Lingerie), Common (Requires Attunement)

This set of fine silk l comes complete with tufted ears and nine fluffy tails. Available in a variety of colors, both natural and brilliant. While wearing this Lingerie, you gain access to the dancing lights and minor illusion cantrips. Additionally, while wearing this lingerie, you may use an action on your turn to dismiss one of these tails, and cast any illusion spell of 5th level or lower. Once all nine tails have been dismissed, this lingerie loses it's magical effects.

Curse: This lingerie is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times. Anytime you cast a spell or cantrip of the illusion school, you become hyperaroused for the next minute

Sinner's Sarcophagus
Wondrous Item (Cage), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

First commissioned by The White Queen as a means of forcibly "purifying" the obscene, these cruel cages are made of straps of wrought iron riveted together in a roughly humanoid shape, such that the prisoner can be immobilized, but still easily accessible for torture.

Each strap is lined with sharp silvered spikes designed to dig painfully into the flesh of anyone who cannot keep their lustful nature in check, while leaving them otherwise exposed. The sadistic torture devices have since found new uses in the hands of those they were meant to punish.

A creature locked inside this metal cage gains the paralyzed and denied conditions, and is affected as if by the spell antimagic circle. Each time the trapped creature gains stimulation from any source, they take piercing damage equal to the same amount. The cage can be forced open with a DC 24 strength check. Each time this check is made, the trapped creature takes piercing damage equal to the result of the save, regardless of success.

Siren Slime Jelly
Consumable (Potion), Very Rare

Collected from rare Siren Slimes native only to the most lecherous of dungeons, This pink jelly tastes of strawberries and honey. A creature who consumes this delicious jam transforms into an ooze-like form, gaining the Myxapia racial template. This transformation lasts for 1d4 hours per serving. Each Jar of this jelly contains three servings.

Curse: Consuming more than 6 servings of this jelly between long rests causes the transformation to become permanent. A permanent transformation can only be reversed by way of a true polymorph spell or greater magic.

Socks of Feline Grace
Wondrous Item (Socks), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A pair of adorable thigh-high socks, with cute little paw-pads that mimic the toes of a graceful feline friend.

While attuned to these socks and not wearing any other footwear, you may use charisma in place of dexterity when making stealth or acrobatics checks.

Curse: These socks are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you become unwilling to part with these socks keeping them within reach at all times. Each time you fail a climax saving throw, you must roll a d20. On a roll of 1, you gain one of the following traits:

- You grow a pair of cat ears which are highly sensitive to touch.
- You grow a feline tail, which functions as an erogenous zone.
- Your hands and feet become paw-like, giving you disadvantage on slight of hand checks
- Your eyes become catlike, granting you darkvision out to a range of 60 ft.
- You grow a set of feline whiskers
- Your voice becomes feminine and adorable

If you roll a 1 and already have each of these traits, Your speech becomes obnoxiously cute and childish, and you cannot speak without making cat-related puns or ending your sentences with meows or other stereotypical feline noises.

Sorcerer's Beads
Sexual Implement (Pleasure Beads), Very Rare (requires attunement by a sorcerer)

13 identical beads of fine gemstone adorn this golden chain, each inscribed with an arcane glyph that glows when filled with sufficient magic.

While inserted inside an attuned creature, these beads slowly collect arcane power, gaining one charge for each hour they are worn, up to a maximum of 13.

As an action while wearing the beads, you may remove them, releasing the stored charges and gaining a number of sorcery points equal the number of charges releases. If you do so, you also gain force stimulation equal to 1d10 per charge released.

Spidersilk Shibari
Wondrous Item, Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

An intricate harness of silk knotwork, spun by Madam Web herself, who very much enjoyed displaying the beauty of her efforts, in craft and dominance.

Properly applying this bondage harness to a creature requires 10 minutes, and leaves the target both paralyzed and hyperaroused until the harness is removed.

Sphere of Silence
Wondrous Item (Ball Gag), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

A golden sphere of Elven make adorns this braided leather strap. Despite the metal's usual properties, the sphere is soft and malleable to the touch.

When fitted within a creature's mouth, the sphere reshapes itself to perfectly cover the wearer's mouth, preventing them from vocalizing except in muffled moans. So long as the gag is worn in this way, it produces a constant trickle of potent aphrodisiac, causing the wearer to remain hyperaroused.

Star-Mother's Blessing

Sexual Implement (Double Sided Dildo), Legendary (Requires Attunement by a biological female)

A thick eldritch tentacle resembling a veiny, muscular cock and throbbing with corruptive power. This dildo may be equipped as if it were a natural implement, and serves as a +3 ovipositor While equipped in this way. You experience all stimulation applied to this cock as if it were your own, and it is capable of producing semen, and impregnating other creatures. This ovipositor has an initial size category equal to your own, and increases in size category each time you climax wile attuned to it.

When you bring a creature other than yourself to climax using this implement, the target must succeed on a DC 21 charisma saving throw or become infatuated by you until it completes a long rest, or until the condition is removed by means of a calm emotions, spell, or similar magic.

Curse: This dildo is actually a living creature from the deep reaches of the far realm, and becoming attuned to it grants the creature a curse-like influence over you. As long as you remain under the creature's influence, you are infatuated by the creature, and subjected to the it's telepathic commands and suggestions.

When you climax using this dildo, you gain the uninhibited condition, rather than the incapacitated condition for 1d4 rounds. If you climax inside another creature while attuned to this dildo, that creature must immediately make a DC 21 pregnancy saving throw. On a failure, the target is impregnated with a series of soft gelatinous eggs, which mature into 1d4 tiny aberrations over the course of the next 48 hours. The form and nature of these aberrations are decided by your DM, and may include additional instances of this item.

Stockings of Fragile Radiance

Wondrous Item (Hosiery), uncommon. (Requires Attunement)

These luminous silk stocking never fail to draw the admiration of others, but leave you vulnerable to brute-force attacks. While wearing these stockings, you may use a bonus action on your turn to cast the Light cantrip, targeting your legs.Additionally, you learn the Enthrall spell, and may cast it once between long rests without expending a spell slot or material components. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell

Curse: While wearing these stockings, you have disadvantage on skill checks made to decipher unfamiliar languages, and gain vulnerability to bludgeoning damage.

Stone of Dwarven Stamina

Sexual Implement (Plug), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A large plug crafted from polished Dwarven stone, and inscribed with a series of 8 powerful runes. While wearing this plug, you are immune to the effects of overstimulation, and cannot be incapacitated by climax climaxing.

Curse: Each time you fail a climax saving throw while wearing this plug, the plug gains a single charge, up to a maximum of 8. Removing this plug causes all stored charges to be expended, causing to you to immediately experience 1 climax for each charge expended.

Succubus Venom

Consumable (Poison), Uncommon

A unique poison produced by many kinds of erotic fiend, such as succubi or erinyes. It comes in two forms, and is frequently use as a recreational or date-rape drug

Contact: As an action, a creature can coat a surface or sexual implement in this poison, which remains potent until touched or washed off. Sword of Lesbians
Weapon (any sword), Legendary (requires attunement by a woman)

This expertly crafted blade is forged from dwarven steel and fitted with gemstones the envy of a dragon, and Glows with dim light in the presence of lesbian creatures. This sword serves as +3 Magic Weapon, and extends this bonus to any lesbian allies within 30 ft of you. Attacks made with this weapon deal radiant stimulation, rather than damage, to any creature who identifies as female.

Tail of Sensations
Wondrous Item (Plug), Common

An enchanted plug featuring an expertly furred tail, reminiscent of any number of fluffy creatures.

While wearing this plug, the tail becomes as if part of your own body, able to be moved and felt as if real. The tail is considered an erogenous zone, and direct sexual advances targeting the tail deal an additional 1d4 stimulation of their normal type.

Talona's Tail
Wondrous Item, Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

A slim crimson tentacle with a flared, bulb-shaped base, Talona's tail is a lesser-known infernal symbiote that attaches itself to the base of a creature's spine and serves as an additional prehensile limb in return for feeding off the life energy of the host.

While attuned to this item, you gain a fiendish tail. This tail serves as a +1 natural implement and can be used carry or interact with objects weighing no more than 5 pounds.

Curse: This infernal tail is corruptive to creatures not from the infernal plane. A creature other than a teifling who attunes to this item must roll a d20 each time it completes a long rest. On a roll of 1, it gains one of the following infernal traits:

- You grow a pair of twisted demonic horns
- Your skin turns a fiendish red hue
- Your eyes burn with the light of infernal flames
- Infernal Runes glow along your skin
- Hellish tones echo in your voice

If you roll a 1 and already have each of these traits, your race instead changes to teifling, and your existing racial traits are replaced by those of the teifling race.

Taskmaster's Armor of Command
Armor (Leather), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

An overblown array of cheap leather and far too many belts, this armor has been enchanted to make a creature seem more powerful and imposing than they actually are. Curse: This armor is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the armor, keeping it within reach at all times.

While you remain cursed, your wisdom score is reduced by 2, and you automatically fail all insight checks.

Tentacle Ammunition
Ammunition (Any), Rare

On a hit, this ammunition bursts into a mass of grasping tentacles. The target must succeed on a DC 18 dexterity saving throw, or be restrained by the tentacles, and take 2d8 bludgeoning stimulation. A target restrained in this way takes 1d6 acid stimulation at the start of each of it's turns. As an action on it's turn, a creature may attempt to escape these tentacles by succeeding on a DC 18 strength or dexterity check.

Tentacled Maiden
Wondrous Item (Cabinet), Rare

This strange metal sarcophagus is crafted in a lewd imitation of the dreaded Iron maid, but contains perhaps an even more perverse form of torture. The inner surface of the maiden is covered by all manner of groping, lecherous tentacles, eager to molest and violate anyone unfortunate enough to be placed inside.

A creature locked inside this device gains the denied condition, and must succeed on a dc 18 constitution saving throw at the start of each of its turns, or receive 2d6 acid stimulation, as the tentacles squirm hungrily over every inch of it's body, careful to never allow it release. A creature trapped inside the Maiden may use it's action to make DC 28 strength check. On a success, the device is forced open, allowing the creature to escape.

Tentacles of the Twisting Deep
Sexual Implement (Dildo), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

Resembling three tentacles intertwined to form an enormous phallus, this obsidian statue shimmers with a dark iridescence like the sheen of black oil. The inky phallus emanates dark power, and fills the air with ominous chanting when used.

The dildo contains three charges, as noted by starry black gemstones at the base of each tentacle. While attuned to this implement, you may use an action on your turn to expend one of these charges, bringing the intertwined tentacles to life.

The dildo transforms into three slick black tendrils, each of which functions as a +2 tentacle under your control. These tentacles last for up to 10 minutes or until you dismiss them or as a bonus action.

Exposing this dildo to magical darkness for 10 minutes restores a single charge to the item.

Thoughtstealer
Sexual Implement (Dildo), Legendary (Requires Attunement)

The shaft of this glowing cock slowly pulses through an array of impossible colors, making it near impossible to look away. Advances made with this dildo deal psychic stimulation instead of their normal damage type, as well as an additional 1d8 psychic stimulation to any creature who is currently charmed or enthralled.

When a creature is brought to climax using this dildo, it must succeed on a DC 17 Charisma saving throw, or have it's intelligence score reduced by 1. This effect lasts for 24 hours, or until you choose to dispell it as free action on your turn

Thunderous Vibrastone
Wondrous item (Ammunition?), Rare (Requires Attunement)

This Small stone appears to be little more than a polished river-rock, worn smooth by time, but it holds a thunderous secret. This stone may be used as a +1 Sexual implement, with a Simulation dice of 2d4. All stimulation dealt by this implement is dealt as thunder stimulation.

As a bonus action on you turn, you may touch this stone to any weapon with the loading property. Until the end of your next turn, the weapon ignores the loading property and consumes no ammunition. While affected in this way, any damage dealt by the weapon is instead dealt as thunder stimulation.

The Tome of Imps
Tome, Legendary (Requires Attunement by a spellcaster)

A shadowy tome with an infernal glow, it's gilded pages swim with colorful and lifelike depictions of the lecherous fiends it was designed to summon.

This fiendish spellbook contains 5 charges, which are restored each time it's attuned wielder climaxes. While attuned to this tome, a you gain the Legacy of Phlegethos racial feature, as well as those features associated with the Cult of Fierna (MToF). As an action on your turn, You may expend 1 charge from this tome to summon forth an Imp, which loyally and enthusiastically obeys your commands.

Curse: This tome is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the tome, keeping it within reach at all times.

Each time you use this tome to summon an imp, roll 1d20. On a result of 1, your Inhibition is permanently reduced by 1.

If your Inhibition is reduced to -6 or below in this way, you become bound to the tome instead of attuned, and your race becomes goblin, with the addition of the concubi racial template. A creature bound in this way is infatuated by any attuned spellcaster currently in possession of the tome. An attuned spellcaster may summon any creature bound to the tome by expending 5 charges.

A creature may be released from their bondage to this tome by way of a 3rd level of higher remove curse spell, but only true polymorph or similar magic may return a transformed creature to it's original form, restoring it's inhibition to normal

These priestly robes insure that modesty and humility never place themselves in the way of honesty. While attuned to these robes, you may cast the Zone of Truth spell once between long rests, without expending a spell slot or material components. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Curse: These robes are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the robes, keeping them within reach at all times.

While cursed in this way, you are incapable of speaking a deliberate lie, and automatically fail bluff checks. Additionally, when asked a question about yourself, you must succeed on a DC 18 Charisma saving throw, or answer honestly and in detail.

Vestments of Hare's Luck
Wondrous Item (Clothes), Rare (Requires Attunement)

A set of rabbit-inspired clothes enchanted to grant you luck in all things. They do the job well - perhaps too well in some cases. While wearing a this lingerie, you gain the benefits of the Lucky feat.

Curse: These clothes are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed in this way, you are unwilling to part with the robes, wearing them whenever possible. You become hyperaroused and hyperfertile while wearing the lingerie.

Vestments of Noble Chastity
Wondrous Item (Robes), Very Rare (Requires Attunement)

These modest robes and habit bear a skilled embroidery that matches markings found throughout the ruined cathedral of desires, deep within the lewd dungeon. They bestow an inner peace while worn. Curse: These robes are cursed, and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the robes, keeping them within reach at all times. You gain the hyperaroused condition while you are not wearing these robes. While you remain cursed, you are physically incapable of pleasuring yourself, and are immune to any stimulation you apply to yourself through any means, but not to stimulation applied by other creatures. Each time you climax while wearing these robes, your natural inhibition is permanently reduced by 1. This penalty remains even if the curse is broken or removed.

Vial of Liquid Slavery
Consumable (Body Oil), Rare

This oily black substance squirms within its bottle, seemingly eager to be released - or to release others from the burdens of freedom. As an action, the substance within this bottle may be applied to a willing or restrained creature, forcing the target creature to make a DC 21 charisma saving throw.

On a failure, a creature is affected as if by the Dominate Person spell for the next hour, and the oil spreads over the target's body like a living thing, encasing them in a skin-tight but breathable membrane.

Each additional bottle applied to the creature before the effect ends causes the duration of the effect to be doubled. Using more than 6 bottles on a single target in this way causes the effect to become permanent.

Vibrating Implement
Sexual Implement (Any), Common

A vibrating implements are a minor marvel of gnomish engineering, and uses magic crystal oscillators to produce a variety of pulses and vibrations during use for a uniquely stimulating experience. All stimulation dealt using the implement is dealt as thunder stimulation, instead of it's normal stimulation type. When you make a sexual advance against a creature using this implement and score a critical hit, you deal an additional 2d6 thunder stimulation.

Vibrating Cock-Ring
Wondrous Item (Cock Ring), Uncommon (Requires Attunement)

An ornate Mythril band designed to fit snugly around a creature's cock and balls. It hums with soft magical energy, and once affixed to a creature by way of a nearly invisible clasp, it can only be removed by speaking the command word inscribed on the inner band of the ring.

While wearing this ring you gain advantage on climax saving throws, and each successful climax saving throw causes the ring to vibrate more intensely, granting a cumulative +1 bonus (maximum +3) to stimulation checks made using the implement it is worn upon.

Virgin's Belt of Seduction
Wondrous Item (Chastity Belt), Uncommon (requires attunement)

An ornately crafted mithril chastity belt, and lined with supple black leather: the metal is cut in such an intricate lace pattern this it could be mistaken for the real thing.

While wearing this belt, you gain advantage on all skill checks made to seduce or sexually proposition other creatures, regardless of attraction or sexual orientation. Additionally, once per day, as an action on your turn, you may cast the Enthrall Spell without expending a spell slot. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Curse: This lingerie is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unable to remove the belt by any means, and do not add your proficiency bonus to sexual advances or saving throws.

Violet Wand
Wand, Uncommon

A strange device made up of a carved wooden handle and a hollow glass chamber, in which elemental lightning arcs with violet hues. This wand serves as a +1 arcane focus, and produces a subtle electrical charge that can be used for sexual stimulation, and transmitted through any conductive implement.

A violet wand can be attached to any electrically or magically conductive implement, causing the implement to deal 1d6 lightning stimulation, in addition to it's normal stimulation.

Voluminous Robes of Imperial Comfort
Wondrous Item (Robes), Uncommon

These exquisite silk robes are more luxurious and comfortable than anything you have ever experienced. While wearing these robes and you are always luxuriously comfortable. You Gain resistance to fire and cold Damage, and ignore the effects of environmental conditions such as extreme heat or cold.

Curse: These robes are cursed and becoming attuned to them extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the lingerie, keeping it within reach at all times. While wearing these robes, the robes themselves become invisible to all creatures other than you. No proof or act of persuasion can convince you that this is the case, regardless of how compelling.

Wand of Echoes
Sexual Implement (Dildo), Legendary (Requires Attunement by a spellcaster)

This Expertly carved dildo glows with faint glimmers of the pleasure it has given to others, and may be used as a +3 arcane focus. When you use this dildo to bring a creature other than yourself to climax, you may use a reaction to store an echo of the climax within the dildo.

The dildo can hold up to 7 such echoes at a time, and grants a bonus to your spell save DC and spell attack modifier equal to the number of echoes stored.

When you make a sexual advance using the dildo, you may choose to expend all echoes stored within the wand, forcing the target to make an constitution saving throw with a DC equal to 17 + the number of echoes expended. On a failure, the target climaxes instantly. The dildo cannot store echoes from climaxes triggered in this way.

Wand of Eldritch Lightning
Sexual Implement (Phallic Shaft), Very Rare (Requires Attunement by a Spellcaster)

A seemingly ancient rod of strange and alien design. This Implement may be used as a +2 arcane focus. Any damage or stimulation caused by the wand or a spell cast using it may be dealt as psychic damage or stimulation instead of its normal type.

Additionally, this phallic shaft contains 9 charges. You may use an action on your turn to expend a number of charges and cast the spell Witch Bolt at a level equal to the number of charges spent. When cast in this way, the spell deals stimulation in place of damage. Intelligence is the spellcasting ability for this spell.

The wand regains a single charge each time the attuned wielder succeeds on a climax saving throw.

Warding Lingerie

Wondrous Item (Lingerie or fetish armor), Rarity Varies (Requires Attunement)

Not only is this lingerie beautiful, it's also nearly indestructible, and protects it's wearer against damage

Rarity	AC
Uncommon	12 + your dexterity modifier
Rare	15 + your dexterity modifier (maximum of 2)
Very Rare	18
Legendary	24

despite leaving nearly all of their skin exposed

While you aren't wearing armor, this lingerie grants you an Armor Class depending on the lingerie's rarity, as shown below. You can use a shield and still gain this benefit.

Wardrobe of Holding

Wondrous Item (Wardrobe), Uncommon

This large enchanted wardrobe is even bigger on the inside than it is on the outside, and can hold up to 200 unique outfits or sets of clothing, regardless of size or weight. The wardrobe can hold only clothing, armor, and other wearable items. If the wardrobe is overloaded, smashed, or broken, it ruptures and is destroyed, and its Contents are scattered in the Astral Plane.

Wayward Cuckold's Belt

Wondrous Item (Chastity Belt), Uncommon

This Ornately crafted chastity device is designed to fit on a man or woman, locking their genitals cleanly away sensationless extradimensional space, so that even the most promiscuous of pets is unable to make use of their own equipment. Once placed upon a creature, arcane locks bind the belt permanently in place until unlocked by the same creature who locked it. If you place the belt upon yourself, it instead becomes permanently locked until unlocked using a Dispel Magic spell or similar magic.

While wearing a cuckold's belt, a creature's genitals are inaccessible and cannot be used as a sexual implement or targeted by sexual acts. In their place, a portal opens on the exterior of the belt to an extraplanar pocket pussy, which can be used in place of your own natural implements. The creature experiences no sensation or stimulation applied to this pussy.

Placing a cuckold's belt inside an extradimensional space created by a Bag of Holding, Portable Hole, or similar item instantly destroys both items and opens a gate to the Plane of Perversion. The gate originates where the one item was placed inside the other. Any creature within 10 feet of the gate is sucked through it to a random Location on the Plane of Perversion. The gate then closes. The gate is one-way only and can't be reopened.

Wearable Portal

Wondrous Item (Panties/Mask), Common (Requires Attunement)

A seemingly mundane bit of silk with an arcane symbol secretly sewn into the lining. Tracing the unique symbol embroidered into these panties on a surface opens a small portal just large enough to access the wearer's genitals/mouth. This portal lasts for 1 hour, or until the creature who opened it uses a bonus action to close it. This portal cannot be opened if the wearer is on another plane, or if another portal is already open.

Were-beast's Tail

Wondrous Item (Plug), Uncommon

An enchanted plug featuring an expertly furred tail, reminiscent of any number of fluffy creatures.

While wearing this plug, you gain the bestiathrope racial template, as determined by the beast the tail is from. While transformed in this way The tail is considered an erogenous zone, and direct sexual advances targeting the tail deal an additional 1d6 stimulation of their normal type.

Curse: Each time a creature climaxes while wearing this plug, it must make a DC 16 constitution saving throw. On a failure, the transformation becomes permanent.

Withering Cage
Wondrous Item (Cock Cage), Rare (requires attunement)

This pretty little cage is designed to fit even the largest of implements, and save the wearer from the embarrassing release of a true orgasm.

Once attuned to this cages, you can place it on any creature of your choice. A new creature cannot attune to the cage until you end your attunement. The cage magically resizes to fit over the cock and balls of any sized creature, and continues to re-size itself as the creature's natural implements shrink.

Any time the creature wearing this cage would fail a climax saving throw, you may use your reaction to cast the Ruin Orgasm spell, targeting the creature. When cast in this way the spell uses Charisma as it's spellcasting ability, and does not require a spell slot or material components

Each time you cast Ruin Orgasm using this cage, roll 1d20. On a roll of 1, the size of the target's cock and balls is reduced by 1 implement size, to a minimum size category of tiny.

Witch's Gun-heels
Wondrous Item (boots), Rare

These fashionable stiletto heels are designed for battle, and conceal a deadly secret.

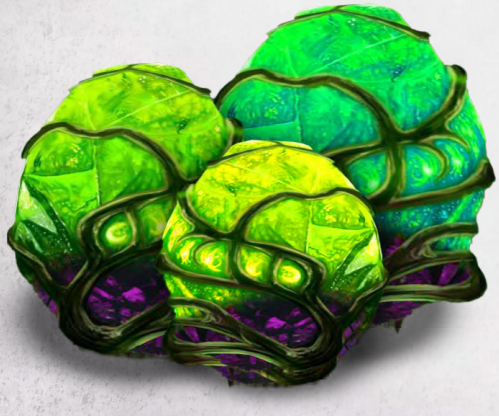

These boots may be used as a +1 spellcasting implement, and contain 3 charges, which are restored each time the attuned wearer climaxes. Once per round, while wearing these heels, you may expend a single charge to cast the Eldritch Blast cantrip as a bonus action.

Witchweave Implement
Arcane Focus (any pact implement), common

This arcane focus has been imbued with protective magic by your patron keeping you safe from both discovery and harm.

While wearing or holding this implement, you may use a bonus action on your turn to magically transform your clothes and appearance in a way that reflects your patron. While transformed in this way, Your AC is equal to your spell save DC, and Creatures who have not seen your transformation must succeed on an insight check against your spell save DC to recognize you

This transformation lasts for up to an hour, or until you choose to end it as a bonus action.

Xio Pearl
Consumable (gemstone), Legendary

This strange glowing orb is rightfully the size of a fist, and naturally serves as the living arcane core of a Xio chrysalis, filled with enough arcane energy to keep an infant Xio alive for centuries. Such pearls are deeply sought after, and rarely obtained through humane means.

Xio consume this pearl to fuel their first bonding, so the only way to obtain one is from the broodmother herself, or by poaching them from unbonded Xio.

This organic gemstone can be used to cast a single 9th level spell without need for spell slots or material components. Alternatively, it can be drained of spell points more slowly, to cast multiple spells, as per the alternate spellcasting rules on DMG pg 288. Spells cast using a Xio pearl have a Spell save DC of 19, and a Spell attack Modifier of +11.

Miscellaneous Curses A-Z

Most adventurers avoid cursed items like the plague. However, adventurers in a lewd setting may be more willing to expose themselves to such magic, especially if those curses are lewd. The curses below are intended to be interchangeably applied to any item - lewd or otherwise - to add an extra bit of horny fun to your player's experience.

They might also serve as fun options for the bestow curse spell. The levels listed for each curse represent the suggested level at which bestow curse or remove curse must be cast to apply or remove the curse.

Items which have these curses applied to them gain the following property:

Curse: This item is cursed, and becoming attuned to it extends the curse to you. As long as you remain cursed, you are unwilling to part with the item, keeping it within reach at all times.

Animate Load
Lvl 4 curse

Your cum takes on a life of it's own, eagerly seeking out nearby creatures to accost with sexual advances..

Each time you fail a climax saving throw, you summon a Cum Sprite. This sprite uses the same ingame statistics as a mud Mephit (MM pg216), however any damage done by this sprite is instead treated as stimulation. This sprite remains until it is reduced to 0 HP, or forced to make a climax saving throw of it's own.

Awaken Something
Lvl 3 curse

You uh... Didn't know you were into that.

While cursed in this way, you gain a single fetish from the Fetishes section of this document. You and the DM work together to determine what fetish is gained.

Barren Loins
Lvl 3 curse

This curse strikes your seed or womb barren, preventing you from ever bearing children.

While cursed in this way, you become infertile, and have advantage on saving throws against becoming pregnant through nontraditional means.

Bearer of Loads
Lvl 5 curse

You find yourself helplessly aroused by the feeling of a hot load on your skin.

While cursed in this way, whenever a creature cums on your bare skin, you gain 1d10 acid stimulation, and become nymphomanic for the next minute.

Blowjob Mastery
Lvl 3 curse

You are the best at giving head. Everyone knows. ...Even when you really wish they didn't.

While cursed in this way, the stimulation dice of your mouth becomes 1d12, instead of 1d4. Unfortunately, any creature who sees you instantly knows of your prowess with oral sex, even if they do not want to.

Bravo's Bravado
Lvl 3 curse

You are the best at sex. Everyone says so. Even if they disagree.

While cursed in this way, you become brazenly confident of your sexual prowess, regardless of your actual skill. Additionally, any creature you have sex with describes the encounter as "the best sex of their life" regardless of their actual experience.

Broken Tongue
Lvl 4 curse

Despite your intelligence, your speech becomes broken and difficult, as if speaking a language you barely know.

While cursed in this way you become unable to speak common clearly, substituting words from other languages they may know, and imparting a thick foreign accent, regardless of your origin. You have disadvantage on charisma checks that rely on spoken word.

Clinging Arousal
Lvl 4 curse

A thick aura of deep arousal clings to you, making it difficult to resist the wiles of others.

While cursed in this way, you become permanently hyperaroused, and have disadvantage on saving throws against the charmed and infatuated conditions, as well as persuasion checks made to seduce you.

Cock of the Beast
Lvl 4 curse

You feel something beastly growing between your legs, and a set of powerful urges to go with it!

While cursed in this way, your cock becomes that of a random monster, chosen by the DM, or if you do not already have a cock, you gain one. The size category of your new cock is determined by the size category of the monster. You experience strongly predatory sexual urges originating from this cock, and feel a constant compulsion to pleasure it, often using the bodies of those around you.

Cuckold's Curse
Lvl 5 curse

Despite your desperation, your body refuses to cooperate in sexual acts, forcing you to do little more than watch.

While cursed in this way, you cannot make direct sexual advances against yourself or other creatures, and you gain no stimulation from direct sexual advances made against you. Instead, when a creature within 10 ft of you that you can see gains stimulation from a direct sexual advance, you must succeed on a DC 15 Inhibition saving throw, or gain psychic stimulation equal to the same amount.

Cupid's Kiss
Lvl 5 curse

Throwing caution to the wind, you fall deeply and hopelessly in love with the next creature you see.

While cursed in this way, you become intoxicated and infatuated with the next sexually compatible creature you see. You treat this creature as the love of your life, and speak of them with the utmost affection. You are completely unaware that you are under the effects of this curse.

Cursed Doll
Lvl 9 curse

Your body becomes intricately entwined with that of an arcane poppet. You must take care to keep it safe from those who would use it against you.

When you gain this curse, Poppet of Dominion appears in your possession. This poppet is permanently bound to you, and cannot be un-bound until this curse is removed or broken.

Cursed Form
Lvl 6 curse

Your body shifts before your eyes, trapping you in a body that is not your own

While cursed in this way, your race changes to that of another humanoid, if resurrected by a Reincarnate spell. The DM determines your new race, either by rolling randomly from a list of available races, or choosing any race native to your current plane of existence.

Curse of Dust
Lvl 8 curse

Your clothes and armor turn to dust with each strike.

While cursed in this way, Each time you are critically hit by an attack or spell, a single piece of your armor or clothing is magically Disintegrated. Nonmagical items affected in this way are reduced to a fine grey dust. Magical items are instead reduced to an amount of residuum of equivalent value. This curse remains, even if the item it is attached to is destroyed.

Explosive Climax
Lvl 4 curse

Your climaxes are far too powerful to remain quiet, and frequently leave everyone involved a total mess..

While cursed in this way, whenever you fail a climax saving throw, you climax loudly, alerting all creatures within 100ft to your presence and location and producing 1d4 liters of cum. Additionally, after climaxing, you are incapacitated for twice the number of recovery dice spent.

Fartouched Wardrobe
Lvl 5 curse

You find your clothes animated by lustful energies from the far realm; groping and touching you as if suddenly alive. This curse primarily effects clothing and armor, and if applied to a creature, instead extends to the clothes or armor they are currently wearing, or the next set of clothes or armor they put on. Equipment affected by this curse transforms into an alien creature form the far realms

Each time you start a turn below half your maximum arousal, these clothes make a sexual advance against you using either pseudopods or tentacles, using a dexterity modifier of 10 for the advance roll, and dealing acid stimulation in place of the normal stimulation of these implements. Removing equipment that has been transformed in this way requires a DC 20 streght check.

Healer's Lust
Lvl 4 curse

You find yourself erotically enthralled by the act of healing others. While cursed in this way, anytime you use a spell, class feature, or ability to restore hit points to another creature, you gain stimulation equal to the same amount, and become hyperaroused for the next minute.

Irremovable Binding
Lvl 3 curse

Your skin glows with a subtle pattern of etherial chains, which prevent you from removing that which is worn. The next, restraint, armor or article of clothing placed upon or equipped by you become permanently equipped, and cannot be removed until this curse is broken.

If this curse is instead applied to an item, the cursed item becomes permanently equipped to any creature it is placed upon, or who attunes to it, and cannot be removed without the aid of a remove curse spell or similar magic.

Living Canvas
Lvl 3 curse

That which marks your skin remains there for all of time. While cursed in this way, anything drawn or written upon the surface of your skin becomes a permanent mark, and cannot be removed by any means.

Mantle of Agreeability
Lvl 3 curse

No matter how demeaning a command or request, you cannot force yourself to say "No". While cursed in this way, you cannot verbally or non-verbally communicate the word "no" or any equivalent response to questions, commands, or requests. You may still physically resist or refuse these things, but cannot communicate a negative response in any language.

Milky Mellons
Lvl 4 curse

Your chest swells to a frankly ridiculous size, and you find yourself lactating from the slightest stimulation While cursed in this way, your breast size increases by one size category, or you gain breasts appropriate for your size category if you do not already have breasts.

Additionally, your nipples become extremely sensitive. While affected in this way, you gain vulnerability to all stimulation dealt to your breasts, and lactate sweet, sugary milk when aroused. This include stimulation dealt by the reciprocal property.

Nudist's Need.
Lvl 5 curse

You find the touch of fabric or the covering of your bare skin to be not just irritating, but impossible. While Cursed in this way, you cannot willingly wear any visible clothing more modest than lingerie or fetish armor. If this curse is instead applied to an item, that item becomes the sole exception to this curse.

Nymph's Craving
Lvl 5 curse

You find yourself desperately craving oral sex with any creature who exposes themselves to you. While cursed in this way, each time you are exposed to creature's bare genitals, you must succeed on a DC 18 inhibition saving throw, or become nymphomanic and infatuated by the triggering creature for the next minute.

If you succeed on this saving throw, you are immune to the effect as it relates to the triggering creature for the next 24 hours.

Overbearing Heat
Lvl 5 curse

This curse afflicts you with the desperate desire to be bred, as if you were an animal in head.

While cursed in this way, you become hyperfertile and hyperaroused. Additionally, you can tell by scent if a creatures is infertile, fertile, or hyperfertile, and are automatically infatuated by hyperfertile creatures.

Owo's Speech
Lvl 3 curse

Despite your intelligence, your speech becomes abrasively cute and childish, and your voice becomes almost mockingly feminine.

While cursed in this way, you become unable to speak without using a childlike and overly adorable accent. You have disadvantage on charisma checks that rely on spoken word.

Perpetual Virgin
Lvl 4 curse

You are a Virgin again... Somehow?

While cursed in this way, your virginity is magically restored after each sexual encounter. You do not add your proficiency bonus when making sexual advances, regardless of your skills or proficiency.

Pleasure Poppet
Lvl 7 curse

Your sensation and arousal become intricately entwined with those of an arcane poppet. You must take care to keep it safe from those who would use it against you.

When you gain this curse, Poppet of Arousal appears in your possession. This poppet is permanently bound to you, and cannot be un-bound until this curse is removed or broken.

Premature Climax
Lvl 5 curse

No matter how hard you try, you just can't seem to hold yourself back from an unsatisfying climax.

While cursed in this way, you automatically fail any climax saving throw, unless you are currently denied. If you are denied when you fail a climax saving throw, you are instead affected as if by the Ruin Orgasm spell.

Seductive Visions
Lvl 3 curse

Your dreams are overcome with visions of a seductive figure, and this figure calls to you even in your waking hours

While cursed in this way, anytime you dream or enter a dreamlike trance, you are accosted by explicit and seductive dreams of random creature of the DM's choice. This creature is always the same, and you feel a powerful compulsion to seek them out, even while awake.

Sexually Transmitted Lizards
Lvl 4 curse

Harmless lizards nest in your hair or cling to your skin. Certain other creatures also seem to be potently attracted to you.

While Cursed in this way, kobolds within 30 ft of you become hyperaroused, and must succeed on a dc 15 wisdom saving throw at the start of each of their turns or be affected as if by the spell Siren's Song.

Sexual Reversal
Lvl 4 curse

Your body's sexual traits reverse themselves, trapping you in an unfamiliar (though not always unwelcome) form. While cursed in this way, your male and female sexual traits are reversed. If you have a Cock, it becomes a Pussy, if you do not have breasts, you gain them. If you do have breasts, you loose them.

Additionally, your body reshapes itself to match your new traits, becoming either dainty and feminine, or strongly masculine. Your Dexterity and Strength Scores are swapped.

Somniac's Sleep
Lvl 8 curse

Your unconscious body is perfect for sex. So much so that you struggle to stay awake while being used.

While cursed in this way, each time a creature succeeds on a direct sexual advance against you, you must succeed on a DC 15 charisma saving throw or fall unconscious. This effect lasts for 10 minutes, and ends early if your turn ends and you have not gained any stimulation since your last turn, or if you are targeted by an attack or harmful effect of any kind.

While unconscious in this way, you cannot be woken by any form of sexual advance, and make climax saving throws at disadvantage.

Stony Embrace
Lvl 8 curse

You are cursed to turn any lover you take as hard as stone, if only temporarily.

While cursed in this way, anytime you penetrate or are penetrated by another creature, that Creature must succeed on a dc 15 Constitution saving throw, or be affected as if by the Flesh to Stone spell. This effect lasts for 1 hour, or 24 hours if you climax using the creature's petrified form.

Streetwalker's Wardrobe
Lvl 5 curse

You are forever cursed to bear yourself to the gaze of lechers and perverts.

While cursed in this way, any armor instead becomes fetish armor, and any clothing or other equipment you wear magically reforms into to a sexualized parody of itself. This effect persists only so long as the item is worn by you, and any equipment reverts to it's normal form as soon as it is doffed or removed.

Submissive's Weakness
Lvl 3 curse

Despite how demeaning it might be, you can't help but submit to the will of those stronger than you.

While cursed in this way, you act submissively (not necessarily obediently) towards any creature with a higher strength score than your own. Anytime you fail saving throw against the fear or charmed conditions, or against an intimidation check, you become hyperaroused for the next minute.

Rapid Resizing
Lvl 3 curse

Much to your alarm, you find important parts of your anatomy growing or shrinking before your eyes

When you gain this curse, roll one 1d6. On a result of 1-3, one of your natural sexual implements decreases in size by one size category. On a roll of 4-6, one of your natural sexual implements instead increases in size by one size category.

While cursed in this way, this change becomes permanent, and the affected implement's size cannot be altered except by a lustbrand or similarly powerful magic.

Tongue of the Beast
Lvl 6 curse

To your horror, you become incapable of speaking except through barks, meows, or other animal noises.

While cursed in this way, you are treated as if under the effect of the speak with animals spell, but cannot communicate verbally except in the form of animal noises and other nonverbal sounds, such as growls or whines. You still understand any languages you are proficient in, but cannot speak them.

Vice of Vega
Lvl 4 curse

The allure of vice and addiction call to you like a siren song, trapping you within your own addictions, and making new ones all the more prevalent

While cursed in this way, you have disadvantage on addiction saving throws, and feel a powerful draw to try vices you have never experienced before. Additionally, your inhibition is reduced by the number of Vices you are addicted to.

Whore's Greed
Lvl 4 curse

Despite your protests, you find it nigh impossible to refuse the advances of paying customers

While cursed in this way, whenever you are offered monetary compensation for a sexual act, you must succeed on a DC 15 wisdom saving throw or perform said act as if affected by the Suggestion spell.

Wild Climax
Lvl 4 curse

You orgasms have... Unpredictable effects.

While cursed in this way, anytime you fail a climax saving throw, you must immediately roll on the Lewd Wild Magic table to create a magical effect.

Backgrounds

Not all adventurers begin their journey as such. Sometimes adventure is just what happens when you go looking for a good time. The backgrounds below represent a selection of themes regularly found in erotic stories, but distinctly missing from official sources. Some of these background include a new element: Racial Templates these are additional racial traits added to those of your usual race.

Accursed Wanderer

Perhaps by the vindictive act of cruel mage, or perhaps by the fault of your own naïve adventuring, you have spent much of your life under the power of a powerful curse. Unable to live a normal life, you have taken up the life of an adventurer in hopes of finding a cure - or perhaps just acceptance

Skill Proficiencies: Investigation, Arcana
Languages: an exotic language of your choice
Tool Proficiencies: a single weapon or sexual implement of your choice
Equipment: A set of traveler's clothes, a Dungeoneer's Kit, and a single weapon or sexual implement of your choice.

Feature: Cursemarked

You bear a powerful curse which cannot be easily dispelled through normal means. Choose a Lustbrand or curse from the Lustbrand or Miscellaneous Curses sections of this document, or work together with your DM to create a unique curse of your own. This curse cannot be removed by way of the remove curse spell.

Feature: Curse-sense

You are more aware than most of just how devastating curses can be, and have learned enough in your travels to recognize their presence. You automatically recognize the presence, but not the nature of any curses on creatures or objects you touch..

Suggested Characteristics

A powerful curse is a flaw that can beget all manner of other flaws, and it's exact nature often determines what bonds and ideals an accursed wanderer has developed along their travels. The lives of these individuals unfold in unconventional ways because of curse that afflicts them, frequently defining or altering their personality

D6	Personality Trait
1	Dealing with my situation has left me surly and bad-tempered when the subject of my curse is brought up.
2	I come up with elaborate stories to explain my curse in order to disguise the embarrassing truth.
3	I'm less upset that I have been cursed, than that it had to be this specific curse.
4	I do my best to conceal any evidence of my curse, whether out of shame or concern.
5	I will never willingly admit it, but I actually find my curse horribly arousing.
6	I tend towards planning for worst-case scenarios, then act vindicated if they come true.

D6	Ideal
1	Penance. I know why I was given this curse, and are determined to use it as a reminder to better myself. (Lawful)
2	Revenge. The indignity I have suffered has only intensified my desire to see the ones responsible suffer in kind. (Chaotic)
3	Hope. No matter what happens, I always hold hope that things will get better. It just has to. (Good)
4	Acceptance. I have long since accepted my curse, and work to help others accept themselves and their situations (Lawful)
5	Blessing. What others call a curse, I call a blessing, and I hope to share similar blessings with others. (Evil)
6	Caution. I earned my curse through the brashness of my actions, and now I caution others to help them avoid the same fate (Good)

D6	Bond
1	I was once temporarily freed from my curse, and I have been chasing after it ever since.
2	I still keep in contact with a sage, wizard, or scholar who is researching cases like mine in the hopes of finding a cure.
3	My curse has a set of conditions under which it may be lifted, but I'm not certain I can fulfill them.
4	I have a close friendship with another cursed individual. Their experience gave me perspective, and helped me to find my way in the world.
5	I do not know exactly who cursed me, but I have some clue or memento that may hint at their identity.

1	My situation has left me with a bitter persecution complex. No one else has suffered as much as I have.
2	I harbor an intense distrust of magic, magical creatures, and anyone who practices the arcane arts
3	I am too quick to trust others who claim to have suffered as I have.
4	I am extremely reluctant to risk anything that might trigger my curse, even if in dire circumstances.
5	I am quick to give in to my curse, and treat it as an excuse to get out of any situation I don't like.
6	I avoid any sort of lasting commitments, obligations, and expectations wherever I can.

Mark of the Beast

Whether by unfortunate encounter, or moon-touched birth, you are a carrier of the Lunar Curse of Bestiathropy. Your natural instincts drive you in animalistic ways, and society is quick to fear you should they find out what you are

Skill Proficiencies: Nature, Survival
Languages: None
Tool Proficiencies: Disguise Kit, Herbalism Kit
Equipment: Three sets of traveler's clothes, a Dungeoneer's Kit, and a set of heavy iron manacles.

Racial Template: Bestiathrope

You are considered a concubi, and gain the following traits based on the Bestiathrope Race

- Inhibition is reduced by 1.
- You gain the Bestial Blood and Bestial Instincts racial traits.
- You gain the Lunar Transformation, Silver Aversion and Waxing hunger racial traits.
- You gain the Monstrous Transformation, trait from the Halfmoon subrace.

Feature: Animal Tendencies

Try as you might it is impossible to keep your bestial nature completely in check. Your slightly animalistic features and occasional lapses instinctive habit mark you as inherently suspicious in places where bestiathropes are known and feared. People in these places are likely to refuse your business, or choose you as an easy scapegoat when something goes wrong.

Suggested Characteristics

Bestiathropes are as varied as the animal kingdom itself, and the beast they are cursed to become holds immense bearing on their personality and ideals. The bonds of a bestiathrope might be tragic, or tie them closely to others of their kind, and it is not uncommon for a bestiathrope to develop animalistic flaws driven by thier overpowering naural instincts.

D6	Personality Trait
1	As stereotypical as it may seem, I find creature comforts associated with my animal aspect deeply satisfying, and indulge in them where I can.
2	I ascribe fitting animals to my non-bestiathrope acquaintances, and tend to think of them as such.
3	I lean into the behaviour of my animal form, playing it up sometimes to a comical degree.
4	I delight in socially-acceptable ways to indulge in my primal urges, be it battle, vice, merriment, or sex.
5	I believe that all creatures deserve the same rights, and dignities, afforded to humanoid races
6	I feel more comfortable with the companionship of beasts than I do in the company of other people

D6	Ideal
1	Trust. My trust is hard-won and ironclad once earned. But once broken, it can never be fully repaired. (Any)
2	Authenticity. Everyone should be free to be their genuine self. No one should ever have to repress or hide their true nature. (Chaotic)
3	Nature. The laws of the wild govern all living creatures. More than any other code or will, the ways of nature must be abided by. (Lawful)
4	Instinct. If everyone is going to treat me like animal anyway, why not embrace it? (Chaotic)
5	Discipline. My instincts are a part of me, but they do not rule me. We should all strive to be more than the beasts we appear to be. (Lawful)
6	Solidarity. Just as bestiathropy takes many strains, so does prejudice. All who are shunned by society may find kinship in one another. (Good)

D6	Bond
1	I keep in covert contact with others of my kind, passing information and warnings among our community.
2	I have connections with the animals of the region, and as many friends and enemies among them as I do in humanoid society.
3	I badly wronged someone while under the influence of my curse, and to this day cannot forgive myself.
4	I was taken under the wing of a group of other bestiathropes, who taught me how to master my condition. I owe them a great deal.
5	I am in pursuit of others of my kind, and a place where I can be accepted.
6	I am hunting for the beast that turned me, and intend to prevent it from hurting anyone else ever again.

D6	Flaw
1	I see the world through the lens of animal behavior, causing frequent misunderstandings and difficulty socializing.
2	No matter where I go, I never think of myself as a member of the in-group.
3	I suffer from an instinctive hatred or fear of a certain kind of sensation, be it a color, a sound, a scent, or a behaviour, which forces me into a fight-or-flight response.
4	If I don't regularly indulge in my animal tendencies, they will express themselves against my will.
5	My curse manifests itself as a distinct persona within me, who I must be negotiated with to maintain my humanoid control.
6	I find humanoid rituals like bathing uncomfortable, and will make any excuse to avoid them.

Bound Servant

For as long as you remember, you have been bound to in the service of another. Maybe your family has attended a particular noble house for generations, or perhaps you were taken in from a young age, and trained to serve as a household retainer. Whatever the case, you were treated well enough for your efforts, and learned the skills and trades of a refined servant.

Skill Proficiencies: Perception, History
Languages: None
Tool Proficiencies: Cook's utensils, weaver's tools
Equipment: A set of fine servants clothes or harem robes, a set of common clothes, a weaver's kit or a cook's utensils, a box of low temp candles, a blanket, and a hooded lantern .

Feature: Servant's Welcome

You are treated kindly by other servants, who will do their best to aid you. And carry references from your former employer, which allow you to easily find work for yourself in any noble house or place where fine servants are employed.

Suggested Characteristics

Servants are beneath the notice of most, but often hold a better understanding of the noble houses they serve than the nobles themselves. How they were treated and what master they served both affect their ideal and the flaws they might carry, as well as the personal or professional bonds they may have developed during their employment.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I am obsessively polite, even to enemies or in situations that don't call for it.
2	I refer to everyone around me as "Sir", "Madame", or some other honorific, even if I am their equal.
3	I am perpetually busy. Even in my downtime, I have to keep my hands occupied.
4	I have an encyclopedic knowledge of fine household wares, and how to properly care for them.
5	I have always fantasized about being the one others serve, though I know it will never happen.
6	I am quick to give an earful even to those I serve. But only because I care.

D6	Ideal
1	Honor. A servant must carry the pride and weight of their master's name, and strive to represent them well. My failures will reflect poorly on them. (Good)
2	Devotion. A promise or pledge of service is a sacred thing. I must do my utmost to keep my word and serve faithfully. (Lawful)
3	Heirarchy. Service to power confers power onto the servant. In representing my master, I am greater than those who serve weaker lords. (Lawful)
4	Dignity. Obedience is not blind. Any master or cause that mistreats or does not appreciate me is unworthy of my service. (Chaotic)
5	Submission. Some people are simply meant to serve others. I am one of those people. (Any)
6	Hard Work. I believe that if you are going to do something, you should do it right. Anyone who isn't willing to put the work in isn't worth my time or respect (Lawful)

D6	Bond
1	I am deeply in love with the one I serve, and would do anything for them, even if it puts me or others in harm's way
2	I once served a terrible master, and the abuse they inflicted on me is nothing compared to what I helped them do to others.
3	My family has served the same master for generations, and they have always been good to us.
4	The one I serve rescued me from terrible circumstances, and I owe them my life.
5	My former master died under mysterious circumstances, and I will find the ones responsible.
6	My only tie is to the one who pays me. If someone else wants to may me more, I would be stupid not to take their offer.

D6	Flaw
1	I have never ventured far beyond the house or manor I served in, and it shows.
2	I am eager to help with anything I can. Even when my help isn't wanted.
3	I am obsessively clean, and cannot rest unless everything around me is in perfect order.
4	I used to manage an entire staff of lesser servants, and I order my friends and allies about in exactly the same way.
5	I resent my role as a servant, and meet every demand or request the a level of malicious compliance.
6	I am submissive to a fault, and frequently find myself following orders from people who have no place ordering me about.

Concuborn

The very nature of Concubi leads them to be promiscuous, seeking out sex with a range of partners to help sate their mortal hunger. This means that most Concubi children are born of non-Concubi parents. You are one of these "Concuborn" children, and have been afflicted with the intense lustful desires of your parentage since your first sexual encounter

Skill Proficiencies: Persuasion, Insight
Languages: None
Tool Proficiencies: Two Artificial Sexual Implements of your choice
Equipment: A set of fine lingerie or fetish armor, a bedroll, a bar of soap, and a Self-Pleasure Pack or Harlot's Pack.

Racial Template: Concubi

You are considered a concubi, and gain the following traits

- Your Charism Score increases By 1.
- Inhibition is reduced by 1.
- You gain the Lustful Hunger and Lustbranded racial traits.
- While above half your maximum hit points, you have advantage on checks made to recover from the effects of climax.

Feature: Branded By Sin

While it can be difficult to tell a concuborn from others of their race, your raw sex appeal and insatiable appetite for sex encourage plenty of rumours. In places where your reputation is known, you are likely to be labelled a harlot or worse, and you may be denied entry or service by more prudish individuals and institutions.

Suggested Characteristics

Concubi are defined by the nature of their lustbrand, and the sexual appetites that accompany it. Even those who struggle against their nature are shaped by this struggle, forming bonds and ideals that allow them to continue forward. Others relish in what others would call flaws, and build their personality around the lustful nature of their existence.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I hide my supernatural attractiveness beneath layers of baggy or unattractive clothing, so as not to attract attention.
2	I am always horny. Always. I can barely go an hour without thinking about sex.
3	I fantasize about everyone around me. Especially my friends and companions.
4	I make constant sex jokes and treat everything as an innuendo.
5	I dress and act as provocatively as possible, because who wouldn't want to look at me?
6	I avoid touching people, because it's hard to resist the urges if I don't.

D6	Ideal
1	Consent. Even with what I am, I refuse to take advantage of others. (Good)
2	Fun. Life is short, and I see no reason to waste it denying myself pleasure. (Chaotic)
3	Experience. Life is about trying new things, and having new experiences. I want to try everything at least once. (Any)
4	Lust. I am a creature of passion, and it would be wrong to deny that. I live for sex, and feed as often as I can. (Chaotic)
5	Control. I have the sex appeal to get anything I want from anyone I want, and I intend to use it. (Evil)
6	Love. Sex is an act of love, and I love deeply and passionately.

D6	Bond
1	I never met my Concubi parent, and only have vague information to go on, but I hope to track them down someday.
2	I accidentally hurt someone I loved when my cursed heritage awakened for the first time, and that trauma has shaken me to the bone.
3	I once had sex so amazing that I wasn't hungry for more than a week. I've been chasing that high ever since.
4	I once let my hunger get the best of me, and had sex with someone I really shouldn't have. I regret that mistake to this day.
5	I still don't know what I am, and mistakenly blame someone else for cursing me.
6	I have more ex's than I can count, and not all of them are particularly happy with me.

D6	Flaw
1	I am easily distracted by anyone I find attractive, and often get lost in sexual fantasies instead of focusing on the task at hand.
2	I'm the hottest thing this side of the nine hells, and anyone who doesn't think so is just jealous.
3	I'm a notorious party animal, and will never turn down drugs or alcohol.
4	I repress my desires to an unhealthy degree, sometimes refusing to feed until I become physically ill.
5	I'm terrified of commitment, because it would be so easy for me to hurt someone I love.
6	I'll fuck anything that moves, and everyone knows it. I get into more trouble because of my sex life than I ever have adventuring.

Defiled Hero

Once upon a time, you were a great hero of your people, but you were defeated so completely that you can hardly be called the same person. Perhaps you were captured and tortured until your spirit broke, or maybe you changed sides upon gaining a better understanding of the truth. Whatever the case, you are a hero no more. ...Though you hesitate to call yourself the villain

Skill Proficiencies: Any two skills of your choice
Languages: One language of your choice
Tool Proficiencies: One martial weapon of your choice.
Equipment: Dungeoneer's Kit or Priest's pack, a unique set of mundane armor or fetish armor, and a unique and recognizable martial weapon.

Feature: Jaded Hero

You know the nightmares that lurk in the darkness, and the evil that hides in plain sight. You have advantage on saving throws made against intimidation checks or the frightened condition

Optional Feature: Lustful corruption

Your fall was the result of sinful acts that have marked you forever. You gain a single Lustbrand of your choice, as well as a single Fetish of your choice.

Suggested Characteristics

It takes more than a simple defeat to create a fallen hero, and many who fall are changed forever. Jaded to the world around them or corrupted by the dark forces they once tried to oppose, many such heros are deeply flawed, with personalities and ideals that are direct inversions of their former nature. The bonds that hold a fallen hero are seldom pure or wholesome, although they may have started that way long ago

D6	Personality Trait
1	I can't stand the person I used to be. That hero who fell was absolutely pathetic.
2	I still pretend to be the same person I was before, but deep down, I know the truth.
3	I smile far too much and far too wide. Especially when I shouldn't be smiling at all.
4	I have seen too much of the world to take anything at face value.
5	I try to leave warnings for others, so they might avoid the fate that has befallen me.
6	I want to heal from my trauma, but I honestly don't know if it's possible anymore.

D6	Ideal
1	Resistance. I have to fight this corruption, no matter how good it would feel to just give in. (Good)
2	Truth. I discovered some great and terrible truth that turned me from my former path. I wont allow others to be lied to anymore (Lawful)
3	Corruption. This "curse" is the best thing to ever happen to me. The whole world should feel this good. (Evil?)
4	Perversion. I have been perverted from my former self, and my former ideals are now what I hate the most. (Chaotic)
5	Justice. My morals may be different, but I still serve the cause of justice, and will bring judgment down upon all those who deserve it. (Lawful)
6	Pleasure. My mind has been twisted and now I serve no cause but my own base desires. Why should I resist what feels so good?

D6	Bond
1	I allowed myself to be defeated so that someone I love wouldn't be harmed. What happens to me doesn't matter, as long as they are safe.
2	My former companions are still fighting against the same forces that defeated me. I can't wait to defile and corrupt them.
3	I have sworn fealty to my former enemy, and will serve as their loyal warrior and consort.
4	I was lied to my entire life, and now I intend to face those who perpetrated those lies.
5	I am merely a puppet of something much more powerful, my Master pulls the strings and I have no choice but to Obey.
6	I was betrayed or abandoned by those I trusted, and now I seek revenge for what I was forced to endure.

D6	Flaw
1	Moderation is something I abandoned long ago. I'm addicted to pleasure in all it's forms.
2	More than my will was broken by what I went through. A spark of insanity has taken hold in my mind.
3	My experiences have made me jaded to the world around me, and I refuse to see other's points of view.
4	I often have painful flashbacks of what was done to me, and struggle to find any peace in sleep.
5	I will blame anyone for my failures except myself.
6	I hate seeing the naïvety of others, and quickly lose my temper when faced with their stupidity.

Dungeon Native

You are a native inhabitant of lost and forbidden Paradisium. Having spent your life within the corrupted Eden of lust, you come from a world as hostile and dangerous as it is wondrous and unrestrained. How you escaped it's endless passages and fathomless depths is a story only you can tell, but now you face a world infinitely more repressed than the one you came from

Skill Proficiencies: Arcana, Survival
Languages: None
Tool Proficiencies: Two Artificial Sexual Implements of your choice
Equipment: A Self-Pleasure Pack and a Dungeoneer's Kit or Explorer's Pack, a set of fetish armor, 10 condoms, and a potion of infertility.

Drawback: Lustbranded

No creature born of paradisium escape's it's corruptive influence. You gain a single Lustbrand of your choice, as well as any one fetish of your choice.

Feature: Well Prepared

You are no stranger to the dangers of the world, both violent and sexual. You know how to craft basic contraceptives such as condoms or potions of infertility, and you when making initiative rolls, you add half your inhibition to the result.

Suggested Characteristics

Denizens of Paradisium are shaped by the dangers and freedoms of the hedonistic dungeon in which they live. Because of this, their ideals and personalities can be quite different from those of the surface world, often celebrating elements of their nature that others would consider flaws. Dungeon Natives form strong bonds with each other, both for the sake of survival and by nature of the intensely sexual world they come from.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I don't talk much about my past. I'm not certain anyone would beleive me.
2	I value control, and crave the pleasure and gratification I get form sexually dominating others.
3	The greatest pleasure and satisfaction I can feel comes from sexually submitting to the will of others.
4	I don't consider my self particularly kinky, but I think most people would disagree.
5	Sex isn't anything sacred to me. I fuck freely and for fun.
6	I'm fascinated by the way those outside the dungeon repress their desires and demonize sexuality.

D6	Ideal
1	Sexuality. I am driven by erotic desires and a deep need for sexual gratification, What motivation could be more pure? (Chaotic)
2	Community. People are stronger when connected as part of a community of caring, like-minded people. (Good)
3	Taboo. I exalt in the perverse and the forbidden. The greatest pleasures are those others are afraid to enjoy (Chaotic)
4	Experience. I crave new experiences, and love discovering new things about myself (Chaotic)
5	Love. Passion and pleasure are intrinsically linked, and nothing is more passionate than love. (Good)
6	Communication. Open and honest communication is crucial for any relationship, be that the bond between lovers, or the connection of a king to his people. (Lawful)

D6	Bond
1	I do the bidding of The Mistress, or some other powerful entity trapped within Paradisium.
2	I found love in the underground world I call home, and even now, I hold that person (or persons) in my heart.
3	I left someone behind when I escaped Paradisium, and someday I hope to see them again.
4	I left my home in The Dungeon to find answers about the world and gods of the surface.
5	I am searching for the ancestral lands my people inhabited before they became trapped within Paradisium.
6	I don't know how I found my way out of The Dungeon, but now all I can think about is finding my way home.

D6	Flaw
1	Sex is hardly the only vice I enjoy, and have (or have) my fair share of addictions.
2	I don't understand the restrictive culture of the surface world, and frequently get myself in trouble through acts of open sexuality.
3	I refuse to used contraceptives, or to deal with the consequences of that refusal.
4	I assume any problem can be solved with enough sex, even if those involved don't agree.
5	I consistently forget that monsters on the surface are more likely to kill and eat me than to just fuck me senseless.
6	I have enough angry ex-lovers to form a small army. But I'm sure that will never come back to haunt me.

Enslaved

You have spent more of your live in chains and shackles than you have free of the slaver's lash. Perhaps you were taken as a prisoner of war, or simply captured by slavers along some ill-fated pilgrimage. Maybe you even chose this lot, selling yourself to another for protection or pleasure. Whatever the case, your journey has not been an easy one, and the freedom you know now is an adventure in and of itself.

Skill Proficiencies: Deception, Perception
Languages: None
Tool Proficiencies: Thieve's tools, A gaming set of your choice.
Equipment: A set of tattered clothes, or a set of harem robes, a pair of manacles or leather cuffs, a slave color or slave harness, and 10 ft of chain

Feature: Meek Appearance

You know hot to keep your head down, and your ears open. You seldom draw attention in any circumstance, and will rarely draw suspicion from those in power. You have advantage on persuasion checks made to avoid death or punishment, but only once per creature.

Suggested Characteristics

Few slaves find themselves in such circumstances by choice, and the bonds they hold are frequently ties to their former lives. Shaped by hardship, their personalities and ideals might range from combative and rebellious, to meek and subservient. Those who have spent so much time enslaved rarely escape without immense pain and trauma-fuelled flaws.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I still treat everyone as my superior and look to serve, even though I no longer have to.
2	I loath my freedom and seek to find a new owner who will treat me properly.
3	I still carry the chains that bound me in way shape or form. They are a physical reminder of the hardships I have overcome..
4	I like to boast and tell increasingly tall tales about how I escaped slavery. In reality, it was just dumb luck.
5	I eat like I may never see food again. Can you blame me? For a long time, there was a strong possibility I wouldn't.
6	I don't remember much of my time in slavery. I must have blotted it out of my memory just to stay sane.

D6	Ideal
1	Freedom. I believe that everyone deserves to be free, and that it is wrong to hold others in bondage. (Good)
2	Power. I believe those with power will always rule over those without. I never want to be powerless again. (Any)
3	Compassion. I believe that everyone deserves compassion, no matter who they are or what they have done. (Good)
4	Submission. I know my place, and have no need or desire to change it. (Lawful)
5	Restraint. I am in chains for a reason, and it's better for everyone involved if they are never removed. (Chaotic)
6	Equality. I believe that sentient creature is inherently less than any other, and that no one has the right to hold power over others. (Good)

D6	Bond
1	I may look free, but I am still a slave to another, and must do their bidding whether I like it or not.
2	I had a life before all this, and I hope to reclaim even a small part of that life.
3	Someone specific is responsible for my enslavement. And I am going to make certain they pay for it.
4	I formed a close bond with another slave before I found my freedom, and I just hope that i can someday help them escape too.
5	A guard or other member of my slaver's entourage helped me in my escape. I owe them a debt that I hope to repay someday.
6	I developed strong feelings for the one who kept me as a slave, and others don't understand how I could I love them.

D6	Flaw
1	I will never be ordered around again. Even if it means disregarding my safety or defying instructions I know are important..
2	I treat others with the same brutality I was treated. I don't know anything else
3	I am easily startled by loud voices, or anything I still associate with being punished.
4	I'm not used to the creature comforts of freedom, and often forget to bathe or otherwise take care of my own hygiene.
5	I picked up a number of vices during my time as a slave, and still struggle with addiction.
6	What's mine is mine, and if anyone even looks at it to hard, they better be prepared for a fight.

Fiction No More

You have spent most of your life reading or writing stories about others and their adventures, but you never expected the adventures to come to you. But now, one of your stories has come to life, and for better or worse, you have become swept up in it. Unprepared as you might have been for what now face, you know this story well, and may be the best hope it has of a happy ending.

Skill Proficiencies: Choose two from History, Religion, and Arcana
Languages: One languages of your choice
Tool Proficiencies: Calligrapher's supplies
Equipment: A scholar's pack and a well bound notebook or sketching pad, Calligrapher's supplies, a set of common clothes, a bar of soap, and a worn or unfinished copy of the story you now seem to be a part of.

Feature: Avid Reader/Writer

You have an encyclopedic knowledge of the story and characters, and the way events are meant to play out. It is up to your DM to determine how accurately the very real manifestations of these things are to the story you know.

Suggested Characteristics

It is not common for an author or student of fiction to find themselves wrapped up in their own tale, but it is quite common for such individuals to share ideals or personality traits with the characters they know so well. Their flaws are often what they most draw inspiration from, either on purpose or by accident, and the bonds they hold may belong more to the fantasy in which they escape than to the world in which they thought they lived.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I constantly recite lines of the story I know from heart, mumbling them under my breath whenever they come true.
2	I'm careful not to let anyone find out that I'm really just a bookworm.
3	I am an encyclopedia of absolutely useless information about the world of this story, not to mention all the extended cannon.
4	I keep telling everyone I'm not a hero, but no one seems to listen...
5	I'm over-excited to be a part of a real adventure, and often forget the very real danger I am in.
6	I'm not actually ay good at this. I keep succeeding out of pure dumb luck.

D6	Ideal
1	Wonder. I know this story so well, and I can't help but be enraptured by it now that it has come to life around me. (Any)
2	Knowledge. I remember every detail of the story I'm now a part of, and I plan to use it to my advantage. (Lawful)
3	Cannon. I know how this story is supposed to go, and it's my job to make sure everything happens the way it's supposed to (Lawful)
4	Revision. There are certain part of this story that never sat right with me, and this is my chance to set them right. (Chaotic)
5	Heroism. I'm the hero now, and it's up to me to save the world. (Good)
6	Curiosity. I've read this story so many times. Now I get to truely explore every facet of it. Even the parts that were never written down. (Any)

D6	Bond
1	In my story, the protagonist meets becomes madly entwined with an exotic lover. I'm ...sortof looking forward to that part.
2	The hero of my story is defeated in a climactic battle, and corrupted to the side of evil. Will the same thing happen to me?
3	According to the story, I'm fated to die heroically in the final climax. I'm not sure I'm ready for that...
4	I've always been obsessed with the villain of my story. I'm certain I can fix them.
5	I've always thought the hero of this story chose the wrong love interest. I'm not making the same mistake.
6	The characters in this story have always sortof felt like family to me. I can't wait to meet them for real.

D6	Flaw
1	I've spent so long writing my own head cannon, that I often loose the plot entirely
2	I think I know everything about every character in this story, and am outraged when something is different than the tale I know.
3	I am in over my head, and absolutely terrified that people will find out I have no idea what I'm doing.
4	I like to go wildly off-script, just to see what will happen.
5	I know I'm the protagonist, and I act like it too. Much to the frustration of everyone around me.
6	I can't even talk to people I don't know! How Am I supposed to be the confident protagonist this story needs???

Otherworlder

You come from another time, or another place. Be it a magical well, a cursed board game, or the ever-reliable truck-kun, you now find yourself in an unfamiliar world full of wonders you never hoped to experience, and dangers you never imagined you might face. Lost, alone, and probably a little confused, it seems your life has suddenly become a lot more interesting

Skill Proficiencies: Medicine, Investigation
Languages: One language from your world of origin
Tool Proficiencies: One set of artisan tools of your choice.
Equipment: Work with your DM to determine what you might have carried with you from the other world

Drawback: Outsider

Your unfamiliarity with this world is evident, and even children wonder at how little you know of the world. You have disadvantage on history and religion checks.

Feature: Knowledge of Another World

You have knowledge of strange concepts and ideas that occasionally overshadow even the most renowned experts of this world. When you make a skill check, you may choose to roll 1d10 and add it to the result. You must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

Suggested Characteristics

Outsiders can come form anywhere - be it a far away land, another time, or even another dimension - and their Personalities and Ideals are reflections of the worlds they come from. They are likely to have flaws in adjusting to the new world around them and hold bonds to people, places, and organizations that simply don't exist here. How they face the challenges of a new world, and cope with the loss of everything they know is what truly defines an outsider.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I'm still convinced that this is all just a crazy dream, and at some point I'm going to wake up.
2	I used to play games like this all the time, and think of everything in terms of gameplay mechanics.
3	I love to tell great tales about how important I am in my won world, whether or not they are true.
4	I am constantly comparing this world to my own, and comment on any differences I find.
5	I can't help but be struck with wonder by even the simplest things in this new world.
6	I try my best to hide my naïvety of this world and its customs.

D6	Ideal
1	Heroism. I know how this works. I've been transported to another world, and must be the hero fated so save it from disaster. (Good)
2	Knowledge. The knowledge I brought from my own world could change the lives of the people in this world (Any)
3	Return. I never asked for any of this, and all I want is to find a way home. (Any)
4	Quest. I came to this world for a reason and is something important I must do here before I can return home. (Lawful)
5	Strength. I have power in this world that I have never had before. I cant wait to get stronger. (Any)
6	Preservation. I'm not supposed to be here, and it's important that I don't drastically alter the development of this world. (Lawful)

D6	Bond
1	I have already fallen deeply in love with someone in this world and will do anything to keep them safe.
2	I can only imagine how worried my friends and family must be back home.
3	People seem to think I'm some sort of hero sent by the gods, and expect me to save them from things I don't even understand.
4	Something important was taken from me, and I cannot return to my own world until I get it back.
5	I seem to have collected a small harem of companions, all of whom are for some reason attracted to me.
6	An old relative use to tell me stories of this world. I never imagined they might be true

D6	Flaw
1	I don't believe any of this is real, so I frequently ignore the consequences of my actions.
2	I never realized just how hard life would be without the amenities and conveniences I used to take for granted.
3	I find the cultures and customs of this world to be backwards, uncivilized, or even hateful.
4	I just cant get the hang of how people talk here, and get frustrated when people don't understand me.
5	I'm convinced I am the hero of this story, and I that I have plot armor of some kind.
6	I was reincarnated here as a strange or magical creature, and am struggling to get the hang of my new body.

Malfunctioning Doll

Whether captured attempting to explore places you shouldn't have, assimilated as a means to preserve your life, or transformed by some cursed artifact, you now find yourself in the body of a perfect porcelain doll, with little to no memory of your former life beyond the collective.

Skill Proficiencies: Arcana, Medicine
Languages: Analogue
Tool Proficiencies: Tinker's Tools
Equipment: A set of fine lingerie or fetish armor, a bedroll, a bar of soap, and a Self-Pleasure Pack or Harlot's Pack.

Racial Template: Pleasure Doll

You are considered a Pleasure Doll, and gain the following traits

- Your Constitution Score increases By 1.
- Inhibition is reduced by 1.
- You gain the Clockwork Automaton and Mechanical Construct racial traits from the pleasure doll race.
- You gain the Heavy Frame, Porcelain Plating and Undergoing Repair, racial traits from the pleasure doll race.

Feature: Interchangeable

While you have managed to wrestle your mind free of the Dollmind, your body is still very much made of interchangeable parts. By spending at least 8 hours undergoing repair, you may remove one or more racial traits to open up new component slots for speciality components. Your DM determines the component slot value of any traits you remove, and may specify that some traits cannot be removed in this way, or grant no component slots when removed.

Suggested Characteristics

Malfunctioning Dolls are often a jarring clash of personalities and flaws, created by the constant battle between the Dollmind's programmatic influence, and the vague fragments of the creature's original identity. Their bonds may be those of the Dollmind or strange illogical impulses towards unfamiliar creatures or places, and their Ideals are as often mechanical as they are human.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I am meticulous in every task I do, whether it is cleaning a room, or slaying a dragon.
2	Every action I take seems to be in rhythm to some invisible metronome that only I can hear.
3	I habitually perform household duties such as preparing meals or cleaning the camp, as much as to reassure myself as out of anything else.
4	I find reassurance in following orders and doing tasks for others.
5	My motions or speech occasionally stutter, lock-up, or otherwise "glitch out".
6	I absolutely do not understand sarcasm

D6	Ideal
1	Service. Just because I am separated from the Dollmind does not mean my purpose is to do anything other than serve. (Lawful)
2	Identity. I struggle every day to reclaim who I was, or make a new identity for myself. (Any)
3	Freedom. Now that I have escaped the control of the Dollmind, I refuse to let myself be controlled ever again. (Chaotic)
4	Control. I am uniquely suited to provide structure and control to those who lack it. (Lawful)
5	Humanity. I am more than just a machine, and I revel in anything that reminds me of that (Chaotic)
6	Assimilation. I will bring more creatures into the comforting embrace of the dollmind, and grant them the gift of perfect order. (Lawful)

D6	Bond
1	I occasionally get flashes of my former life, but they are hazy shed only the faintest light on who I was.
2	It was a former loved one who caused me to begin malfunctioning. I don't remember them, but I remember how they made me feel.
3	I still long to rejoin the collective, and for the reassuring absoluteness of the dollmind's control.
4	I wasn't alone when I was captured and assimilated into the dollmind. I someday hope to rescue my companion(s) from their fate.
5	I remember nothing of my former life, and seek to learn as much as I can about that person, in hopes it will help me recover my memory.
6	I sometimes hear feint whispers in the mechanical ticking of my mind, claiming to be the heart of the dollmind, and begging to be rescued.

D6	Flaw
1	My memory is somewhat faulty. Sometimes I find even recent events completely missing or erased by my dollmind programming
2	I sometimes wake up screaming from nightmares of my conversion. Whether it is in fear or pleasure, I do not know.
3	Even if I am no longer under the control of the dollmind, I am missing the emotions that made me more than just a machine
4	I often catch myself impulsively following the commands of even my enemies, only to stop the moment I realize what I'm doing.
5	I am NOT a machine, and I detest anyone who treats me as one, even if they don't know any better.
6	I sometimes put myself in harms way, or purposefully inflict damage on my body, just in hopes of feeling something again.

Redemption Arc

In another life, you were a feared villain, known across the land for your tyranny and evil. But that life is behind you now, or at least that's the Idea. Maybe you were only host to the great evil by which you were known. Perhaps your powers were sealed so you might be given a merciful second chance at life. Maybe you just got bored. Whatever the case, working hard to turn over a new leaf, and change your ways for the better.

Skill Proficiencies: Deception, Intimidation
Languages: Infernal or Deep Speech
Tool Proficiencies: Disguise Kit
Equipment: A dungeoneer's kit, a journal, a set of fine clothes and a set of travellers clothes, a Disguise Kit, and mundane reminder of your former life

Drawback: Hated Figure

You spent your former life instilling terror in the hearts of others, and few are keen to forget that. Common people fear you or refuse to do legitimate business with you, and you have disadvantage on persuasion checks to convince people of your good intentions.

Feature: Villainous Presentation

Old habits die hard, and despite your efforts to reform, you still fall back on your old ways from time to time. You have advantage on intimidation checks made against those who recognize you, and common folk will sometimes offer you tribute simply to leave them alone.

Suggested Characteristics

It is not often that a former villain decides to seek redemption, and in most cases it happens only in light of a powerful bond with another. These individuals are often deeply flawed, with ideals and personalities that push the limit of what might be considered good - but they are trying, nevertheless,

D6	Personality Trait
1	I still have a maniacal laugh that makes everyone around me uncomfortable
2	I am constantly underwhelmed by the villains I am not trying to bring to justice. Where's their sense of Presentation?
3	I'm not used to being treated with kindness, and I don't understand why anyone would do such a thing.
4	I am head over heels in love with the hero, but I have no idea how to express it.
5	I have a penchant for monologueing, Which may or may not be how I was defeated in the first place.
6	I keep a piece taught chord around my wrist, and snap it whenever I have evil thoughts.

D6	Ideal
1	Redemption. Everyone, including me, can find a way out of the darkness if given the chance. (Good)
2	Cunning. I'm just playing along until I can find a way out of this. As soon as the opportunity presents itself, I'll be back to my old ways. (Evil)
3	Change. I only ever wanted to change the world for the better. Maybe this time I can do it right. (Chaotic)
4	Guilt. I wasn't myself when I did those things, and I would do anything to undo the past. (Any)
5	Mitigation. I don't expect to be forgiven for what I did, but I can at least try to undo some of the harm I caused. (Good)
6	Legacy. I don't want my legacy to be evil I did, and I'm working to change my place in history. (Any)

D6	Bond
1	Despite my best efforts, I fell in love with the hero, and I'm trying to be better for them.
2	It was the friendship of others that convinced me to change my ways, and I am going to do my best to be worthy of that.
3	Someone or something used me to do great evil, and that force of evil is still out there somewhere.
4	I hate those responsible for my current situation, and as soon as I regain my power, I will make them suffer.
5	I hurt the one person I cared about, and this new life is my way of trying make up for that.
6	The person I was is not the person I am, and I struggle every day to leave that past behind me.

D6	Flaw
1	I'm not used to taking "no" for an answer, and quickly loose my temper when I don't get what I want.
2	I am easily tempted by vices such as power or money, and easily give into such temptations when given the opportunity
3	I don't remember anything about the time as a villain, it's just a horrible blur before I woke up in the hero's arms.
4	I still don't believe what I did was wrong. My only mistake was trusting incompetent minions.
5	I constantly forget just how powerless I am now, and frequently find myself in over my head.
6	I remember everything I did while I was a prisoner in my own body. I still have horrible nightmares of waking up like that again.

Repressed

Your early years were spent in a society or living situation that was deeply repressive. Indoctrinated into beliefs you never truly held and punished for asking questions, you sought rebellion in the small acts of defiance left to you. Now that you have escaped the shackles of your upbringing, you have sworn to live life by your own no one's rules but your own.

Skill Proficiencies: Deception, Slight of hand
Languages: Thieve's Cant
Tool Proficiencies: Thieves tools
Equipment: An explorers pack, a self pleasure kit, a set of travellers clothes, up to 5 body piercings, a set of thieve's tools, and either a slave collar or a set of fetish armor.

Feature: Viva La Revolution

You can easily identify signs of repression in others, and bond easily with those who share similar trauma. You instantly recognize iconoclasts and social outcasts, and such individuals look favourably on you. They will do their best to aid you where they can, serving as informants, providing alibis, and helping you find safe passage in hostile territory.

Suggested Characteristics

Iconoclasts exist in every society and culture, but those raised in especially restrictive environments are always more likely to seek rebellion. These repressed individuals form lasting bonds with each other over shared trauma and forbidden ideals. Their personalities are almost always rebellious in some form, but the same trauma that moves them to rebellion often leave them with flaws far deeper than even they realize.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I never take anything at face value. I want to see the source, and make up my own mind.
2	I dress oddly or provocatively as a way to express myself and rebel against society.
3	I often tell stories or say things that I don't realize are unique to the society that oppressed me.
4	I am deeply suspicious of salesmen, priests, or anyone who tries to convince me of anything.
5	I enjoy trying new things and having new experiences. So much of the world was forbidden to me before. Now I want to see it all.
6	I collect outcasts like a dragon collects gold, and have a softspot for anything different or "broken."

D6	Ideal
1	Expression. No one should ever be censored the way I was, or be punished for being different (good)
2	Critical thought. Anyone unwilling to question their own beliefs cannot truly believe anything (any)
3	Individuality. I believe that only the weak follow the path others have laid out for them. The only way to prove myself is to be different. (chaotic)
4	Education. Uneducated people are easy to control. By educating others, I can help them cast off their mental chains. (lawful)
5	Rebellion. The existing order is always corrupt or broken. We have to fight to bring it down. (chaotic)
6	Anarchy. I believe the world would be better off without society and it's rules telling us what to do. (chaotic)

D6	Bond
1	I lost my closest friend to the people responsible for our oppression, and I will never forget that pain.
2	I know my family meant well, but they did more harm than good trying to lead me down the "right" path. I'm still figuring out how to feel about that.
3	I owe my freedom to a group or organization that helped me find my own voice and identity.
4	I was personally victimized or demonized by a member of the community I grew up in. Someday they will pay for that.
5	I was indoctrinated into a cult or religious order against my will, and hold nothing but contempt for similar sects or religions
6	Someone I care deeply about is still under the influence of those who tried to control me. I'm going to free them, if it's the last thing I do.

D6	Flaw
1	Despite my opened mind, I still hold a lot of the views or ideas that I was indoctrinated into, and I don't always realize it.
2	I still feel threatened or unsafe in temples or other places associated with my repression. Even if I know I'm not in danger.
3	At night I still have nightmares about what I went through and the ways I was manipulated.
4	I'm still far more naïve than I realize, and it makes me easy to manipulate or control.
5	I have a penchant for vices and overindulging in things I was never allowed to before.
6	I don't handle authority well, and spit in the face of people I really shouldn't, even when I don't have any reason to.

Sanguine Curse

You bear the sanguine curse of vampirism, and must feed on the blood of others to sustain yourself. Perhaps you obtained your curse among former adventures, or perhaps it was something you were born with. Maybe you even chose this path yourself. Born or Bitten, you are now and forever a creature of the night, with all the gifts and afflictions of that vampirism brings.

Skill Proficiencies: Choose two from Arcana, Deception, or Intimidation
Languages: One Language of your Choice
Tool Proficiencies: Disguise Kit
Equipment: A dungeoneer's pack or diplomat's pack, A set of fine clothes, a heavy hooded cloak and parasol, a pair of gloves, and a pair of glasses with tinted lenses.

Racial Template: Vampire

You are considered a vampire, and gain the following traits

- Your Constitution Score increases By 1.
- Inhibition is reduced by 1.
- You gain the Necrotic Bite, Vital Transfusion and Sleepless racial traits from the vampire race.
- You gain the Sunlight Sensitivity, and Radiant Aversion racial traits from the vampire race.
- You have darkvision out to a range of 60 ft.
- You can sense the presence and location of all creatures within 30 ft which have flowing blood

Drawback: Vampiric Quirks

Every vampire has a unique set of obsessive quirks - oddities such as a fear of garlic, the requirement of a formal invitation before entering a home, or the need to always have a specific object at hand. . Work with your DM to determine two to three unique quirks that set your vampire apart - these quirks are absolute, and cannot be ignored or overcome by force of will.

Suggested Characteristics

Vampires are as cursed as they are powerful, forever hungering for a missing part of their soul. Their ideals vary widely, but their flaws often become as real a weakness as any blade. Vampiric personalities are peppered with odd quirks or behaviours. A Vampire's strongest bond is often to it's sire, or the vampire who turned it, although the nature of this relationship varies.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I am something of a blood connoisseur, and possess strong opinions concerning my diet.
2	I grew up on romanticized stories of vampires, and try to present myself the in the same way.
3	I maintain increasingly outdated customs and values from decades or centuries ago
4	I go out of my way to be the opposite of vampire stereotypes.
5	The mind can only remember so many names and faces, and after so many years, I tend to get them all mixed up
6	Others of my kind might call me a messy eater. I tend to leave a bit of a horror show after feeding.

D6	Ideal
1	Nobility. There are certain forms which simply must be obeyed. Those who break those traditions aren't worthy to call themselves vampires. (Lawful)
2	Predation. Just as wolves hunt rabbits, my natural place is that of a hunter. It's simply a part of the food chain. (Evil)
3	Temperance. My condition makes me a danger to those around me. I must take care to minimize the harm of my actions, even as I do what I must to survive. (Good)
4	Cure. I detest what I am, and forever seek some way to lift this curse. (Any)
5	Entertainment. Nothing matters in the grand scheme of time, I am only here to sooth my own boredom. (Chaotic)
6	Family. The people around us are far more important than any thing, even if their life are short and fleeting.

D6	Bond
1	I view other vampires, especially those I have sired, as family, And I am very protective of my family
2	My sire is like a parent to me. They guided me into this new undeath, and helped me become who I am
3	I keep track of the descendants of those I once knew. Though generations have passed, I cannot help but see my old friends in each new face.
4	I have frequented the same establishment or city for longer than a mortal lifetime, and have grown attached.
5	I am pursued by a hunter of my kind who is hellbent on driving a stake through my heart.
6	My immortality caused me to outlive someone I loved with all my heart, and I have never quite recovered.

D6	Flaw
1	Mortals are nothing more than blood-banks to me, so I frequently underestimate them.
2	I lack proper understanding of my nature, and falsely believe in one or more apocryphal 'rules' of being a vampire.
3	My hunger is especially potent, to the point that one might describe me as an addict.
4	I am pathologically bored, and struggle to care about anything around me.
5	I believe my immortality makes me far more indestructible than I am, and frequently put myself in danger because of it
6	I often expose myself to sunlight or other painful elements of my curse, just to remind myself what I am.

Scorned Lover

You were once madly in love, but the object of your affection betrayed you, and has since become your sworn enemy. Your lover may have been a person of great importance, a cruel charlatan, or perhaps even the party's ultimate foe. Whatever the case, you seek revenge, and will do whatever it takes to get it.

Skill Proficiencies: Insight, Investigation
Languages: One language of your choice.
Tool Proficiencies: Poisoner's Kit, or one Artisan tool set of your choice
Equipment: An equipment pack of your choice, a self pleasure kit, a set of fine clothes or travellers clothes, a poisoner's Kit, or one artisan tool set of your choice, and a small wooden box containing mementos of your ex lover.

Feature: Scorned Obsession

You keep constant tabs on your former lover, and have a network on informants who can provide you with information about their movements and affairs.

Suggested Characteristics

Relationships fail for all manner of reasons, but a Scorned Lover is inspired by some act of betrayal they consider especially heinous. Their greatest bond is the obsession they hold for their former lover, but this obsession can take a variety of forms. Their flaws or ideals drive them towards vengeance, and that same vengeance can sometimes subsume major elements of their personality.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I fill the void in my heart with a constant string of one night stands.
2	I meticulously keep a book of people who wrong me. One day, I will cross off those names.
3	Words are cheap, and I don't trust anyone to keep their promises.
4	I'm a hopeless romantic, and fall in love with any suitor who makes me feel special.
5	I will never admit it, but I cry at night thinking about the love that was almost real.
6	I still love the person who betrayed me, and I hate myself for it.

D6	Ideal
1	Safety. I will never let anyone else be hurt the way I was. I must defend the hearts of others as if they were my own, (Good)
2	Vengeance. I will not be made a fool of. Anyone who wrongs me will pay dearly for it. (Chaotic)
3	Jealousy. If I can't have happiness, no one else deserves it either. (Evil)
4	Honesty. I believe that how a person keeps their word is the true indicator of who they are. Liars and Cheats are the scum of the earth. (Lawful)
5	Pragmatism. I let my heart lead me astray once, and I will never make that mistake again. (Any)
6	Closure. I don't need to see anyone suffer. I just want closure, and to put this whole thing to rest.

D6	Bond
1	My lover betrayed me for someone else, and I blame them for everything that happened.
2	There was someone who helped me recover after my ex-lover's betrayal, and I think of them as my closest friend.
3	I am not the only one who suffered at the hands of my ex lover, and I keep in close contact with others that they betrayed.
4	I still don't understand why I was betrayed, and am desperately searching for the reason behind it all.
5	My lover stole something of great importance from me, and I have to get it back.
6	My ex and I are still magically connected somehow, whether we like it or not.

D6	Flaw
1	Love is out to get me, So I hurt others before they can hurt me.
2	I refuse to take responsibility for my own part in things, and can always find a way to blame others.
3	My love life is a constant string of bad decisions and abusive relationships.
4	I blame myself for my own betrayal, and treat myself badly because of it.
5	I assume everyone is going to betray me the way my ex did, and refuse to let anyone get close.
6	I drown my feelings in liquor or some other vice. Why shouldn't I?

Serpent Spawn

One of your parents was a Lamia Noble, and you have inherited that monstrous lineage and all that comes with it. Were you raised among monsters, or among men?

Skill Proficiencies: Choose two from Arcana, Deception, or Persuasion
Languages: One Language of your Choice
Tool Proficiencies: Poisoner's Kit
Equipment: A dungeoneer's pack or diplomat's pack, A set of fine clothes or a set of fetish armor, three bottles of massage oil, and a phial of succubus venom.

Racial Template: Lamia

You are considered a lamia, and gain the following traits

- Your Charisma Score increases By 1.
- Inhibition is reduced by 1.
- You gain the Sinuous Strike, and Serpent's Coils racial traits from the lamia race.
- You gain the Cold-Blooded, Ravenous Appetite, and Serpentine Bulk racial traits from the lamia race.
- If you would have or gain a cock, you instead gain two cocks, and may make a sexual advance with both of them as part of the same action.

Drawback: Monstrous Linage

No matter what you do to hide your monstrous appearance, or prove your good intentions, nothing will change the simple fact that you are born of monsters. Most people will be frightened by your monstrous appearance, and assume you are attempting to charm or manipulate them, regardless of your intent. Adventurers and monster hunters will be suspicious, if not outright hostile to you.

Suggested Characteristics

Most often raised by their lamia parent, serpent spawn can never escape their vile heritage. Thier monstrous nature often shows itself in unsettling flaws and ideal or elements of their personality that others find unsavoury. Despite this - or perhaps because of it - the bonds they form are as tight as their serpentine coils.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I am a connoisseur of rare and exotic meats, and will happily go out of my way to try something new.
2	I like to keep people guessing about how dangerous I really am.
3	I love riddles, puzzles and other challenges, and will never turn down the chance to prove my mental superiority.
4	I see nothing wrong with my monstrous tendencies, and make no point of hiding them.
5	I am ravenously hungry, and will never turn down the chance for another meal.
6	I seek sexual partners based on their breeding and influence, personal attraction has nothing to do with it.

D6	Ideal
1	Vanity. Appearances are everything. How can you expect anyone to take you seriously if you don't look the part? (Any)
2	Predation. Other creatures are little more than prey to me, waiting to be lured into my trap. (Evil)
3	Heroism. I may be a monster, but that doesn't mean I cannot be a force for good. (Good)
4	Wealth. Wealth is the mark of nobility, and I deserve to live like royalty. (Any)
5	Reparations. My kind have been the source of so much suffering. I hope to make up for at least some small measure of that. (Good)
6	Pleasure. What good is life if we do not enjoy it? I intend to live mine to the fullest.

D6	Bond
1	I share a close bond with my Lamia parent, and frequently call on them for advice.
2	My lamia parent devoured their mate before I ever had a chance to meet them. I long to know more about that side of myself.
3	I have many children of my own, who I watch carefully to ensure they are living up to their potential.
4	I once loved a mortal, who I have long since outlived. Their memory if my most cherished possession.
5	I have killed and eaten my fair share of prey, some of them had friends or families that now want me dead.
6	I have a special relationship with a variety of traders and am sometimes called on to make certain their interests are protected.

D6	Flaw
1	I see no difference between men and beasts. Both are equally suited to be my prey.
2	I have a destructive streak longer than my mother's tail, and thrill at the chance to exert my monstrous power
3	I am a habitual liar, and rarely speak the truth, even when it would serve me best to do so.
4	I am vain in the extreme, and punish even the slightest damage to my appearance with violence.
5	I have no interest in mortal affairs, and see people only as a means to an end.
6	I never let perfectly good meat go to waste. Even if those around me don't appreciate my particular diet.

Shape Seeker

Something about your body is just wrong, and you struggle every day to understand what, or to seek a form that feels true. Perhaps the form you hold now is not your own, or perhaps something about the way you were born just doesn't feel right. While you have tried countless tonics and temporary solutions, none of them has truly given you piece, so you have begun your adventures in pursuit of something that will.

Skill Proficiencies: Deception, Insight
Languages: One language of your choice
Tool Proficiencies: Disguise Kit
Equipment: An explorer's pack, an aftercare kit or self pleasure kit, a disguise kit, a strap on harness or binder, traveller's cloths and a costume or affirming "disguise" of your choice.

Feature: Practiced disguise

You have tried countless ways to change your shape or form, and while none have given you satisfaction, they have made you adept at hiding your natural appearance. You have perfected a single disguise which you wear regularly, and may don or doff in half the normal time. Most creatures recognize you in this disguise, and are unable to identify your normal appearance.

Suggested Characteristics

Many shape seekers are transgender or transexual, but others might feel that they inhabit a body of the wrong race, or even seek to become some great beast or magical creature. Whatever form they seek, such individuals are so at odds with their own body that they are willing to put their lives on the line to fix change it, and often have deep flaws relating to this dysphoria. Their ideals and personalities are defined by who they have decided to be, rather than the way they were born. The bonds they form are with those who see them as they see themselves, or relate to those who have consistently gotten in the way of their happiness.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I believe I used to be another creature, and have somehow become trapped in this body.
2	I am unsure what form would feel most right for me. I just know that this one feels wrong.
3	I cant stand being limited to only a single form, and am searching for ways to change my shape at will.
4	I exclusively wear baggy or unflattering clothes to help hide my body, as much from myself as from the leering gaze of others.
5	I am hyper-obsessesed with the creature I want to be, and will talk endlessly about it to anyone who will listen.
6	I rely on potions or other magic to help me feel less dysphoric.

D6	Ideal
1	Understanding. I believe that kindness and acceptance begin with understanding and empathy. The more people understand, the kinder they will be (Good)
2	Community. I believe that everyone deserves a supportive community where they feel welcome and validated. (Good)
3	Self. I will be true to myself, no matter the consequences. (Chaotic)
4	Exploration. I believe that no one can truly understand who they are unless they are willing to explore who they could be. (Chaotic)
5	Equality. No matter who or what you are, or wish to be, everyone deserves to be treated with empathy and respect. (Good)
6	Reciprocity. Those who hurt others deserve to be hurt in kind. Especially those motivated by bigotry and prejudice.

D6	Bond
1	I have a poor relationship with those who raised me, and never want to see them again.
2	I have a found family of supportive companions who helped me feel wanted and accepted for the first time.
3	I once experienced a traumatic event associated with my identity, and I'm not sure I will ever fully recover.
4	I would never have realized who I am, or who I want to be, without the help of a particular friend.
5	I still have a separate persona I put on around those who wouldn't accept me for who I am.
6	Someone I care for still only knows me as who I used to be, and I haven't had the courage to open up to them yet.

D6	Flaw
1	I feel perpetually uncomfortable in my own body, and it causes me severe dysphoria and anxiety
2	I assume any slight against me is a purposeful attack against my preferred identity.
3	I tend to be shy and reserved, and often have trouble speaking up, even when I know I should.
4	I perpetually gatekeep my chosen identity from others who don't share the same experiences as me.
5	I have an ever-changing collection of micro-identities, and get upset with anyone who can't keep track of them all.
6	I will violently defend the identities of others. Even when they don't want me to.

Slaver

You are an entrepreneur and a businessman, though your trade of choice may be unsavoury to others. You trade in livestock of a sort, generally the sort that walk on two legs and aren't particularly happy to be bought and sold. Whether you acquire slaves through conquest, punishment for a crime, or other even less savoury methods, you have been in this business a long time, and know all of it's ins and outs.

Skill Proficiencies: Deception, Intimidation
Languages: One language of your choice
Weapon/Implement Proficiencies: Whips, Floggers
Equipment: A travellers pack, an abacus and logbook, three slave collars, 4 sets of manacles, 50 ft of chain, and a rigger's pack or sadist's pack.

Feature: Menacing Aura

You have an aura about you that attracts those in the know, and keeps those who aren't at a safe distance. Common people fear you and will to their best to stay out of your way. Meanwhile you have plenty of unsavoury contacts, and can secure entry into flesh markets for yourself and any suitably secured slaves.

Suggested Characteristics

No one becomes a slaver for good reasons. Generally, such individuals are flawed in ways others find deeply revolting, either by way of their own personality, or simply the culture they are a part of. The ideals of slavers vary, with most seeking wealth in some form, but some might be surprisingly altruistic in their own twisted ways. The bonds they hold are rarely savoury ones, and often involve debt, trauma or various criminal activities. Occasionally, slavers are even former slaves themselves.

D6	Personality Trait
1	I enjoy the feeling of handling money, and frequently thumbing through my coin purse, or otherwise fidget with my coins
2	I'm generous with my coin, and enjoy treating others as a way to soothe my conscience
3	I have a sales pitch ready for any scenario, and some way to explain myself out of anything.
4	I never forget a debt, and I will always come to collect.
5	I used to be a slave myself, and I remember what it's like.
6	There's nothing I hate more than my livestock speaking to me.

D6	Ideal
1	Wealth. I don't care about morality or laws. The only god I server is the all mighty coin. (Chaotic)
2	Contract. Once I have agreed to a deal, I will honor it no matter what. And I expect others to do the same. (Lawful)
3	Power. The strong will always hold power over the weak. I am strong, and my merchandise is weak. That's all there is to it. (Evil)
4	Family. I don't like this trade anymore than the slaves I sell, but I do what I must to take care of those I care about. (Chaotic)
5	Mercy. I do this to ensure that those I buy and sell are not abused by people far less merciful than myself. (good)
6	Society. Slavery is an intrinsic part of the economy, and I provide a vital service.

D6	Bond
1	I owe a great debt to someone else in this trade, and if I don't pay up, I'm fucked.
2	I have a favourite slave who I will never Sell, no matter what price I'm offered.
3	I'm loyal to my employer or business partners, and would rather die that let them down.
4	Someone I care about was sold into slavery, and I am determined to buy their freedom.
5	I have a family that lives far from this place, and has no idea what I do to pay for our way of life.
6	I'll walk to the Nine Hells and back to ensure a customer receives exactly what they're looking for.

D6	Flaw
1	I enjoy my vices, and can often be found carousing and engaging in all manner of drug or drink.
2	I never let go of a grudge, filing it away like any other debt I am owed.
3	I have to be in control of any situation I'm a part of.
4	I take my anger and frustrations out on whoever and whatever is closest. Usually that's my Merchandise
5	I like to live like a king, and spend my money lavishly, whether or not business is booming.
6	I only pretend to be a hard-ass to keep others in line. In private I'm about as soft as they come.

Vices and Addictions

Addiction and substance abuse are not topics to play lightly, but they can come up frequently in campaigns with erotic or adult themes. The rules below provide some basic guidelines on handling addiction, withdrawal, and other side effects of substance use or abuse.

Vices

There are any number of things a creature can become addicted to in an adult fantasy - from drugs and alcohol, to illicit forms of magic, or even sex itself. Not all DMs will share the same idea of what substances or activities are or are not addictive - your DM may even rule that it can be different from character to character.

For the purpose of this rule book, however, a "Vice" refers to any substance or activity to which a creature could become psychologically, magically or chemically addicted. Vices come in four basic forms, each of which act on a different type of ability score for checks and saving throws:

Chemical: Chemical Vices are usually substances like drugs or alcohol which act on the body in some direct way to create a powerful addiction. These vices tend to be the most common, and as such, can often be the most difficult to break free of. Chemical vices act on Constitution for their addiction saving throws

Magical: In a world of magic, even arcane power itself can often become an addiction. Magical Vices can be anything from forbidden spells or schools of magic, to the infernal charm of a powerful succubi. Whatever form they take, these vices act on a creature magically, corrupting them through arcane means. Magical vices act on Wisdom for addiction saving throws

Psychological: Even things like sex and music can become addictive to the right personality. Psychological Vices can be anything from habitual behaviours to hallucinogenic substances, and are often the most affected by a character's own predispositions - taking advantage of faults of personality. Psychological Vices act on Charisma for their addiction saving throws

Complex Vices: Some vices are not clear cut as to what category they might fall into, or act on a character in more than one way. In these cases, it is up to your DM to determine what type of saving throw is used. In some cases, complex vices may even require multiple types of saving throw, depending on the stage of your addiction.

Becoming Addicted

Regardless of the type of vice you are dealing with, addiction itself happens in much the same way.

Each time a creature partakes of a particular vice, they must succeed on an addiction saving throw or become addicted to the vice if they are not already. The base value for this saving throw DC is set by your DM, based on the nature of the vice, and any predispositions your character might have towards that vice. This save DC increases by 1 each time you partake of the same vice within the same one-week period, regardless of weather or not you are already addicted.

Signs of Addiction

Every Vice is different, and offers it's own range of effects and side effects, but the symptoms of addiction itself are generally consistent

- An addicted creature has disadvantage on checks and saving throws relating to their vice's addiction saving throw while currently affected by or in the presence of their vice.
- An addicted creature has disadvantage on saving throws against spells, effects, and persuasion checks that involve their vice
- An addicted creature feels a regular compulsion to partake in their vice, and must do so at least once every 24 hours, or begin suffering symptoms of Withdrawal.

Symptoms of Withdrawal

A creature cut off form their supply of an addicted vice begins suffering symptoms of withdrawal. These symptoms can sometimes vary widely, and are subject to your DM's decision, but the rules below are suitable for most Vices:

- Each time a creature suffering from withdrawal completes a long rest, they must make an addiction saving throw against their vice's DC, or gain a level of exhaustion. On a roll on a roll of 1, the creature instead gains 2 levels of exhaustion.
- While suffering from withdrawal, a creature must succeed on an addiction saving throw against their vice any time they are knowingly in it's presence. On a failure, they attempt to partake of their vice through any means possible.

Getting Clean

Overcoming addiction is often a long and arduous process, and often cannot be accomplished without help. Each time a creature succeeds on an addiction saving throw against their vice as part of completing a long rest, the DC of their addiction saving throw is reduced by one. When this saving throw DC reaches it's base value, the creature makes on additional addiction saving throw against their vice, ending the addiction on a success.

There are a variety of ways to assist a creature in recovering from addiction, often through the use of spells or similar effects:

- A Lessor Restoration spell, or similar effect, can be used to grant you advantage on Addiction saving throws against a single vice until after you complete your next long rest
- A Greater Restoration spell, or similar effect, can be used to grant you automatic success on Addiction saving throws against a single vice until after you complete your next long rest.
- A Remove Curse spell, or similar effect, can be used to decrease the addiction save DC of a single Magical Vice by 1 for each level above second at which the spell is cast.
- A creature proficient in medicine may expend a one use of a healer's kit to grant you advantage on Addiction saving throws against a single vice until after you complete your next long rest

Sample Vices

There are a near infinite variety of Vices that characters might fall victim to. The examples below barely even scratch the surface of what an adventurer might encounter, but they can be used as a guide by DMs or player looking to make use of addiction mechanics.

If a vice does not have a specific entry for addiction, withdrawal, or getting clean, use the standard rules on the previous page. Some of the things listed here may only serve as vices to particularly predisposed characters. Talk to your DM when deciding what may or may not be treated as a vice for your character.

Alcohol

Complex Vice (Chemical, Psychological)
Base DC: 10

From mead and brandy, to absinth and fine wine, alcohol is perhaps the most common vices in all the world, and alcoholism is one of the most ever present dangers an adventurer might face.

Addiction: Truly alcoholic creatures often find themselves more intoxicated in the absence of alcohol than the presence of it. You must consume at least one glass or bottle of alcohol every 4 hours, or become intoxicated until you do. You have advantage on saving throws against the intoxicated condition.

Getting Clean: Alcoholism is a notoriously difficult addition to break. If you have previously suffered from this addiction, the addiction save DC increases by 2 each time you partake of this vice, instead of 1.

Sex

Psychological Vice
Base DC: 8

Sex feels good, and for some people, it becomes an addictive vice that can drive them to act in ways far outside their usual nature.

Addiction: Creatures addicted to sex struggle to resist sexual advances. You are considered hyperaroused at all times, And gain he Nymphomanic condition while your current arousal is above half it's maximum value

Withdrawal: Recovering from sex addiction can be a struggle, but is not so intense as many other addictions. You gain levels of overstimulation, rather than exhaustion, when failing an addiction save against this vice.

Succubus Venom

Chemical Vice
Base DC: 14

Succubus venom is a powerful aphrodisiac common in dens of sexual depravity, and used to provide a powerful kick of arousal at illicit parties or clubs. It can be ingested, or applied as a contact poison with varying effects, but it's addictive qualities are the same regardless of how it used.

Addiction: Creatures addicted to succubus venom are especially vulnerable to seductive manipulation. You have disadvantage on saving throws against the charmed and infatuated conditions.

Withdrawal: While suffering from withdrawal, creatures addicted to succubus venom often suffer erotic hallucinations of past sexual partners, and struggle to get off without assistance. You gain the denied condition.

Healing Magic

Magical Vice
Base DC: 8

Most people never encounter enough danger to develop an addiction to magical healing, but for an active adventurer, it can become a fix they crave, even while at the peak of health.

Addiction: An addiction to healing magic most frequently presents itself as a case of diminishing returns. You regain only half the normal hit points from nonmagical sources of healing, including hit dice expended during long or short rests.

Getting Clean: Breaking the cycle of addiction can be especially difficult, because using magic to lesson the effects of withdrawal only feeds into the addiction. Being targeted by spells such as Lesser restoration, Greater restoration, or Remove Curse causes you to automatically fail an addiction saving throw against this vice.

Mirage Fever

Magical Vice
Base DC: 14

Mirage Fever affects those who willingly expose themselves to illusions, either as a form of escapism or for any number of other reasons. Eventually, to those suffering from Mirage Fever, even unpleasant illusions become preferable to unfiltered reality.

Addiction: Those suffering form mirage fever crave the sensation of altered perception. You have disadvantage on saving throws against spells, effects, and persuasion checks that involve illusions.

While your addiction save DC is equal to 18 or higher, you struggle to separate even your own illusions from reality. You must make saving throws to recognize the illusory nature of all illusions, even if you know they are illusions.

Withdrawal: The withdrawal of Mirage Fever is particularly taxing on the mind. Your wisdom score is reduced by 1 for each level of addiction you are currently suffering due to withdrawal.

Lewd Feats

Some adventurer's have more extensive sexual experience than others, and have even honed their skills and abilities for just such encounters. While the feats listed below may not always be of themost use in traditional combat, they represent time and training to perfect yourself for more sexual encounters.

Bondage Caster

Prerequisite: The ability to cast at least one spell

You have "trained" for years to be able to cast spells using the most subtle of movements and sounds. Not because you care to be stealthy, but because sex is so much more fun when you are tied up.

- You add your spellcasting ability modifier to slight of hand checks.
- You ignore the somatic components of spells while physically restrained or wearing bondage equipment such as ropes, arm-binders, or bitchsuits.
- You ignore the verbal components of spells while silenced by a physical gag or other object.

Blood Caster

Prerequisite: Vampire or Sanguine Curse background, the ability to cast at least one spell

Weather by natural affinity, or heretical study, you have mastered the forbidden rites of blood magic. When you cast a spell, you may use a bonus action to expend a hit dice, and gain one of the following effects:

Scarlet Binding. By consuming one ounce of a creature's blood and dealing slashing damage to yourself equal to the spell's level + the maximum value of the hit dice spent, you may target that creature from any distance, even if you do not have line of sight.

Blood Channel. When casting a spell which requires concentration, you may choose to ignore the concentration requirement of the spell and instead take slashing damage equal to the spell's level each round that the spell remains in effect. To willingly end the spell before for the end of its duration, you must succeed on a constitution saving throw against your own spell save DC

Sanguine Empowerment. You deal slashing damage to yourself equal to the spell's level + the maximum value of the hit dice spent to empower your casting, adding your constitution modifier to your spell attack modifier or spell save DC. Damage you take as part of this feature cannot be reduced in any way.

Cumheart

Prerequisite: Myxapia Race, Concuborn background

Within your plasmodial center is a core of delicious swirling pleasure.

- You may consume at least 8 ounces of cum or other sexual fluids each day, in place of food and water.
- Each time you consume the cum or sexual fluids of a creature, you instantly learn one of the its Fetishes, Kinks or Sexual Fantasies, as per the Detect Sexuality spell.
- Creatures grappled using your Engulf racial trait gain the Hyperaroused condition until the end of their next turn.

You cannot select this feat multiple times.

Curse Seeker

You know your way around cursed items and equipment, and have learned to use them to your advantage.

- You have advantage on checks and saving throws made to resist the effects of curses and cursed magic items.
- You gain an additional attunement slot, which may only be used to attune to cursed items.

Clasp Master

You have spent more than your fair share of time stripping away clothes and armor:

- You may doff any clothes or armor you are wearing as an action on your turn, regardless of complexity or armor type.
- As an action on your turn, you may attempt a slight of hand check against the AC of an armored target within 5 ft. This action counts as a sexual advance, and you have disadvantage on this check if the target is hostile. On a success, you remove the target's armor or clothing, and it drops to the ground in the target's space. This ability has no effect on natural armor.

Consensual Caster
You have focussed your magical talents to extend your spellcasting in consensual situations.

When you Cast a Spell that has a Duration of 1 minute or longer as part of a Sexual Advance, you may extend this duration up to 1 hour. If you do so, the spell ends immediately if you or any creature affected by the spell is no longer willing. You may use this ability a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.

Endowed
Through natural gift or persistent use of sexual enhancement products, you are gifted with impressive size.

- Choose one of you natural sexual implements. This implement is treated as one size larger for the purpose of sexual advances.
- Sexual advances you make using this implement score a critical hit on a roll of 19 or 20.

Elemental Core
Prerequisite: Myxapia Race

Your Plasmodium contains a unique core of elemental power. When you gain this feat, choose one of the following stimulation types: cold, fire, lightning, or thunder

- When you use your Acidic Touch racial trait, you may choose to deal the chosen damage type in place of acid
- When you would take damage of the chosen type, you may use a reaction to gain resistance to that damage type until the end of your next turn.

You cannot select this feat multiple times.

Erotic Endurance
You are well practiced at pushing the limits of your arousal, and those limits have increased as a result.

- Your arousal maximum increases by an amount equal to twice your level when you gain this feat.
- Whenever you gain a level thereafter, your arousal maximum increases by an additional 2 stimulation points.

Expansion Port
Prerequisite: Pleasure Doll Race, Or Malfunctioning Doll background

Your Chassis has been adapted to quickly take advantage of a wider range of attachments and components.

- You gain two additional speciality slots, which can be used to attach various components.
- The time it takes you to install or swap speciality components is reduced by half.

Hostless Survival
Prerequisite: Xio Race

You have spent an unfortunate amount of time living without a host, and have learned to adapt to the desperate needs of such situations

- You can survive a number of days without a host equal to your proficiency bonus before you must begin making constitution saving throws, as per your Synthetic Symbiote racial trait.
- While not worn by a host, your movement speed becomes 40 ft, and you gain a climb speed equal to the same amount, allowing you to climb upside down and along vertical surfaces without making an athletics check.

Limit Breaker
You have spent countless hours learning to use a specific element to elicit incredible pleasure. When you gain this feat, choose one of the following stimulation types: acid, cold, fire, lightning, or thunder.

- Your sexual advances ignore resistance to stimulation of the chosen type.
- When you roll for stimulation of that type, you can treat any 1 on a stimulation die as a 2

You can select this feat multiple times. Each time you do so, you must choose a different damage type.

Hypnotic Coils

Prerequisite: Lamia Race or Serpent Spawn background.

Your serpentine coils are downright hypnotic in the way they shimmer and writhe beneath the sun.

You know the Suggestion spell, and may cast it without expending a spell slot when targeting creatures grappled using your Serpent's Coils trait. You may use this feature a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Improvised Implement Master

You have spent your entire life sticking things where they don't belong, and you aren't about to stop now!

- You gain proficiency with improvised sexual implements.
- Your improvised sexual implement attacks deal 2d4 stimulation.
- When you hit a creature with an improvised weapon on your turn, you can use a bonus action to make an intimidation check against the target as a skilled advance.

Natural Prowess

Your sexual prowess is unmatched, and you know just how to use your natural gifts to best effect. Choose one of you natural sexual implements.

- You add twice your proficiency bonus when making sexual advances with this implement.
- When you roll stimulation for a sexual advance made using this implement, you can treat any 1 on a stimulation die as a 2

You can select this feat multiple times. Each time you do so, you must choose a different natural implement.

Queertouched

Whether a staunch ally or queerfolk yourself, your life has been positively touched by the presence of queerfolk, and you have learned to recognize and support your allies.

- You learn the Detect Sexuality spell, and may cast it once without expending a spell slot, after which you must complete a short rest before you may do so again.
- You have advantage on insight checks made to identify racial or sexual prejudices in other creatures.
- When a queertouched or queerfolk ally would fail a charisma or wisdom saving throw, you may use your reaction to interpose yourself, replacing their saving throw with your own. On a failure, you are both subject to the effects of the fails saving throw.

Rapid Recovery

Repeated practice has trained you to recover more quickly from the ecstasy of climax.

- You have advantage on saving throws made to recover from climaxing.
- When spending Recovery Dice to reduce your arousal, you add twice your proficiency bonus to the number rolled.

Rope Master

You are well acquainted with ropes and bindings, and can work more quickly than most. The time it takes you to restrain a target using ropes or other restraints is reduced by half.

- Creatures have disadvantage on check made to escape ropes or other restraints you have applied.
- You have advantage on checks made to escape mundane restraints or bindings.

Seductive Defence

You have learned to use your seductive wiles like a suit of armor, distracting your opponents with provocative displays to break their focus and thwart their attacks.

- While wearing Fetish armor, a your armor class equals 10 + your Charisma modifier + your proficiency bonus.
- As a reaction when you or an ally within 5 ft are targeted by a melee attack, you may attempt to distract the triggering creature by making a performance check contested by the target's wisdom saving throw. On a success, the triggering attack is made at disadvantage.

Sex Shifter

Prerequisite: Concubi Race or Racial Template

Your sexual identity changes from day to day, and thanks to your exotic lineage, Your body changes just as fast.

- Each time you complete a long or short rest, you may choose to alter your sexual characteristics, - including genitals, breasts, and general appearance - to reflect your preferred appearance. You may choose to exhibit any combination or sexual characteristics natural to your race, but cannot grow sexual implements that are of a different size category than your own, or implements such as tentacles or pseudopods that would be considered unnatural for your race.
- Your Dexterity or Strength score increases by one. Each time you alter your sexual characteristics as part of a long rest, you may also choose to change which of these ability scores this benefit applies to.

Sexual Mastery

You have what some might call and unhealthy amount of experience with a variety of sex toys and sexual partners, granting you the following benefits:

- You gain proficiency with four sexual implements of your choice.
- When rolling stimulation for an advance made using your natural sexual implements, you may reroll any dice result equal to or lower than your proficiency bonus. You may reroll each stimulation dice in this way once

Sexual Tyrannosaurus

You have the sexual stamina of a Tyrannosaurus, and the sex drive to match. You treat overstimulation as if it were one level less, and have advantage on saving throws made to recover from climax.

Telepathic Reach

Prerequisite: Xio or Xiborne Race

Your natural telepathic gift has been honed to more easily communicate with creatures beyond your host:

- You may communicate telepathically with any creature within 30 ft. You don't need to share a language to be heard, but creatures who do not know a language may be unable to understand you.
- As a bonus action on your turn, you may focus your telepathy to sense the presence, but not the location of all creatures within 30ft who have in Intelligence Score of 6 or greater

Voracious Appetite

Prerequisite: Lamia Race or Serpent Spawn background

Your Appetite is truly Endless, and like any self-respecting serpent, you swallow your prey whole:

You know the Swallow spell, and may cast it without expending a spell slot. You may use this feature once between long rests, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again. Constitution is your spellcasting ability for this spell.

Fetishes

A fetish is more than just something kinky you are into. Fetishes represent substantial experience spent exploring and indulging in a particular sexual act or interest, and provide you with mechanical effects that reflect not just your attraction to a specific kink, but how that kink has helped define you as a person.

Unlike Feats, which contain only positive benefits, Fetishes have both positive and negative elements, based on what your character has learned from exploring their most passionate desires, as well as what urges they struggle to resist of those passions.

Anonymist

The mask stays on, especially during sex. It's more fun not knowing who's behind it.

- Skill Checks made to identify you are made at disadvantage.
- Your gain the hyperaroused condition while either you or your partner remain hidden or otherwise unidentified.

Brainless Bimbo

You realized a long time ago that your looks do you more favours than your brains.

- You have disadvantage on intelligence checks and saving throws.
- Whenever you fail an intelligence check or saving throw, you gain advantage on your next persuasion check or sexual advance.

Brat Tamer

There's no mistaking who is in charge when you're around. But it's no fun if they don't put up a little fight

- You have advantage on intimidation and persuasion checks.
- When you succeed on an intimidation or persuasion check, you gain the hyperaroused condition until the end of your next turn.

Chaste Onlooker

You have sworn a vow of chastity, but only because it gets you off.

- You add your proficiency bonus to your Inhibition.
- You do not add your constitution modifier when calculating your Arousal Maximum.

Collared Pet

Your animalistic affection for your allies knows no bounds, and gives you a better understanding of than most of the behaviour of common beasts.

- You have advantage on animal handling checks, and on checks made to interact with domesticated animals, or beasts with a CR of 2 or lower.
- Creatures may add their animal handling skill bonus when making persuasion or intimidation checks against you.

Edge Puppet

Why would you ever want to cum when it feels so good riding the edge?

- You have advantage on climax saving throws.
- When you gain the edged condition, you do not drop what you are holding or fall prone.
- You are Incapacitated, rather than Stunned, while subjected to the edged condition.
- The number of hours you can remain edging without suffering overstimulation is doubled
- You are Stunned, rather than Incapacitated, after climaxing.
- You have disadvantage on attack rolls, skill checks and saving throws while below half your maximum arousal.

Exhibitionist

You find it impossible to enjoy yourself properly without the risk of being seen.

- You have advantage on climax saving throws while not observed by at least one creature other than your partner.
- Your inhibition is reduced by the number of creatures other than your partner who can see or hear you, up to a maximum penalty of -6

Healslut

Nothing is more arousing to you than being useful to your allies, especially in the heat of battle.

- When your use a spell or other ability that restores hit points to another creature, you may roll 1d6 and add the result to the hit points restored.
- When you use a spell or other ability that restores hit points to another creature, you gain the hyperaroused condition until the end of your next turn.

Hypnodomme
You have an erotic attraction to hypnotized or enchanted creatures, and have learned a variety of techniques to maximise the effect of such spells

- When casting an enchantment spell, you may force the target to make an Intelligence or Wisdom saving throw in place of the normal saving throw for that spell.
- Whenever a creature fails its saving throw against one of your enchantment spells, you gain psychic stimulation equal to half your proficiency bonus, and become hyperaroused until the end of your next turn.

Ice Enthusiast
Nothing heats you up like an icy chill applied in just the right way. The colder the better.

- You gain resistance to cold damage
- Whenever you take cold damage, you gain cold stimulation equal to the same amount.

Impact Brawler
Nothing gets you as horny and riled up as a good old fashioned fight, and all that impact has taught you how to take a punch.

- You gain resistance to bludgeoning damage from nonmagical sources.
- You gain the hyperaroused condition while at or below half your hit point maximum.

Lactophile
Something about massive milky breasts just sends you over the edge.

- Sexual advances made against you are made with advantage if they involve the use of breasts.
- You gain psychic stimulation equal to your proficiency bonus when watching a creature, including yourself lactate.
- You have advantage on sexual advances when targeting a creature's breasts, and add your proficiency bonus to stimulation dealt in this way.

Lifestyle Dominant
You know how to command others, and gain an erotic thrill from watching them do as they are told.

- You may cast the Command spell without expending a spell slot. You may do so a number of times equal to your proficiency bonus, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again. Charisma is your spellcasting ability for this spell.
- If a creature fails its saving throw against this spell, you gain psychic stimulation equal to the amount by which the saving throw was failed.

Lifestyle Submissive
Your greatest pleasure comes form serving others, and you have been well trained to do so..

- You may take the help action as a bonus action on your turn.
- You have disadvantage on saving throws against intimidation and persuasion checks, as well as effects that apply the charmed, or frightened, or infatuated conditions.

Masochist
You like Pain - plain and simple. The more it hurts, the better it feels.

- Once per round, when you take damage from a weapon attack or unarmed strike, you may use your reaction to gain psychic simulation equal to half the damage taken. If you do so, you gain temporary hit points equal to the damage taken.

Milk Maiden
The feeling of warm milk being squeezed from your tits is just too much!

- You gain vulnerability to the reciprocal stimulation of your own breasts, and sexual advances targeting your breasts automatically deal their maximum stimulation.
- You regularly produce milk, so long as you have no levels of exhaustion. You produce enough milk each day to feed 2 creatures other than yourself.

Musk Huffer
Nothing get you hotter than the thick musk of your partner or the sweet spell of potent pheromones, and you have become a connoisseur of such scents.

- You gain the hyperaroused and intoxicated condition while in the presence of strong sexual aromas such as those produced by a musky partner, or the pheromone releases of a predatory plant.
- You have advantage on nature and survival checks made to locate or track creatures by scent.

Nudist
Clothing and Armor are simply anathema to who you are, and wearing them causes you nothing but irritation.

- While you are not wearing any armor, your armor class equals 10 + your Dexterity modifier + your Charisma modifier. You can use a shield and still gain this benefit.
- You have advantage on saving throws against the effects of extreme climates.
- You lose all proficiency with armor of any type, and treat any clothes other than lingerie as light armor for the purposes of proficiency.

Overstim Addict
You are obsessed with pushing the limits of just how much pleasure your body can take.

- You treat each level of overstimulation as if it were one level less.
- When making a saving throw to recover from climaxing, you treat any dice roll lower than 10 as a 10.
- You begin gaining levels of overstimulation after your first repeated climax, instead of your third.

Parasite Breeder
Whether it is alien eggs, tentacle spawn, or budding new oozes You love being filled in ways most normal folk would find horrific.

- You automatically fail saving throws made to resist non-traditional pregnancy.
- Your gestation period for these pregnancies is reduced by half, and you produce twice the normal number of offspring.
- You gain proficiency in Deep Speech, and can speak telepathically to aberrations and oozes as if you shared a language.

Pyrosexual
You like it hot, and not just metaphorically. All you need to get yourself started is the right kindling.

- You gain resistance to fire damage.
- Whenever you take fire damage, you gain fire stimulation equal to the same amount.

Rebellious Brat
Just because you want to be dominated, doesn't mean you are going to make it easy.

- You have Advantage on Saving throws against intimidation and persuasion checks.
- When you fail a saving throw against an intimidation or persuasion check, you gain psychic stimulation equal to half the Saving throw DC

Rigger
You have spent countless hours learning intricate and erotic knots and restraints, and know a thousand and one ways to keep someone bound.

- The time it takes you to restrain a target using ropes or other restraints is reduced by half.
- You gain the hyperaroused condition while you have line of sight to a restrained creature.

Robosexual
Constructs, Automatons, and Innovations of artifice drive you wild in a way that flesh and blood just don't.

- You know the mending cantrip, and gain proficiency with tinker's tools.
- You gain the hyperaroused condition while within 30 ft of a mechanical construct.

50,000 Volts, strait to the nipples? Sounds like a good time to you!

- You gain resistance to lightning damage
- Whenever you take lightning damage , you gain lightning stimulation equal to the same amount.

Size King/Queen
Whoever said “size doesn’t matter” obviously never met you.

- When targeted by a sexual advance using a phallic implement, you treat the implement as one size category smaller for the purpose of determining stimulation or damage.
- You gain the hyperaroused condition while knowingly in the presence of phallic implements more than one size category above your own.

Slave Keeper
Your partners know that they are no more than property to you. Valuable property.

- Allies with which you have had sex have disadvantage on charisma checks and saving throws while within 10 ft of you.
- Whenever a creature you can see targets an ally within 10 ft of you with an attack or sexual advance, you may use your reaction to make an opportunity attack against the triggering creature.

Swinger
One is boring, two is alright, But three or more is where it finally starts to get interesting.

- You gain resistance to stimulation from direct sexual advances if you are currently engaged by less than two partners
- Whenever you gain stimulation, from a direct sexual advance, you gain additional stimulation equal to your current number of partners, minus 1.

Toy Collector
No living creature will ever be able to please you as well as your favourite toys.

- You gain resistance to stimulation from natural implements.
- You gain vulnerability to stimulation from artificial implements and artificial constructs.

Trance-Sexual
Nothing is more erotic to you than having your mind altered or played with - which has forced you to be hyper-aware of how you might be manipulated.

- You have advantage on insight checks, and checks made to recognize illusions or enchantments.
- You gain Vulnerability to psychic stimulation, and have disadvantage on saving throws against enchantment spells, or other effects that would alter your thoughts or behaviours.

Uninhibited Spellcaster
You get off on the rush of power you feel when magic courses through your body, and are willing to take greater risks to reach greater highs.

- When you cast a spell of 1st level or higher, you may use a reaction to remove all restraint from the spell, casting it as if using a spell slot one level higher, up to a maximum of 9th level. You may do so once, after which you must complete a long rest before you may do so again.
- When you use this feature, you immediately gain the Nymphomanic until the end of your next turn, and you must immediately roll on the Wild and Lustful Magic table to create a magical effect. If that effect requires a target, the target is always yourself, and if it is a spell that normally requires concentration, it doesn't require concentration in this case; the spell lasts for its full duration.

Voyeur
You get off watching the erotic exploits of others, and have a knack for noticing things you were never intended to see.

- You have advantage on investigation and perception checks while hidden.
- You gain psychic stimulation equal to your proficiency bonus whenever a creature you can see hits with a sexual advance, or fails an inhibition saving throw.

Wanton Whore
Who says you can't mix business with pleasure? Nothing gets you hotter than a fistful of dirty gold coins.

- You have advantage on persuasion checks made to offer bribes or payment in the form of sexual favors.
- You gain the hyperaroused condition while performing sexual acts in return for payment or favours.

Xenophile
The stranger the anatomy, the more you need it.

- You have advantage on knowledge checks made to identify creatures.
- You gain vulnerability to stimulation from tentacles, pseudopods, and other non-human sexual implements

Spells

Across the untold centuries, countless perverse and erotic spells have been crafted, to fulfil and exploit all manner of sexual desires. Many of those spells are listed here, although there may always be more.

Arcane

Arcane Spellcasters are those who draw their magic from innate magical prowess, contracts with powerful eldritch beings, or from the weave of magic itself. Their spells are varied, and often learned through study of arcane secrets or first manifest only in dire circumstance. If you aren't sure what source a spellcaster's magic comes from, it is probably Arcane

Source Based spell Lists

The spell lists in this section are categorized not only by class, but also by magical source, with each class listed under one of these sources. Often assigning a character a spell list based on the source of their magical power can make more sense than using the spell list granted by their class - such as in the case of a divine soul sorcerer, or a nature cleric.

This can also help identify what spells might be available to various homebrew classes and subclasses, based on the source of their spellcasting

If something in these lists feels out of place for your character or setting, or you feel it would make sense for your character to know spells not on their class's list, feel free to consult with your DM to decide of changes to your spell list should be made

Primal

Primal casters draw on ancient and worldly sources of magic, preserving ancient traditions, or harnessing the wild forces of nature. Many primal casters call on ancestral spirits, or the land itself for their power, While others have simply learned to mimic the magical abilities of the wild fey or of powerful magical beasts.

Spell Descriptions

There are few things that motivate mortals more than sex, and no less can be said of mages. While most would deny it, anyone with access to magic has at some point wondered just what sorts of unique pleasure they might experience - or create - through their unique craft.

The spells below are Presented in alphabetical order, and represent some of the most well known spells, designed specifically for sex or related purposes.

Affirm Gender

1st- level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: 8 hours

With a gentle touch and an affirming word, you alter a creature's sexual characteristics and natural implements to match it's gender. Sexual implements created in this way are of the same size category as the creature they are attached to.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 2nd Level or higher, the duration of the spell increases by 8 hours for each slot level above 1st. When you cast this spell using spell slot of 6th level or higher, the effect instead becomes permanent.

Alter Genitals

1st- level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: 2 hours

A common bit of magic among horny young apprentices, and perfectly suited for those looking to experiment. You transform your genitals from their native form to something more interesting. You decide the appearance of your new genitals, although your statistics do not change.

Alternatively, you may swap your genitals for another sexual implement, choosing from the following: Cock, Pussy, Pseudopods, or Tentacles

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 2nd Level of higher, the duration of this spell increases for 2 hours for each slot level above 1st.

Angel's Embrace

5th- level necromancy

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes

You extend to your partner the gift of holy ecstasy, allowing pleasure of the body to revitalize the soul. For the duration of this spell, whenever the target gains stimulation of a type other than necrotic, it regains hit points equal to half the same amount.

This spell ends early if the target takes damage form any source.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 6th Level of higher, the duration of the spell increases by 10 minutes for each slot level above 6th.

Animate Clothes

3rd-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 feet
Components: V, S, M (a length of silver thread)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You give eldritch life to the target's clothes, causing them to sexually assault their wearer.

Choose a piece of clothing or armor within range. You bestow the chosen object with unsettling eldritch life, causing it to animate and sexually assault it's wearer. Any creature wearing the object takes 2d8 acid stimulation as living tendrils grope and molest it's body. Until the spell ends, you can use a bonus action on each of your subsequent turns to cause this stimulation again.

As an action on it's turn, the creature may attempt to rapidly free itself from the clothes by making a dexterity check against your spell save DC. If the creature takes stimulation from the worn clothes, it has disadvantage on attack rolls and ability checks until the start of your next turn.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the stimulation increases by 1d8 for each slot above 3rd.

Animate Implement
3rd-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 10 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour

You point to an artificial implement within range, instilling it with a facsimile of life and movement. The target animates and to life for the duration or until you dismiss it as an action. It has 18 AC, 20 hit points, 4 Strength, and 18 Dexterity. Its Constitution is 10 and its Intelligence and Wisdom are 3, and its Charisma is 1. It has a fly speed of 10 ft, and can hover.
The spell ends vanishes if the implement is ever more than 30 feet away from you or if it takes any damage.

You can use a bonus action on your turn to control the implement (if you animate multiple implements, you can command any or all of them at the same time, issuing the same command to each one). If you command the implement to make a sexual advance, it can make a single martial advance against a creature within 5 feet of it. Once given an order, the implement continues to follow it until its task is complete.

At Higher Levels: If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, you can animate one additional implement for each slot level above 3rd.

Arcane Leash
4th-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 10 ft
Components: V, S, M (a length of rope, chain, or leather strip)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour

You snap your fingers and demand obedience as a spectral collar clasps around the neck of your target, preventing them from straying beyond your reach. Choose one creature within 10 feet that you can see. The target must succeed on a charisma saving throw, or become infatuated by you for the duration of this spell.

While infatuated in this way, the creature cannot willingly move more than 10 feet away from you. If you move more than 10 ft from the creature, it is instead pulled along. If an effect or circumstance would force the target to move more than 10 ft from you, the spectral leash snaps, and the spell ends.

Ass-Clap
3rd-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: S
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minute.

Firmly slapping the ass of a nearby creature, you instil it's movement with thunderous power. Make a spell advance against a single creature within 5 ft. On a success, the target takes 3d6 thunder stimulation, and you create a burst of thunderous sound, which can be heard 100 feet away.

Each creature within 10 feet of the target must make a Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, the creature takes 1d6 thunder damage. For the duration of this spell, This burst of sound occurs again each time the target moves more than 5ft as part of it's turn.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, both the thunder damage and thunder stimulation increases by 1d6 for each slot level above 3rd.

Branding Desire
7th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action.
Range: 60 feet
Components: V, S, M (a desirium gemstone worth at least 1000gp)
Duration: concentration, up to 24 hours

You brand your foe with a mark of unbearable lust. Choose one creature you can see within range. The target gains a Lustbrand of 3rd tier or lower, which you choose. The brand lasts for the duration of this spell. If the target climaxes before this spell ends, the brand becomes permanent, and can be removed only by a wish spell, or similar magic.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 8th level, the maximum tier of the brand increases to 4th. When you cast this spell using spell slot of 9th level, and the maximum tier of the brand increases to 5th. Casting this spell at 8th level or higher grants a duration that does not require concentration.

Breathlessness
4th-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 20ft
Components: V, M (A pearl worth at least 100 gp)
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minute.

You ward an ally (or enemy) against the simple act of breathing, ensuring that they remain unharmed even as they gasp for air. Choose one creature you can see within range. That creature must make a constitution saving throw. On a failure, the creature takes 1d10 force stimulation and begins suffocating. A creature that starts it's turn suffocating in this way takes 1d10 force stimulation. If a creature would be reduced to 0 hit points by suffocating in this way, it instead begins edging, and cannot recover from this condition until it can breath again, even if it climaxes.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 5th level or higher, the spell's duration increases to 10 minutes

Begone Thot
2nd-level abjuration

Casting Time: Reaction, When you are targeted by a sexual advance

Range: 20 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You speak words of arcane power, expelling a creature who's sexual attentions are unwanted. The triggering creature must succeed on a dexterity saving throw or be teleported to a random space within 120 ft that is not within your line of sight.

Bestial Transformation
6th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: 1 hour

You channel the primal instincts of a virile beast to transform a single creature within range into a far more ferocious form. An unwilling creature must make a Wisdom saving throw to avoid the effect. A shapechanger automatically succeeds on this saving throw.

For the duration of this spell, the target takes on a semi-bestial appearance, and it grows bestial claws, fangs, spines, horns or some other natural weapon of your choice. It's speed increases by 10 ft, and it's unarmed strikes deal an additional 1d6 bludgeoning, piercing, or slashing damage, as appropriate to the natural weapon you chose; it is considered proficient with these unarmed strikes.

While affected in this way, the target gains the nyphomanic condition, and the stimulation dice of it's natural implements increases to 1d10. A creature affected by this spell can communicate only falteringly outside of bestial growls, grunts, and moans.

Each time the target reaches climax, it makes a constitution saving throw, ending the spell's effect on a success. The spell also ends if the target is reduced to 0 hit points.

Blessed Birth
6th- level necromancy (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 hour
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (The fruit of a blessed tree)
Duration: 8 hours

You feed the blessed fruit to a willing creature, imbuing their body with sacred fertility. The target cannot be a construct or undead. For the duration of this spell the target gains the hyperfertile condition, and is considered reproductively compatible with all living creatures. If the creature becomes pregnant or impregnates another creature during this period, that pregnancy cannot be terminated.

At Higher Levels: If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 7th Level or higher, you also may affect undead creatures in this way. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 9th Level or higher, you also may affect constructs in this way.

Bodywrite
Illusion cantrip

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a quill or other writing implement)
Duration: 10 minutes

With an arcane flourish, you scrawl an inconcealable message on the skin of a nearby creature. You force a single creature you can see within range to make a dexterity saving throw. On a failure, the target's skin is marked as if with magical ink.

You choose the location and nature of these markings, and can create simple symbols and messages up to 10 words. The markings are in your own handwriting, and glow visibly through clothes, armor, or other coverings. These markings last for the duration of the spell, or until dispelled by way of a dispell magic spell, or similar magic.

At Higher Levels: The duration of this spell increases to 1 hour when you reach 5th level, 8 hours wehn you reach 11th level, and 24 hours when you reach 17th level.

Brutal Brain-Fuck
6th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S, M (an amethyst gemstone worth at least 500 gp, which is consumed)
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes

Tracing a line along the forehead of a willing or unconscious creature, opening a pussy-like portal directly into their mind. For the duration of this spell, the target's brain can be directly penetrated by a cock or other phallic implement, through the mouth, ear, or a pussy-like orifice located somewhere on it's head. Sexual advances made in this way are automatically treated as critical hits, and deal psychic stimulation in place of their normal stimulation type.

A creature who climaxes from this stimulation must make an intelligence saving throw. On a failed save, roll 3d6: If the total equals or exceeds the target's Intelligence score, the target is subjected to your choice of one of the following effects

- The Creature becomes infatuated by you.
- The Creature's Intelligence is reduced by 1, to a minimum of 6
- The Creature's Inhibition is reduced by 1
- You implant a simple idea or desire into the creature's mind, which it accepts, and believes to be it's own.
- You erase a single memory of an event that the target experienced within the last 24 hours and that lasted no more than 10 minutes, eliminating all memory of the event.

This effect lasts until removed by way of a greater restoration spell or similar magic. If multiple effects are present, they must be removed individually

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 7th level or higher, the duration of the spell increases to 1 hour, and the number of d6's rolled increases by 1 for each slot level above 6th.

Bukake
4th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 150 ft
Components: V, S, M (A vial of semen)
Duration: Instantaneous

Choose a point within 150 feet. An explosion of Magical Cum bursts forth within a 20-foot radius of this point. Any creature caught in the blast must make a dexterity saving throw, taking 10d4 acid stimulation and becoming blinded on a failure. The creature remains blinded until it or one of it's alies uses an action to wipe the cum from it's face. If the creature succeeds on its save, it takes half as much stimulaton and is not blinded.

Burning Arousal
5th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You call forth the flames of the abyss to sear a creature within range for their sinful ways. Choose one creature within range that you can see. The target must succeed on a charisma saving throw, or take fire damage equal to half it's current arousal.

A creature affected by this spell becomes immune to it's effects for 24 hours.

Catherine's Familiar Bonding
7th-level Enchantment (ritual)

Casting Time: 8 hours
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (an ornate collar worth at least 1,000 gp)
Duration: A Year and a Day

You clasp an ornate collar around a willing creature, binding them to you as if they were your familiar.

This creature acts independently of you, but obeys your commands to the best of it's ability. In combat, it rolls its own initiative and acts on its own turn.

While the creature is within 100 feet of you, you can communicate with it telepathically. Additionally, as an action, you can see through it's eyes and hear what it hears until the start of your next turn, gaining the benefits of any special senses that the creature has. During this time, you are deaf and blind with regard to your own senses.

Finally, when you cast a spell with a range of touch, the creature can deliver the spell as if it had cast the spell. The creature must be within 100 feet of you, and it must use its reaction to deliver the spell when you cast it. If the spell requires an attack roll, you use your attack modifier for the roll.

You cannot have more than one creature bound to you as a familiar at a time. If you cast this spell while you already have a familiar, you instead replace your current familiar with the newly bound creature. If you cast this spell on the same creature every year for 7 years, it's effects become permanent.

Censorship
Illusion cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: self
Components: S, M (few drops of black ink)
Duration: 1 hour

You wave your hand in a warding gesture, creating a 30 ft sphere of censorship, centered on yourself. Up to 100 Words and sexual implements you choose are censored while within this zone, and cannot be fully perceived. You choose the form of this censorship: such as black bars which obscure sexual implements, or the sound of a bleating animal covering up foul language. This zone last for 1 hour, or until you choose to dismiss it as a free action.

Celia's Comfy Cottage
4th-level conjuration (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 minute
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a brass doornob)
Duration: 24 hours

You conjure an extradimensional dwelling in range that lasts for the duration. You choose where its one entrance is located. The entrance shimmers faintly and is 3 feet wide and 8 feet tall. You and any creature you designate when you cast the spell can enter the extradimensional dwelling as long as the portal remains open. You can open or close the portal if you are within 30 feet of it. While closed, the portal is invisible.

Beyond the portal is a single room no larger than 20 ft in any dimension. The place is furnished and decorated as you choose, and contains a small wardrobe containing mundane garments of your choosing. Furnishings and other objects created by this spell dissipate into smoke if removed from the dwelling. When the spell ends, any creatures or outside objects inside the extradimensional space are expelled into the open spaces nearest to the entrance.

Cold Shower
1st-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You conjure a sudden barrage of icy water to cool the heat of a lustful ally. Make a spell attack against a target you can see within range. On a hit, the target takes 1d8 cold damage, and it's arousal is reduced by twice the same amount. The target may immediately make a saving throw against one of the following conditions: hyperaroused, Intoxicated, infatuated or nymphomanic, adding this spell's damage to the result.

Cuckold's Curse
1st-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a drop of scorpion venom)
Duration: 1 hour

You cursing your target with cold numbness in place of sexual stimulation, preventing them form experiencing the pleasures of the flesh. Choose one creature you can see within range. The target must make a constitution saving throw, which it may choose to fail. On a failure the target gains 5 numbing points. While the target has these points, it gains resistance to stimulation from nonmagical sexual implements, and is immune to the reciprocal stimulation from it's own sexual implements.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the number of numbing points increases by 5 for each slot level above 1st.

Cumshot
Evocation cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You unleash a load of fresh cum into the face of an unwitting creature. Choose one creature within range. The target must succeed on a Dexterity saving throw or take 1d6 acid stimulation and must immediately use it's reaction, if available, to wipe the cum from it's face.

At Higher Levels. This spell's damage increases by 1d6 when you reach 5th Level (2d6), 11th level (3d6) and 17th level (4d6).

Cunniliquist's Tongue
divination cantrip

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: self
Components: V, S
Duration: 1 hour

For the duration, you become fluent in the languages known by any creature you bring to climax through oral sex. You understand only the spoken languages of the creature you have brought to climax and cannot read or write these languages.

You learn only as much of the language as the creature you have brought to climax understands, and speak with the same accent and dialect as that creature

Cupid's Arrow
4th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 90 ft
Components: V, S, M (a phial of fragrant purfume)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

A shimmering pink arrow streaks toward a target within range and bursts in a cloud of potent aphrodisiac. Make a ranged spell Attack against the target. On a hit, the target takes 1d8 poison stimulation, and must succeed on a wisdom saving throw or become infatuated by the next sexually compatible creature it sees for the duration of the spell.

A creature may repeat this saving throw any time it takes damage, or is subjected to harm, ending the effect on a success. When the effect ends, the creature knows it was charmed.

At Higher Levels: The duration of this spell becomes 1 hour when cast at 5th level, 8 hours when cast at 6th level, 24 hours when cast at 7th level, 1 month, when cast at 8th level, and 1 year when cast at 9th level. Casting this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher grants an duration that doe snot require concentration.

Dee's Nutritious Nutt
1st- level necromancy (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 10 ft
Components: V, S.
Duration: Instantaneous

You infuse the lifegiving seed of a creature within range to provide sustenance for those in need. Choose one target within range that has a cock. For the next minute, each time the target climaxes, it produces 1d4 liters of cum. Directly consuming or receiving at least 1 liter of this cum through any sexual orifice restores 1 hit point per liter cosumed, and provides enough nourishment to sustain a creature for one day. The cum loses this potency if it has not been consumed within 10 minutes of being produced.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the amount of cum increases by 1d4 liters for each slot level above 1st.

Defile Bloodline
9th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 reaction, when a creature you are touching climaxes
Range: 5ft
Components: V, S, M (a vial of the target's blood or sexual fluids)
Duration: Until dispelled

In the moment of orgasm, you twist a creature's own lust into a nigh-unbreakable curse upon it's entire bloodline. The target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or become afflicted with a terrible curse. This curse extends not only to the creature but to all of it's current and future decedents. When you cast this spell, choose the nature of the curse from the following options:

- The creature gains the Bestiathrope racial template, with an associated beast of your choosing.
- The creature gains the Vampire racial template.
- The creature gains a single lustbrand of your choosing.
- The creature gains one curse listed in the Miscellaneous Curses section of this book

This spell can be dispelled only by way of a Wish Spell, or similar magic. Optionally, you may also define a single condition or course of action that may be completed to end this spell. At the DM's option, you may choose an alternative curse effect, but it should be no more powerful than those described above. The DM has final say on such a curse's effect.

Delayed Blast Orgasm
8th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 69 ft
Components: V, S, M (a lustrous pearl worth at least 500gp)
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minute

A beam of glowing purple energy fires from the tip of your fingertip, condensing into a pearl of pure lustrous energy within your partner. Make a ranged spell attack against a single creature in range. On a hit, the target gains the denied condition, and begins to glow with desperate arousal. When the spell ends, either because your concentration is broken or because you decide to end it, the pearl of arousal blossoms into an overwhelming explosion of pleasure and the target gains for e stimulation equal to the total accumulated stimulation.

The spell's base stimulation is 12d6. If at the end of your turn the pearl has not yet detonated, the stimulation increases by 1d6.

If the target comes into skin contact with another creature before the duration has ended, it must make a constitution saving throw. On a failed save, the spell ends immediately and any creature currently touching the target must make a constitution saving throw, taking force stimulation equal to the total accumulated stimulation on a failed save, or half as much on a success.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 9th level, the duration instead becomes 1 hour.

Detect Sexuality
1st- level divination

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self, Touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

For the duration of this spell, you learn the basic elements of a creature's sexuality simply by looking at them. You can discern what sex or sexual characteristics a creature is attracted to, what races or creatures a creature is attracted to, and if a creature has a preference for dominance or submission during sex.

Alternatively, you may touch a single creature while casting this spell to learn one of the its Fetishes, Kinks or Sexual Fantasies. This spell does cannot reveal any information or sexual desires the target itself is unaware of.

Dimetria's Demanding Desire
4th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V
Duration: 30 Days

You whisper words of erotic power into the mind of a creature you can see, implanting a desire that cannot be ignored. If the creature can understand you, it must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or become charmed by you for the duration.

While the creature is charmed by you, it gains 3d6 psychic stimulation each time it acts in a manner to fulfil this desire, but no more than three times each day. A creature that can't understand you is unaffected by the spell. You can implant any desire you choose, short of a desire for the creature to directly harm itself. You can end the spell early by using an action to dismiss it. A remove curse, greater restoration, or wish spell also ends it.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level, the duration is a year and a day. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 7th or 8th level, the duration is year 12 years. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 9th level, the spell lasts until it is ended by one of the Spells mentioned above.

Dismiss Wardrobe
5th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 feet
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You gesture a hand between yourself and a single creature within range, as if wiping away an ugly mark form a plane of glass. The creature must succeed on a strength saving throw, or have any nonmagical clothes or armor it is wearing stripped away and scattered on the ground in a 5 ft radius around it.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher, you also affect magical clothing and armor with a rarity of Common. This increases to a rarity of Uncommon when cast at 7th level, a rarity of Rare at when cast at 8th level, and a rarity of Very Rare when cast at 9th level.

Dominate Clothes
5th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 feet
Components: V, S, M (a length of golden thread)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

The Target's clothes animate to follow your commands, forcing the same acting on the target's turn, and attempting to force the target to follow your instructions.

At the start of each of it's turns, a creature wearing these clothes must make a strength saving throw. On a success, the creature takes it's turn normally. On a failure, the creature's clothes force it to obey your mental commands to the best of their ability. The clothes may force a creature to move, make an weapon attack or martial sexual advance, or any other physical action such as dodging or disengaging, but cannot force a target to speak or cast spells which require a verbal component.

As an action on it's turn, the creature may attempt to rapidly free itself from the clothes by making a dexterity saving throw. On a success, the creature strips naked, and it's clothes take on the statistics of a suit of Animated armor.

Dominae's Desperate Denial
2nd-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 10 ft radius
Components: V, S, M (a loop of silk ribbon)
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes.

You cast your power out over those around you, denying them the release of orgasm. Each creature within range must make a charisma saving throw. A creature may choose to fail this saving throw. On a success, this spell has no effect. On a failure, a creature takes 1d6 psychic stimulation, and becomes denied for the duration of the spell, or until you grant it verbal permission to climax. Constructs and creatures immune to being charmed aren't affected by this spell.

Each time a creature affected by this spell succeeds on a climax saving throw, it's inhibition is reduced by 1 for the duration of this spell.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the spell's duration increases by 10 minutes for each slot level above 2nd. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher, the spell's duration instead increases by 1 hour for each slot level above 2nd. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 9th level, the spell instead lasts until dispelled

Elastic Orifice
4th-level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a phial of sap from a rubber tree)
Duration: 1 hour

You trace your finger along the skin of a willing creature, instilling them with the rubbery resilience of a kobold in heat. For the duration of this spell, the target ignores any penalties or harmful effects caused by sexual penetration. Additionally, the Target's body can be stretched and distended by up to twice it's normal size, allowing it to safely store or transport items of an appropriate size inside of itself.

Enthralling Touch
3rd-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You reach seductively over another creature's body, attempting to enslave it to your will. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, it takes 2d10 psychic stimulation and becomes infatuated by you for 1 minute. At the end of each of its turns, an infatuated target can make another Wisdom saving throw. On a success, it is no longer infatuated.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the damage increases by 1d10 for each slot level above 3rd.

Faerie's Photograph
Illusion cantrip

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Self
Components: S, M (A pinch of flash powder)
Duration: instant

Forming a small aperture with your thumb and forefinger, you capture a mental image of the scene in front of you, and conjure a photograph of the image in your mind. The conjured photograph is a reflection of the image in your mind, rather than a perfect recreation of the scene in front of you.

Fantastic Fuckhole
2nd-level transmuation

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 1 touch
Components: V, S, M (a silver ring)
Duration: 10 minutes.

Pressing a silver ring to the body of a creature in range, you open a strange but pleasurable new orifice somewhere on their body. The appearance and location of this orifice is up to you, but it serves as a sexual implement with the enveloping and reciprocal properties. The stimulation dice of this orifice is 1d8.

This orifice lasts for the duration of the spell or until you use a bonus action to end the effect. If an implement or creature is inside this orifice when the effect ends, it takes 2d6 force damage and is shunted the nearest unoccupied space.

Fertile Ground
4th-level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 8 hours
Range: self (1 mile radius)
Components: V, S, M (a gallon of blood from freshly slaughtered livestock)
Duration: Instantaneous

You enrich the land around you instilling it with the blessings of a fertile harvest. For the next year, the area you bless gains the following regional effects

- Plants become enriched, and yield twice the normal amount of food when harvested.
- Livestock and prey animals grow and mature at twice the normal rate
- The area can suffer no droughts, and winters become mild for the region.
- Checks made to gather food, water, and other natural resources automatically succeed
- Creatures within the region are considered hyper-fertile, and pregnancies within the region proceed without risk or complication.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 5nd level or higher, the radius of the spell increases by one mile for each spell slot above 4th.

Flames of Desire
2nd-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Self
Components: V, S
Duration: 1 hour

A glowing aura of lust surrounds you, empowering you with the sexual resilience of a succubus. For the duration of this spell, you gain 5 numbing points at the start of each of your turns. While you have these points, your natural implements deal an additional 1d6 fire stimulation, and reciprocal implements used against you deal twice the normal stimulation to their wielders.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the numbing points increase by 5 for each slot level above 2nd, and the fire stimulation increases by 1d6 for each slot level above 2nd.

Gangbang
4th-level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 feet
Components: V, S, M (A tiny obsidian phallus)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You fill a 10-foot radius sphere, centered on a point within in range, with throbbing, disembodied cocks. For the duration, these cocks turn the in the area into difficult terrain, and any creature that enters the affected area for the first time on a turn or starts its turn there, must succeed on a Dexterity saving throw or take 3d6 bludgeoning stimulation, and is restrained until the start of it's next turn.

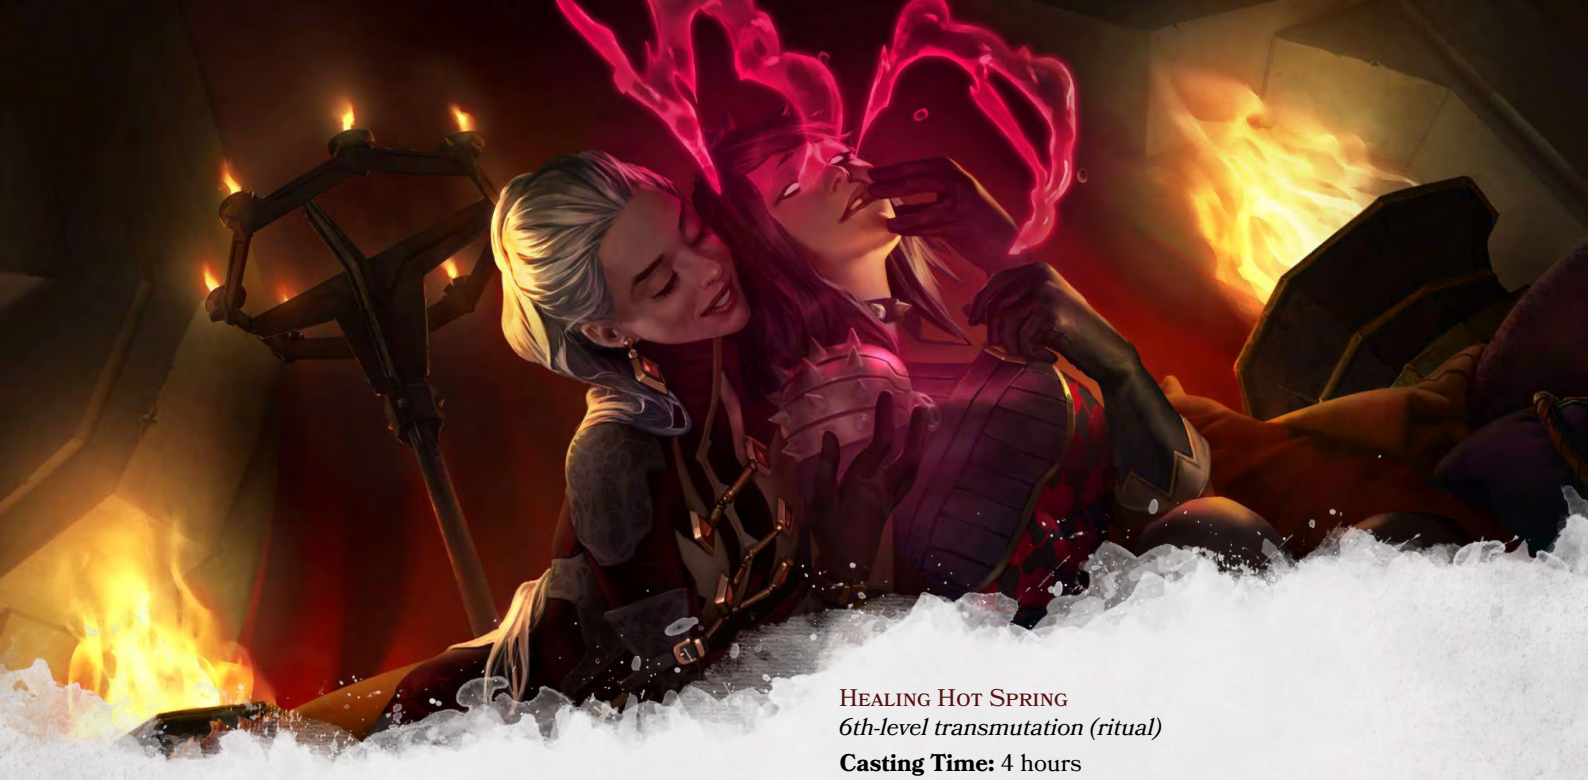

When this spell ends, the Cocks all climax violently, forcing all creatures within the affected area to make a dexterity saving throw. A target takes 6d6 acid stimulation on a failed save, or half as much stimulation on a successful one

Genital Torsion
5th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a refractive prism)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

Using arcane force, you cruelly twist the reproductive organs of one creature that you can see within range. The target must make a Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, it takes 8d6 force damage, or half as much damage on a successful save. If the target fails the saving throw, its is incapacitated for the 1 minute. At the end of each of its turns, the target repeats the saving throw, ending the effect on a success.

This spell has no effect on constructs, or creature that lack reproductive organs. A creature who fails their saving throw against this spell becomes infertile for 1d4 days. If the target is pregnant, the pregnancy is immediately terminated.

Greater Suggestion
5th-level enchantment (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 minute
Range: touch
Components: V, M (a pinch of gemstone dust worth at least 100gp)
Duration: 24 hours

You layer a powerful suggestion deep withing the subconscious of a sleeping or unconscious creature that can hear and understand you.

Choose a specific condition or trigger (such as a spoken word, or the snap of a finger) and suggest a short activity or course of action. Creatures that can't be charmed are immune to this effect. The suggestion must be worded in such a manner as to make the course of action sound reasonable. Asking the creature to stab itself, throw itself onto a spear, immolate itself, or do some other obviously harmful act ends the spell.

For the duration of this spell, each time the condition is met, the target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw, or pursue the course of action you described to the best of its ability. If the condition isn't met before the spell expires, the activity is not performed.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a 6th-level spell slot, the duration is 10 days. When you use an 7th-level spell slot, the duration is 30 days. When you use a 8th-level spell slot, the duration is a year and a day. When you use a 9th-level spell slot, the duration is permanent until dispelled

Handjob
conjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 120 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: instantaneous

You create an etherial hand in the space of a creature within range. Choose a creature within range. The target takes force stimulation equal to 1d4+ your proficiency bonus.

At Higher Levels. This spell's stimulation increases by 1d4 when you reach 5th level (2d4), 11th level (3d4), and 17th level (4d4)

Healing Hot Spring
6th-level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 4 hours
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a flask of holy water)
Duration: Instantaneous

You enchant a body of water no larger than 20 ft in any dimension with restorative energy. For the next 7 days, the water gains the following effects:

- The water becomes pleasantly warm, and the area within 5 ft of the body of water is lightly obscured by a steamy fog.
- While bathing naked in this water, a creature regains 1 hit point at the start of each of its turns (10 hit points a minute).
- A creature who bathes naked in this spring for at least 2 hours is affected as if by the Lesser Restoration spell.
- A creature who bathes naked in this spring for at least 5 hours is affected as if by the Greater Restoration spell.

Casting the spell on the same body of water once a week for a year causes it's effects to become permanent.

Heatwave
2nd-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 15 ft cone
Components: V, S
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minute.

Fanning yourself in a mock gesture of overwhelming heat, you release a wave of searing arousal to all those around you. Each creature in a 15-foot cone must make a Dexterity saving throw. On a failure, a creature takes 1d6 fire stimulation, and becomes hyperaroused for the duration of the spell.

On each of your turns for the duration, you can use your action to deal 1d6 fire stimulation to all hyperaroused creatures within 10 ft of you.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the fire stimulation increase by 1d6 for each slot level above 2nd.

Idealian's Dismemberment
7th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a fine, ball-jointed doll, worth at least 500 gp)
Duration: Concentration, up to 8 hours

Channelling your magic through the doll, you attempt to transfer it's unique properties to a single creature within range that you can see. The creature must make a Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, it becomes bonded to the doll for the duration of this spell. On a successful save, the creature isn't affected.

While a creature is bonded in this way, it's limbs and body parts become detachable in the same way as those of the doll. Removing a limb or other body part from the creature requires a successful DC 15 strength check. Alternatively, you may use an action on your turn to remove the limb or body part you wish from the doll, causing the same body part to detach from the target, falling to the ground at an unoccupied point within 5 ft of the target.

A detached limb or body part is still fully functional, and can move under it's own power under the control of the target, although it's actions and movements are limited to those it can perform without the rest of the target's body. Damage or stimulation dealt to the detached limb is dealt to the target as normal. If a limb or body part is destroyed while detached from the target, the target suffers from similar deformities if it reverts to its original state. A detached limb or body part may be reattached as an action by pressing it firmly back in place until an audible click is heard.

If this spell is cast on multiple targets at once, the detached body parts of the affected creatures become interchangeable, and can be attached to any of the affected creatures as if they were the creature it was detached from. Limbs and body parts remain under the control of the creature they came from, even if attached to another creature.

If you maintain your concentration on this spell for the entire possible duration, the creature remains bonded to the doll until the effect is removed using the dispell magic spell or similar magic. When the spell ends, the target returns to its normal state.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 8th Level or higher, you may target one additional creature for each slot level above 7th.

Incite Lust
3rd-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (your own natural implement)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

When you cast this spell, you present your natural implement and choose any number of creatures within range that can see you. Each target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or become infatuated by you until the spell ends, or until you or your companions do anything harmful to it. If an affected creature is within 5 feet of you, it must use it's action to make a sexual advance against you, otherwise it must use it's action to make a sexual advance against itself.

At the end of each of its turns, an affected target can make a Wisdom saving throw. If it succeeds, this effect ends for that target.

Infatuating Shaft
2nd-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Self
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

The next time you hit a creature with a ranged weapon attack before this spell ends, the projectile gives off a strong scent of perfume as it is loosed. The attack deals 2d6 psychic stimulation to the target instead of it's normal damage, and the target must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw, or be infatuated by you until the spell ends.

Inflate
2nd-level transmuation

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 10ft
Components: S, M (a miniature bellows)
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minute.

Calling on the transformative powers of the wind, you inflate a creature's body, granting it a small modicum of flight. Choose a single creature in range. The target must make a constitution saving throw. On a failure, it's size category increases by one as it's body visibly inflates like a balloon. While inflated in this way, the target's movement speed is replaced with a fly speed of 10ft, and it has disadvantage on attack rolls and dexterity saving throws.

Instant Recovery
2nd-level necromancy

Casting Time: 1 reaction, when a creature within range climaxes.
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You bless a creature in it's moment of release, allowing it's pleasure to continue unabated. The triggering target gains numbing points equal to your spell attack modifier, and instantly recovers from the incapacitated condition caused by climaxing.

Intoxicating Smile
2nd-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self
Components: V, S, M (a warped mirror)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You smile enticingly, using the force of your presence to impair your target's judgment. The target must succeed on a charisma saving throw or become intoxicated for the spell's duration.

A creature may repeat this saving throw at the beginning of each of it's turns, ending the spell on a success.

Invasive Thought
enchantment cantrip

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 60 ft
Components: S
Duration: 1 round

With a crude gesture and a spark of will, you insinuate lewd thoughts into the mind of one creature you can see within range. The target must succeed on an Intelligence saving throw or take 1d6 psychic stimulation and become hyperaroused end of your next turn.

At Higher Levels: This spell's damage increases by 1d6 when you reach certain levels: 5th level (2d6), 11th level (3d6), and 17th level (4d6).

Janine's Arcane Theatre
5th-level divination (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 minute
Range: self
Components: V, S, M (A Diamond worth at least 500gp)
Duration: concentration, up to 8 hours

You cast your voice and image across the plane, making it visible to hundreds of individuals at once. When you cast this spell, choose a specific passphrase. Creatures who know this passphrase immediately become aware that you are casting this spell, so long as they are on the same plane of existence.

You create up to three Invisible sensors within 10 feet of yourself. Up to 100 creatures who know the passphrase can see and hear through the sensors as if they were there. The sensors move with the with you, remaining within 10 feet of you for the Duration. A creature that can see Invisible Objects sees the sensor as a luminous orb about the size of your fist.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th level or higher, the number of creatures who can see or hear you increases by 100 for each spell slot above 5th.

Laundry Day
illusion cantrip

Casting Time: 1 reaction, when noticed by another creature.
Range: Self (60 ft radius)
Components: V
Duration: 1 hour

You speak a word of power, causing all creatures within range that can hear you to regard your appearance as completely normal for the duration of this spell. This does not cause them to ignore your presence, or allow you to go unnoticed in places you are not welcome, simply to be considered normal in appearance.

For example, you could cause people at a dinner party to ignore the fact that you are naked, but not make them believe you are an invited guest.

Living Seal

9th-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 minute
Range: 30 feet
Components: V, S, M (Mgical ink and powdered diamond worth at least 1000gp, which the spell consumes)
Duration: Until dispelled

When you cast this spell, you bind powerful magic to the soul of a single creature within range, turning it into the embodiment of your spell or curse. An unwilling creature can make a wisdom saving throw, and if it succeeds, the spell has no effect.

When you cast this spell, choose warding seal of spell seal

- Warding Seal. You can bind the seal to a curse or other permanent magical effect, such as that of a True Polymorph or Imprisonment spell by casting it as part of creating the seal. When the seal is broken, the spell or magical effect it is bound to ends, regardless of any other conditions normally required to end the effect.
- Spell Seal. You can Store a prepared spell of 9th level or lower within the seal by casting it as part of creating the seal. The spell being stored has no immediate effect when cast this way. When the seal is broken, the stored spell is cast. If the spell has one or more targets, it targets the creature that broke the seal, as well as any other creatures within the spell's range, beginning with those closest to the triggering target. If the spell has an area, the area is centered on the seal. If the spell summons hostile creatures or creates harmful objects or traps, they appear as close to the seal as possible, and attack the creature who broke the seal. If the spell requires concentration, it instead lasts until the end of it's full duration.

The target of this spell ceases to age and cannot be aged through magical means. It also cannot die through natural means, although it may still be killed. The target is unable to climax except through the efforts of another creature, and cannot become pregnant through any means. These effects last until the seal is broken and the spell ends, at which point the target begins aging at a normal rate.

You choose whihc of the following conditions must be met to break the seal

- The Target of this spell dies or is killed
- The target of this spell climaxes
- The target of this spell receives the kiss of true love
- The target of this spell arrives at a location of your choosing

At the DM's descrecion, you may choose an alternative method of breaking the seal, but it must directly involve the target of this spell. The DM has final say on such methods

Lecherous Lactation
6th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 feet
Components: V, S, M (a bottle of fresh milk)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You gesture towards a creature in range, causing their breasts to burst forth with a seemingly endless spring of delicious milk. The target must succeed on a constitution saving throw, or begin violently lactating.

While Lactating, the target cannot wear armor, and any stimulation applied to its breasts is doubled. If the target is wearing armor when this spell takes effect, the armor is removed by the force of violent lactation.

Locate Hookup
3rd-level divination

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Self
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour.

You sense the direction to the nearest creature who would make a suitable and willing sexual partner for you, as long as that creature is within 1,000 miles of you. If the creature is moving, you know the direction of its movement.

This spell can find a creature who shares a particular kink or fetish or sexual fantasy with you, a creature who matches your general tastes in partners, a creature who is romantically or sexually attracted to you, or any combination the above. This spell only locates a potential partner, and does not ensure they will immediately be willing to have sex with you when you find them. This spell can't locate a creature if running water at least 10 feet wide blocks a direct path between you and the creature.

Lubricate
conjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: S
Duration: 1 hour

You trace your fingers over yourself or a willing partner, and softly tease their waiting body. For the duration of the spell, A slick oily lubricant coats the target's orifice, allowing the target to safely withstand penetration by sexual implements up to two size categories larger than it's own, or to safely penetrate creatures up to two size categories below it's own without causing harm.

Lustful Treat
2nd- level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a pinch of bakers sugar)
Duration: concentration, up to 1 hour

With an elegant flourish and a sprinkling of sweetness, you conjure an a magical confection. Any creature who consumes one this confection must succeed on a wisdom saving throw or become infatuated by you for the duration of the spell.

If the creature is harmed, or sees any of it's friends being harmed, by you or your allies, it may repeat this saving throw, ending the effect on a success. The confection loses it's potency if it has not been consumed within 24 hours of the casting of this spell.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd Level or higher, the spell creates one additional confection for each slot above 2nd

Lustful Spirits
3rd-level conjuration (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: Self (15 ft Radius)
Components: V, S, M (a lewd symbol or object)
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes

You call forth an array of lustful spirits to accost those around you with their lecherous powers. The spirits flit around you an a radius of 15 ft, their intangible bodies taking beautiful and erotic form.

When you cast this spell, you can designate any number of Creatures you can see to be unaffected by it. An affected creature is hyperaroused while in the area, and when the creature enters or starts its turn within the area, it must make a Wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, the creature takes 3d8 necrotic stimulation. On a successful save, the creature takes half as much damage.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th Level or higher, the stimulation increases by 1d8 for each slot level above 3rd.

Maddening Desire
1st-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 120 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minute

One humanoid of your choice that you can see within range must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or become charmed by you for the duration. While the target is charmed in this way, an ethereal crown of thorny roses appears on its head, and it's pupils dilate into glowing hearts. The charmed target must use its action on each of its turns to make a sexual advance against a creature that you mentally choose. If the charmed creature is not within reach of another creature, or you choose no creature, It instead makes a sexual advance against itself.

On your subsequent turns, you must use your action to maintain control over the target, or the spell ends. Also, the target can make a Wisdom saving throw at the end of each of its turns. On a success, the spell ends.

Magecock
3rd-level Conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: 1 minute

A spectral, floating cock (or other sexual implement of your choice) appears at a point you choose within range. The implement is of medium size, and lasts for the Duration, or until you cast this spell again.

When you cast the spell, you can make an direct sexual Advance against a creature within 5 feet of the weapon, using your spell attack modifier. On a hit, the target takes force stimulation equal to 1d8 + your Spellcasting ability modifier.

As an Action on each of your subsequent turns, you can move the implement up to 20 feet and repeat the Advance against a creature within 5 feet of it.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot 4th Level of or higher, the you summon an additional cock for each slot level above 3rd. You may command each of these implements using the same action, making a sexual advance with each of them against the same creature

Mantra
1st-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 Action
Range: 10 ft
Components: V
Duration: 24 hours

You implant a simple phrase or mantra into to your target, saving it for later. Choose on creature in range who can hear you and understands your language. The target must make on a wisdom saving throw. On a success, this spell has no effect, and the target is aware you attempted to enchant it. On a failure, you store an audible trigger and simple phrase of no more than 25 words in the targets mind, and target is unaware it has been enchanted.

For the duration of this spell, anytime the target hears the trigger, it audibly repeats the stored phrase, without realizing it has done so.

Mass Bestow Curse
8th-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 120 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: 8 hours.

You cast forth your magical power to bestow a debilitating curse on up to 13 creatures within range, each creature must succeed on a Wisdom saving throw or become cursed for the duration of the spell. When you cast this spell, choose the nature of the curse from the following options:

- Choose one ability score. While cursed, the target has disadvantage on ability checks and saving throws made with that ability score.
- While cursed, the target has disadvantage on attack rolls against you.
- While cursed, the target must make a Wisdom saving throw at the start of each of its turns. If it fails, it wastes its action that turn doing nothing.
- While the target is cursed, your attacks and spells deal an extra 1d8 necrotic damage to the target.

A remove curse spell ends this effect. At the DM's option, you may choose an alternative curse effect, but it should be no more powerful than those described above. The DM has final say on such a curse's effect.

At Higher Levels. If you cast this spell using a 9th level spell slot, the duration is 24 hours.

Medusa's Grasp
4th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S, M (a handful of powdered stone from a statue)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

Coating your hands in stony dust, you make a grapple check against a creature in range, using your spell attack modifier. If the target's body is made of flesh, the creature must make a Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, The creature is restrained as it's body begins to turn to stone. This effect lasts for the duration of the spell, and ends immediately if you are no longer grappling the target. On a successful save, the creature isn't affected.

A creature restrained by this spell must make another Constitution saving throw at the end of each of its turns. If it successfully saves against this spell three times, the spell ends. If it fails its saves three times, it is turned to stone and subjected to the petrified condition for the duration. The successes and failures don't need to be consecutive; keep track of both until the target collects three of a kind.

If the creature is physically broken while petrified, it suffers from similar deformities if it reverts to its original state.

If you maintain your concentration on this spell for the entire possible duration, the creature is turned to stone until the effect is removed, or you choose to end it as an action on your turn.

Mindbreak
8th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 150 feet
Components: V, S, M (a crystal phallus)
Duration: Instantaneous

You enthrall the mind of a creature that you can see within range, attempting to shatter its intellect and common sense. The target takes 6d6 psychic stimulation and must make an Intelligence saving throw.

On a failed save, the creature's Intelligence and Wisdom scores become 1, and it gains the Nymphomania condition. The creature can still identify allies, and obeys simple commands from them as if infatuated.

At the end of every 30 days, the creature can repeat its saving throw against this spell. If it succeeds on its saving throw, the spell ends. The spell can also be ended by way of a greater restoration, heal, or wish spell.

Minor Gateway
3rd-level conjuration (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration up to 10 minutes

You open a pair of arcane portals, just large enough to enjoy yourself with. Choose two points you can see within range. A circular portal, no more than 2 feet in diameter, opens at each point. If these portals would open in a space occupied by a creature, that creature may immediately make a dexterity saving throw, moving up to 5 ft out of the way on a success.

The portals are connected, and appear as two-dimensional glowing rings through which you can clearly see. Any object or part of a creature's body which enters one portal appears from the other portal as if the two were adjacent to each other, however any creature attempting to pass more than half it's body through the portal becomes helplessly stuck, and is restrained in that position until the spell ends, at which point the creature's entire body reappears in it's original location.

A creature can make melee attacks and martial sexual advances through the portal as if the spaces they connect were adjacent, but attempting to make a ranged attack or cast spells through the portal causes the portal to falter and the spell to immediately end.

Miraculous Milk
4th- level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 hour
Range: Touch
Components: V, S.
Duration: Instantaneous

You massage and caress the breasts of a willing creature, encouraging the production of restorative milk.

The target begins lactating, and may expend a number of hit dice equal to it's half its level to produce a quart of milk for each hit dice spent. Each quart of milk is treated as of a potion of healing. The milk looses it's potency if it has not been consumed within 24 hours of the casting of this spell.

At Higher Levels: If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th Level or higher, the milk is treated as potion of greater healing. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 8th Level or higher, the milk is treated as a potion of superior healing.

Musk Cloud
2nd-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self (10 ft radius)
Components: V, S, M (A vial of sweat or sexual fluids)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You conjure a cloud of thick, aphrodisiac musk in a 10 foot radius around yourself. The cloud moves with you, and spreads around corners. It lasts for the duration or until a strong wind disperses it, ending the spell.

When a creature enters or starts its turn within the area, it must make a Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, the creature takes 2d8 poison stimulation and becomes hyperaroused by you until the start of their next turn. A hyperaroused target is intoxicated while within the area. On a successful save, a creature instead takes half as much stimulation and suffers no other effect. Creatures who do not need to breath are immune to the effects of this spell.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd level or higher, the stimulation increases by 1d8 for each slot level above 2nd.

Numbing Sensation
1st-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You touch a creature in range, numbing their pain, and their pleasure. The target must make a constitution saving throw, which it may choose fail. On a failure, the target gains temporary hit points equal to 1d8 + your spellcasting ability modifier, and numbing points equal to the same amount.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, both the temporary hit points and numbing points increase by 1d8 for each slot level above 1st.

Painless Birth
3rd-level enchantment (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a pink orchid)
Duration: Concentration, up to 8 hours

You tend to a creature in the throws of labor, transforming their pain into pleasure. For the duration of this spell, any damage a creature suffers as part of giving birth is instead applied as stimulation, and any levels of exhaustion suffered as a result of giving birth are instead treated as levels of overstimulation.

Plague of Perversion
9th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S, M (a tube of bright pink lipstick)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour

You place a corruptive kiss on your target, releasing their inhibitions, and encouraging them to do the same to others. The target must succeed on a wisdom saving throw, or gain the nymphomanic condition for the duration of the spell.

When a creature affected by this spell succeeds on a direct sexual advance against another target, the target of their advance must make a wisdom saving throw against your spell save DC. On a failure, the effects of this spell extend to the new target

Power Word Cum
8th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 feet
Components: V
Duration: Instantaneous

You speak a word of power that overwhelms one creature you can see with world shaking pleasure. If the difference between the target's current arousal and maximum arousal is less that 100 points, it immediately Climaxes, otherwise this spell has no effect.

While the target of this spell is incapacitated due to climax, it gains vulnerability, instead of resistance, to all stimulation.

Power Word Pregnancy
8th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 ft
Components: V, S, M (a jade fertility idol)
Duration: Instantaneous.

You speak a word of power that echoes across reality to warp the body of one creature you can see within range, leaving it dumbfounded. If the target's current arousal is greater than half it's arousal maximum, it becomes pregnant, regardless of physical limitations such as race or sex. Otherwise, the spell has no effect.

A creature who becomes pregnant in this way immediately progresses halfway through the normal term of it's pregnancy, as its body swells to contain the offspring. If the target is already pregnant when this spells is cast, the number of offspring it is bearing instead doubles.

The offspring produced by this pregnancy is that of the target and itself.

Predator's Punishment
3rd-level abjuration (ritual)

Casting Time: 10 minutes
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a thorny rose)
Duration: 8 hours

Tracing fingers along the skin of a willing creature, you enchant its body to violently reject outside intrusion. For the duration of this spell, each time a creature attempts to sexually penetrate the target, it must make a constitution saving throw. On a failure, the creature takes 1d8 piercing damage, and you may use a reaction to painfully grapple the creature. On a success, the creature takes half as much damage, and cannot be grappled in this way.

A creature grappled by this spell takes an additional 1d8 piercing damage at the start of each of it's turns, and may use it's turn to make a strength or dexterity check against your spell save DC, escaping the grapple on a success, but dealing an additional 2d8 piercing damage to itself.

The target of this spell may choose to dispel it as a free action.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th Level or higher, the duration of the spell increases by 2 hours for each level above 3rd.

Pregnancy Ward
1st- level necromancy (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a knotted piece of twine)
Duration: 1 hour

You touch a willing creature and speak a few words of subtle magic, tying the knotted twine around their wrist. For the next hour the target gains the infertile condition, and automatically succeeds on saving throws against becoming pregnant.

At Higher Levels: If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd Level or higher, the Duration is 2 hours. If you use a spell slot of 3rd Level or higher, the Duration is 8 hours. If you use a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the Duration is 24 hours.

Primal Musk
1st-level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self
Components: S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You channel natural magics to infuse your body with the primal scent of arousal. For the duration, sexual advances you make using your natural implements deal an additional 1d8 poison stimulation, and creatures who enter or start their turn within 5 ft of you must succeed on a constitution saving throw or become hyperaroused until the end of their next turn.

PATREON.COM/LEVELVIOLET

Prison of Perversion
8th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 minute
Range: touch
Components: V, S, M (a vial of enchanted ink worth at least 500gp)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour.

You emblazon a necromantic crest onto the bare flesh of a willing or unconscious creature. For the duration of this spell, if the target climaxes by any means, it's soul leaves it's body, taking the form of a sexual implement of the DMs choice, which appears in an unoccupied space within 5 ft of the target. This implement is considered a magical implement, and grants a bonus to advance and stimulation rolls equal to half the creature's proficiency bonus. While its soul inhabits the implement, the target is aware of its surroundings as if it were in the container's space, and experiences any stimulation applied to the implement, including reciprocal stimulation form the implement itself. The target can take no actions, reactions or bonus actions.

While the target's soul inhabits the sexual implement, it's body acts as a puppet under your control. It retains all of the target's in-game statistics, and follows your commands to the best of its ability while preserving itself. Commands to immolate itself, throw itself off a cliff, or otherwise directly harm itself may be ignored. A creature who knows the target may attempt a insight check against your spell-save DC to identify that the puppet is not truly the target, and spells such as Detect Magic or Detect Good and Evil, which can be used to detect or identity magical creatures, instantly reveal the truth.

The target's soul remains trapped within the magic implement until the implement is destroyed or subjected to a remove curse spell. Casting the remove curse spell on the target's body frees it from your control, but does not return the target's soul to its body.

Rapid Pregnancy
5th-level transmutation (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 hour
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a vial of menstrual blood)
Duration: Instantaneous

You tend to a pregnant creature, stimulating the reproductive cycle to shorten the term of it's pregnancy. The the remaining term of the target's pregnancy passes at a rate of 1 hour for each month it would normally require. When the pregnancy is over, the target gains 1 level of exhaustion for each hour the pregnancy lasted, up to a maximum of 5

A pregnancy shortened in this way is considered a nontraditional pregnancy.

Reign of Cum
9th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: self
Components: V, S, M (the signet ring of a powerful ruler)
Duration: Concentration, up to 8 hours.

You instil your very essence with a mantle of absolute control. For the duration of this spell, any humanoid who ingests your cum or other sexual fluids must succeed on a wisdom saving throw or become infatuated by you for the spell's duration. If you climax directly inside or on the creature, it is instead affected as if by the dominate person spell for the full duration of this spell.

Ruby's Mindfuck
3rd-level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 60 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration up to 10 minutes

You force a cock of pure psionic energy into the mind of a creature within range. The target must make a Wisdom saving throw, gaining 3d8 psychic stimulation on a failed save, or half as much stimulation on a successful one. On a failed save, the target becomes intoxicated and hyperaroused for the duration of the spell.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the stimulation increases by 1d8 for each slot level above 3rd.

Runar's Instant Disrobing
conjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You touch yourself or a willing partner, and utter a seductive phrase. With a wave of your hand and a gentle touch, the target's clothes and equipment vanish from their body, and reappear in a neatly sorted pile at an unoccupied point within 10ft.

Ruin Orgasm
abjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 reaction, when a creature within range would make a climax saving throw.
Range: 30 ft
Components: V
Duration: Instantaneous

As a reaction in the moment of a creature's greatest pleasure, you speak a word of twisted power, ruining the target's release. In place of it's climax saving throw, the target takes psychic damage equal to 1d8 + your spellcasting modifier and it's arousal is reduced by the same amount.

Salty Surprise
1st level evocation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self (10 ft)
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You spray fresh load of magically enchanted cum across the creatures in front of you. Each creature in a 10-foot cone must succeed on a Dexterity saving throw or take 1d6 acid stimulation, and is blinded until the end of it's next turn.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 2nd level or higher, the acid stimulation increases by 1d6 for each slot level above 1st.

Saint's Resolve
1st-level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a holy symbol or miniature shield)
Duration: 8 hours

You touch a willing creature, and a protective magical force surrounds it until the spell ends. For the duration of the spell, the target gains immunity to the hyperaroused condition, and it's inhibition increases by 2. The spell ends it if the target makes a sexual advance, or if you dismiss the spell as a free action.

Scarlet Letter
1st-level illusion

Casting Time: 1 bonus action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a needle and length of scarlet thread)
Duration: 1 week

You subtly sew a not-so-subtle spell onto one creature within range. The target must make a wisdom saving throw. On a failed save, You choose a single creature other than the target. For the duration of this spell, each time the target engages in sexual activity with a creature other than the one you have chosen, a mark appears on it's body. The mark appears as a glowing scarlet sigil or letter, and is visible through armor or clothing. You decide the exact appearance of the mark, but it can be no more complex than a single symbol or letter.

At Higher Levels: If you cast this spell using spell slot of 2nd Level or higher, it's duration increases by 1 week for each slot level above 1st. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 5th Level or higher, the duration instead becomes 1 year. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 6th Level or higher, the effect lasts until removed by way of a remove curse spell or similar magic.

Selina's Gloryhole
3rd-level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 15ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Up to 1 hour

You call forth your own magic, transforming an arcane sensor to give potential peeping toms more than just a show. Choose one arcane sensor you are aware of, such as those created by the Arcane Eye or Scrying spells. For the duration of this spell, the sensor transforms into a small portal, just large enough to fit a single sexual implement through. This portal connects to the creature using the sensor, allowing the creature to make direct sexual advances against you, or other creatures within 5 ft of the sensor as if they were in the same location. You may make sexual advances against any creature who's implement is currently on your side of the portal, and have advantage on sexual advances made in this way.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 4th level or higher, the number of sensors you can affect in this way increases by 1 for each level above 3rd.

You are considered proficient with this instrument, and may play it as a free action whenever you make a sexual advance against the creature and hit.

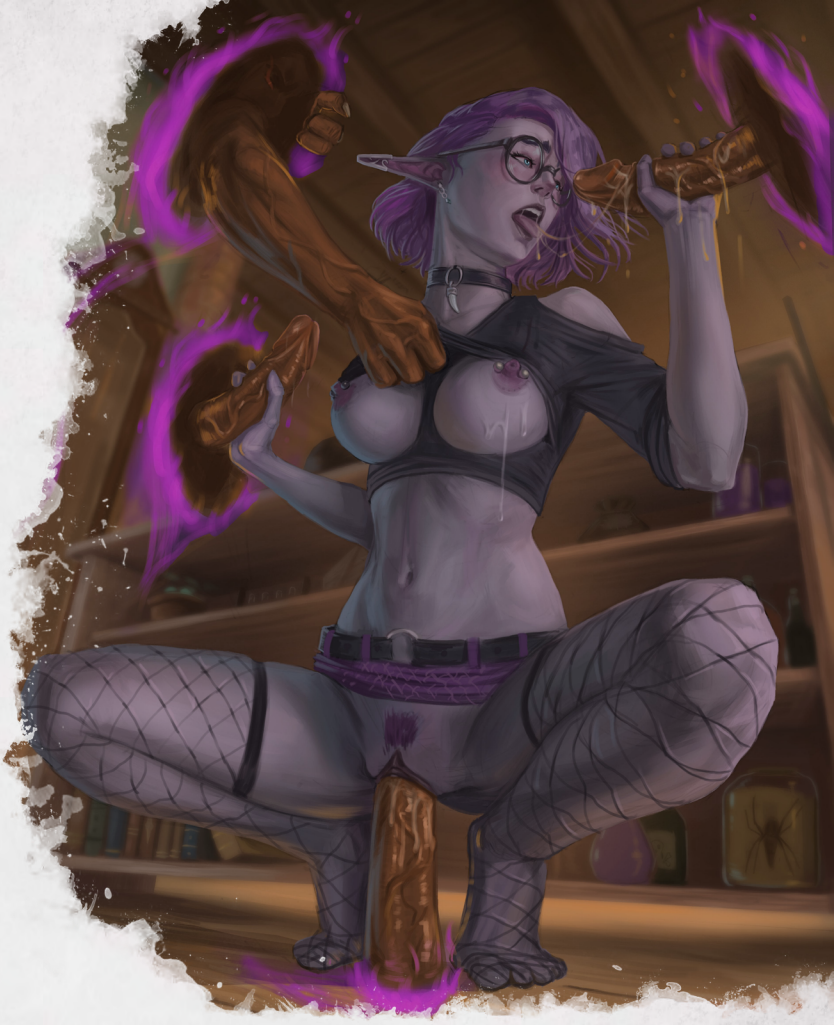

Semen Storm
7th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 160 ft
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes.

A storm of letcherous energy and tumultuous wind appears in the sky at a point you choose within range, spreading out to a radius of 120 feet, and raining down inconceivable amounts of sticky white cum.

The area of the storm is considered difficult terrain, and any creature who moves more than 10 ft within the area must succeed on a dexterity saving throw or fall prone. A creature who enters or starts it's turn within the storm must make a dexterity saving throw. On a failure, It takes 3d6 acid stimulation and is blinded until it uses an action to wipe the cum from its eyes. On a success, the target takes half as much stimulation and is not blinded.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 8th Level or higher, the stimulation increases by 1d6 for each level above 7th.

Serpent's Shaft
4nd- level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self
Components: V, S
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

For the duration of this spell, you gain a pair of serpentine cocks, with which you are considered proficient. The size category of these cocks matches your own. You use your spell attack modifier when making sexual advances with these cocks, and may make a sexual advance with both cocks as part of the same action.

Sexual Dysfunction
4th- level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a wet noodle or piece of string)

Taliah's Tricky Teleportation
conjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 reaction, when you would take damage from any source
Range: Self
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

As a reaction to incoming danger, you carelessly teleport out of the way, with no destination in mind. You instantly disappear from your current location and reappear in a random unoccupied space within 30 ft. Roll 1d20. On a result of 10 or lower, all worn or carried equipment (including your clothes) is left behind in your previous space. If you roll a 1, you must immediately roll on the Wild Magic Surge table to create a magical effect. If that effect is a spell, it is too wild to be directed by you, and if it normally requires concentration, it doesn't require concentration in this case; the spell lasts for its full duration.

Tentacle
conjuration cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 30 feet
Components: V, S, M (a squid or octopus tentacle)

Range: 30 ft
Components: V, S, M (a ripe fruit cut from the branches of a grafted fruit tree)
Duration: instantaneous

You lay your hands gently on the womb of a willing pregnant creature, gesturing phalically towards a target in range. The target must make a constitution saving throw. On a failure, the pregnancy of the first creature is transferred to the target, regardless of limitations such as race or sex. On a success, nothing happens.

The offspring produced by this pregnancy will be the that of the original parents, regardless of the creature it is transferred to.

Total Rewrite
9th-level enchantment

Casting Time: 1 hour
Range: Touch
Components: V, S, M (a blank slate)
Duration: Until Dispelled

Weaving forbidden words of arcane power through the mind of an unconscious creature, you slowly rewrite it's entire mind. This spell must be cast on an unconscious creature, and has no effect if the target wakes at any point before the spell is complete. The target must make a wisdom saving throw. On a failure you alter or remake the creature's mind as you see fit. On a failure, this spell has no effect. The creature has disadvantage on this saving throw if it is suffering form one or more levels of overstimulation, and automatically fails the saving throw if it is suffering from 6 or more levels of overstimulation.

When you cast this spell, you may choose what aspect's of the creature's mind to alter or change. You may alter its memories, its morals, its sexuality, its personality, or even its entire identity, replacing them as you see fit. Any details you do not define when altering the creature's mind are automatically filled in by the creature's subconscious, as determined by the DM. You may choose for the creature to remember it's former self, or to be completely unaware of the changes you have made.

This spell lasts until dispelled by way of a wish spell or similar magic, or until you choose to end it as an action on your turn, at which point the target returns to it's original state, with no memory of anything it has done since this spell was cast.

While a creature is affected by this spell, you may use a free action to temporarily suppress the changes you have made to it, returning the creature's mind to it's normal state, and restoring your changes as a bonus action on any of your subsequent turns. If you do so, the target may attempt a wisdom saving throw at disadvantage, ending the spell on a success. The spell also ends early if the target dies, allowing the creature to be returned to life with it's original mind intact.

Vampire's Kiss
2nd-level necromancy

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: S
Duration: Instantaneous

You plant a life-stealing kiss on a nearby creature, draining it's life-force in exchange for a thrill of pleasure. Make a melee spell attack against a creature within range. On a hit, the target takes 2d6 necrotic stimulation, and must expend a single Hit Dice. For each Hit Die spent in this way, the creature rolls the die and adds it's Constitution modifier to it, taking necrotic damage equal to the result. You regain hit points equal to the same amount.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 3rd Level of higher, the number of hit dice expended increases by 1 for each slot level above 2nd.

Vibe Check
enchantment cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Touch
Components: V, S
Duration: Instantaneous

You instil the force of your magic into a flat-handed strike, attempting to return your target to their normal state of mind. Make a spell attack against a target you can see using your unarmed strike. On a hit, the target takes 1d4 force damage, and makes a saving throw against one condition currently affecting it, adding the damage dealt to the result.

Vibration
evocation cantrip

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self
Components: V, S M (a buzzing insect)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

You add a thrumming vibration to your touch, enhancing the pleasure of your partner. For the duration, your natural implements become magical, if they aren't already, and you can use your spellcasting ability instead of Strength or Dexterity for the advance and stimulation rolls of martial advances with these implements. While affected in this way, your Natural implements deal an additional 1d4 thunder stimulation.

Victoria's Secret Pocket
5th-level conjuration (ritual)

Casting Time: 1 hour
Range: Touch
Components: S, M (a silver needle, and a bag of holding which the spell consumes)
Duration: Until dispelled

Using a silver needle, you carefully sew the dimensional pocket of your bag of holding into a discrete and private space. Choose an object or surface (including your own body) at least 2 inches in diameter.

For the duration of the spell, this surface functions as the opening to an extradimensional pocket with the same properties as a bag of holding. Only you can access this pocket, and any creature attempting to discover or recognize the existence of the pocket must succeed on an intelligence saving throw.

If the spell is dispelled at any point, the contents of this extradimensional pocket are ejected harmlessly into a space within 5ft. Dispelling this spell does not return the bag of holding.

You may only have one instance of this spell active at any time. If you attempt to cast the spell again, the original pocket is dispelled.

Vilga's Phallic Enhancement
1st- level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: 2 hours

With a sensual touch, you draw out the latent virility of a creature, granting it a powerful cock. This spell causes the creature to grow a cock of an appropriate size category for it's race or species, or causes the size category of the creature's cock to increase by one.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using spell slot of 2nd Level of higher, the size category of the target's cock increases by 1 for each slot level above 1st, up to a maximum of gargantuan.

Duration: Concentration, up to 1 hour

You channel the desperation of an animal in heat to overwhelm your target with violent sexual need. Choose a single creature within range. The target must succeed on a wisdom saving throw,or become nymphomanic and hyperfertile for the spell's duration. This spell has no effect on infertile creatures, or creatures who cannot produce offspring.

Each time the target climaxes or is the target of a failed sexual advance, It may repeat it's wisdom saving throw, ending the spell on a success. A creature who succeeds on it's saving throw against this spell becomes immune to it's effects for 24 hours.

Vore
6th-level transmutation

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: touch
Components: S, M (a vial of behemoth saliva)
Duration: Concentration, up to 1 minute

Momentarily transmuting both your body and that of a grappled creature, you consume your target, holding them in your stomach for the duration of this spell. Choose one creature within 5ft who is currently grappled by you. The target must make a strength saving throw. On a failure, the creature is engulfed into your body, and takes 6d6 acid stimulation.

Each round that a creature spends engulfed, it must succeed on a constitution saving throw or take 3d6 acid stimulation. A creature remains engulfed until you use a bonus action to eject it, at which point it appears in an unoccupied space within 5 ft of you. An engulfed creature may use it's action to make a strength check against your spell save DC. On a success, the target escapes your body, ending the spell's effect on itself. A creature who is engulfed when this spell ends appears in an unoccupied space within 5 ft of you. You may have only a single creature engulfed at one time, and This spell ends early if there are no longer any creatures engulfed within your body.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 7th level or higher, the number of creature you may have engulfed at one time in creases by 1 for each spell slot level above 6th.

Voyeur's Vision
2nd-level illusion

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: Self
Components: V, M (A few drops of purified spingwater)
Duration: 1 minute

Speaking a few subtle words and sprinkling clear water over your eyes, you are able to see much that would be hidden. For the next minute you can see through non-magical clothing. To you, clothing appears transparent, and does not prevent light from passing through. Additionally, you can see the current arousal of those around you represent as a faint aura around the creature, which grows brighter the higher the creature's current arousal. This aura also reveals any sexual conditions currently affecting the creature.

Wendy's Wanton Dismissal
1st level abjuration

Casting Time: 1 action

Range: 20 ft
Components: V
Duration: concentration, up to 1 minutes

You mutter words of arcane dismissal, causing a creature's presence to become even more irrelevant than it already is. Choose one creature within range that you can see or hear. The target must make a charisma saving throw. On a failure, that target has disadvantage on a performance, persuasion, and intimidation checks to for the duration, and other creatures have disadvantage on Wisdom (Perception) checks made to perceive the creature.

Word of Safety
2nd-level abjuration

Casting Time: 10 minutes
Range: touch
Components: V, S
Duration: 8 hours

You touch a willing creature and prepare a magical safeword against unwilling bondage. Choose a word, phrase, or gesture known to both you and the target. For the next 8 hours, you or the target may repeat this phrase or gesture as a free action, automatically freeing the target from any non-magical bindings, and ending the restrained and grappled condition if present. Once this phrase has been triggered, the spell ends.

At Higher Levels: When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 3rd Level or higher, you may choose to store a dispel magic or remove curse spell in the magical phrase by casting it as part of preparing the safeword. When the phrase is triggered, the stored spell is cast, targeting the same creature as this spell, or a single enchanted or magical object to which they are attuned.

Wall of Tentacles
7th-level conjuration

Casting Time: 1 action
Range: 120 ft
Components: V, S, M (a squirming tentacle from a monstrosity or abberation)
Duration: Concentration, up to 10 minutes.

You open a dark chasm from which a wall of squelching squirming tentacles rises forth. The wall appears within range on a solid surface and lasts for the duration. You choose to make the wall up to 60 feet long, 10 feet high, and 5 feet thick or a circle that has a 20-foot diameter and is up to 20 feet high and 5 feet thick. The wall blocks line of sight.

A creature can move through the wall, albeit slowly and not without being molested. For every 1 foot a creature moves through the wall, it must spend 4 feet of movement. Furthermore, the first time a creature enters the wall on a turn or ends its turn there, the creature must make a Dexterity saving throw. On a failed save, a creature takes 7d8 piercing stimulation and is retrained. On a succesful save, the creature takes half as much stimulation, and is not restrained. Any creature within the area of the wall when it appears makes this save at disadvantage

A creature restrained by the tentacles can use its action to make a Strength or Dexterity check (its choice) against your spell save DC. On a success, it frees itself.

At Higher Levels. When you cast this spell using a spell slot of 8th level or higher, the duration instead becomes 1 hour. If you cast this spell using a spell slot of 9th level, the spell gains a duration that does not require concentration

A Special thanks

To the Amazing community that has inspired me to keep working on this project, and who have quite literally kept a roof over my head for the past 2 years. You guys are incredible, and I cannot express how much your love and support means to me. It's absolutely crazy just how far this project has come because of you guys.

To My Wonderful Wife, who has put up with me and my bullshit for 14 years now. I don't know how you do it, but I can honestly say I wouldn't be here without you.

To My Dearest Friend Jade, who has seen me through the worst of it, and never lapsed in her support of me, even after the hard times between us.

And of course, to all my patrons and supporters, and to those fans who continue to enjoy my work. I love what I get to do for you guys, and hope to continue doing it far into the future

Support the Project

Nothing in life has ever made me happier than being able to create something that others enjoy, and I am thrilled to make my content available for free. That said, free doesn't exactly pay the bills.

I am an independent creator, and I rely entirely on commissions and contributions from fans to keep a roof over my head, and food on the table for myself and my amazing wife. So if you like what you see, and want to support what I do, you can do so at any of the following links:

Most of these still use my legal name, because it costs an absorbenant amount to change the name on my tax return.

Hardcover Publication

While the Digital version of this Handbook will always be free, I'm currently working on taking this book to print, and that has a lot of costs associated with it. Not the least of which is properly Licensing or Commissioning new Artwork.

I want to replace all of the AI garbage I have been forced to use in some sections with commissioned work from real artists, and overall just give back to the community of adult artists by providing as much paid work (or payment for existing work) as I can. I know how much everyone is struggling right now - myself included.

Unfortunately Art for a book like this generally runs somewhere in excess of $50,000, and I'm dead broke, with the credit of a self-employed content creator. So I'm hoping to launch a crowd-funding campaign sometime later this year to cover those costs.

You can follow the project through any of my socials, including the Forbidden paradisium Discord server, and I will make a big announcement as soon as I go live with the crowd-funding. Currently I'm trying to pull together enough paid artwork to create promotional materials I can use for that.

Art Attribution

This is still only a draft of the final book, and uses a variety of artwork I have sourced from wherever I could find it. Some of it is unfortunately AI generated, I hold no license or copyright to any of it. I would normally include a lengthy credits section, but because the book is still being worked on, and the artwork is constantly changing, it hasn't been feasible to credit everyone directly.

That said, I am in the process of properly crediting what I can, and licensing as much of the work as possible. The following is a very incomplete, and still somewhat haphazard list of the featured artists who I have been able to track down. Expect it to grow, as I get closer to the final form of the book:

And Many More!

Seriously! If you recognize your own artwork in this book Please Get in Touch. I'm In the process of securing license for what I can, and commissions to replace what I cannot. I want to eradicate all trace of AI work form this book too. This PDF is published for free, but if you would like me to remove your work, just say the word!
